AN ACT TO AMEND THE CHARTER OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.

Passed April 14, 1857, three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Senate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SEC. 1. The Corporation now existing, and known by the name of "The Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New York," shall continue to be a body politic and corporate, in fact and in name, by the same name, and shall have perpetual succession, with all the grants, powers and privileges heretofore had by "the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New York."

- § 2. The legislative power of the said Corporation shall be vested in a Board of Aldermen and a Board of Councilmen, who together shall form the Common Council of the city of New York.
- § 3. The Board of Aldermen shall consist of one Alderman to be elected from each district in the city and county of New York, as hereinafter provided for. The members of the Board of Aldermen first elected under this act shall be classified as follows: The Aldermen from districts having an odd numerical designation shall hold such office for the term of one year, and those from districts having an even numerical designation shall hold such office for the term of two years. At all subsequent elections for Aldermen, they shall be elected for the full term of two years.
- § 4. There shall be six Councilmen elected from each senatorial district in the city of New York, as the same now are or may hereafter be constituted, by general ticket, in each of said districts; and the persons elected from each of said senatorial districts shall together form the Board of Councilmen for the said city. The Councilmen shall be chosen for one year.

- § 5. No person shall be eligible to the office of Alderman or Councilman, who shall not, at the time of his election, be a resident of the district from which he is chosen.
- § 6. Each Board of the Common Council shall have power to direct a special election to be held, to supply the place of any member whose seat shall become vacant by death, removal from the city, resignation, or otherwise, and in either case the person elected to supply the vacancy shall hold his seat only for the residue of the term of office of his immediate predecessor.
- § 7. The Boards shall meet in separate chambers, and a majority of either shall be a quorum to do business. Each Board shall appoint a President from its own body, and shall choose its clerk and other officers, determine the rules of its own proceedings, and be the judge of the election, returns and qualifications of its own members. Each Board shall keep a journal of its proceedings, and its doors shall be kept open, except when the public welfare shall require secrecy; and all resolutions and reports of committees, which shall recommend any specific improvement, involving the appropriation of public moneys, or the taxing or assessing the citizens of the city, shall be published immediately after the adjournment of the Board, under the authority of the Board, in all the newspapers employed by the Corporation, and shall not be passed or adopted until after such notice has been published at least two days; and whenever a vote is taken in relation thereto, the ayes and noes shall be called, and published in the same manner.
- § s. Each Board shall have the authority to compel the attendance of absent members, to punish its members for disorderly behavior, and to expel a member with the concurrence of two-thirds of the members elected to the Board; and the member so expelled shall, by such expulsion, forfeit all his rights and powers as an Alderman or Councilman, and no Alderman or Councilman shall be questioned in any other place for any speech or vote in either Board.
- § 9. The stated and occasional meetings of each Board of the Common Council shall be regulated by its own ordinances; and both Boards may meet on the same or on different days, as they may severally judge expedient.
- § 10. Any person holding office under this charter, who shall, during his term of office, accept, hold, or retain any other civil office of honor, trust or emolument under the government of the United States, or under this charter, or who shall, during his said term of office, receive any fees or emoluments, directed to be paid by any ordinance of the Common Council, except as is hereinafter provided, shall be deemed thereby to have vacated his office.

- § 11. Every legislative act of the Common Council shall be by ordinance, act, or resolution, which shall have passed the two Boards of Common Conncil, before it shall take effect, shall be presented, duly certified, to the Mayor of the city for his approval. If he approve, he shall sign it; if not, he shall return it within ten days thereafter, with his objections, to the Board in which it originated, or, if such Board be not then in session, at its next stated meeting. The Board to which it shall be returned shall enter the objections at large on their journal, and cause the same to be published in one or more of the daily newspapers of the city. But no ordinance, act, or resolution shall be valid, unless the same shall have received the assent of both Boards within the same year.
- § 12. The Board, to which such ordinance, act, or resolution, shall have been so returned, shall, after the expiration of not less than ten days thereafter, proceed to reconsider the same. If, after such reconsideration, at least two-thirds of all the members elected to the Board shall agree to pass the same, it shall be sent, together with the objections, to the other Board, by which it shall be likewise reconsidered, and, if approved, by at least two-thirds of all the members elected to such Board, it shall take effect as an act or law of the Corporation. In all such cases, the votes of both Boards shall be determined by yeas and nays, and the names of the persons voting for and against the passage of the ordinance reconsidered shall be entered on the journal of each Board respectively.
- § 13. If the Mayor shall not return the ordinance so presented to him within the time above limited for that purpose, it shall take effect in the same manner as if he had approved of it.
- § 14. Any ordinance of the Common Council may originate in either Board, and, when it shall have passed one Board, may be rejected or amended by the other. But no ordinance shall be passed by either Board, except by the vote of a majority of all the members elected to such Board.
- § 15. Neither the Mayor nor Recorder of the city of New York shall be a member of the Common Council thereof.
- § 16. The executive power of the Corporation shall be vested in the Mayor and the Executive Departments.
- § 17. Whenever there shall be a vacancy in the office of Mayor, or whenever the Mayor shall be absent from the city, or be prevented by sickness, or any other cause, from attending to the duties of his office, or shall be removed as hereinafter provided for, the President of the Board of Aldermen shall act as Mayor, and shall possess all the rights and powers of the Mayor, during the continuance of such vacancy, absence, or disability, and until the next charter election, in the case of a vacancy or removal from office.

- To appoint such clerks as may be authorized by the Common Council, and as may be required in his office, to aid him in the discharge of his official duties.

The Comptroller shall be voted for on a separate ballot. The other heads of departments shall be appointed by the Mayor, with the advice and consent of the Board of Aldermen. The Board of Aldermen shall have power to confirm or reject all nominations of officers made by the Mayor; and whenever any person nominated by the Mayor shall be rejected by the Board of Aldermen, the Mayor shall immediately nominate another person.
- § 20. The Mayor, Comptroller, and Counsel to the Corporation, may each be removed by the Governor, for cause, in the manner provided by law in the case of sheriffs. The vacancy occasioned by the removal of the Comptroller, or Counsel to the Corporation, shall be filled by the Mayor, with the advice and consent of the Board of Aldermen, until it shall be supplied at the next annual election of charter officers.
- § 21. The other heads of the Executive Departments, except the officers of the Croton Aqueduct Board, shall hold their office for two years, and until the appointment of their successors. AN ACT

TO AMEND AN ACT ENTITLED "AN ACT TO ESTABLISH A METROPOLITAN POLICE DISTRICT, AND TO PROVIDE FOR THE GOVERNMENT THEREOF," PASSED APRIL FIFTEENTH, EIGHTEEN HUNDED AND FIFTY-SEVEN.

Passed April 10, 1860; three-fifths being present.

The People of the State of New York, represented in Scnate and Assembly, do enact as follows:

SEC. 1. The act entitled "An act to establish a Metropolitan Police District, and to provide for the government thereof," passed April fifteenth, eighteen hundred and fifty-seven, is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

§ 2. The counties of New York, Kings, Westchester and Richmond, and the towns of Newtown, Flushing and Jamaica, in the county of Queens, are hereby constituted and territorially united for the purposes of police government and police discipline therein, into one district, which shall be known as and called the Metropolitan Police District of the State of New York.

§ 3. The powers and duties connected with and incident to the police government and discipline of the said district shall be as is hereinafter more especially provided for, vested in and exercised by a Board of Metropolitan Police, Commissioners of Metropolitan Police, and by a Metropolitan Police force, composed of a Superintendent of Metropolitan Police force, Inspectors of Metropolitan Police force, Captains of Metropolitan Police, Sergeants of Metropolitan Police, and Patrolmen of Metropolitan Police.

- § 4. On or before the tenth day of April, A. p. eighteen hundred and sixty, and thereafter from time to time, as may become requisite, the Governor shall nominate, and, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, shall appoint from among the electors of the Metropolitan Police District, three Commissioners of Metropolitan Police, who shall constitute the Board of Metropolitan Police, and two of them shall form a quorum for the transaction of business. The Governor shall have power to fill up any vacancy or vacancies that may happen in such Board during the recess of the Senate, by appointing a Commissioner or Commissioners, who shall hold office until appointment shall be made for the remainder of the unexpired term, in the manner hereinbefore provided. Any one of the Commissioners may be at all times removed by the Governor under the provisions of statutes relating to the removal from office of sheriffs, which provisions are hereby extended so as to relate to each one of the said Commissioners.
- § 5. The said three Commissioners, after having been duly appointed under this section, shall assemble together in the office of the Secretary of State, and there proceed to draw lots for three terms of office expiring respectively on the first days of April, in the years eighteen hundred and sixty-two, eighteen hundred and sixty-four, and eighteen hundred and sixty-six. At the expiration of each of the said respective terms, the full term succeeding shall be one of six years.
- § 6. Any one of the said Commissioners who shall, during his term of office, accept or hold any other place of public trust, or civil emolument, or who shall, during his term of office, be publicly nominated for any office elective by the people, and shall not, within ten days succeeding the same, publicly decline the said nomination, shall be in either case deemed hereby to have resigned his commission to the Governor, and to have vacated his office, and the Governor shall proceed as in case of vacance.
- § 7. Upon the said three terms of office having been determined, as aforesaid by lot, and a certificate of the result, attested by each Commissioner, having been filed in the office of the Secretary of State, there shall be issued to each Commissioner, from said office, the proper commission of appointment to office, for the term so drawn by lot, and each Commissioner shall, on receipt thereof, take and subscribe before the Secretary of State, for deposit in his office, the oath required by the constitution for judicial officers.
- § 8. The said three Commissioners, appointed under this section, shall then take the places of the five Commissioners of Police of the said the Metropolitan Police District, now fulfilling office therein under the act hereby amended, and the terms of office of each of the said five Commissioners.

§ 9. The said "The Metropolitan Police District" shall be divided by the Board of Metropolitan Police into precincts, not exceeding forty in the whole number thereof, and to each precinct shall be assigned a Captain of Metropolitan Police, and as many sergeants and patrolmen of the Metropolitan Police force as the said Board may deem sufficient. Any number of said precincts may be joined into a sub-district by the said Board, and assigned to the charge of an inspector of police force. Any number of precincts may be likewise joined into surgical sub-districts, and assignments made thereto of Surgeons of Police by the said Board. In precincts within the county towns of Kings, or the towns of Newtown, Flushing and Jamaica, in the county of Queens, or in the counties of Richmond or Westchester respectively, the said Board may appoint therein any patrolman as acting sergeant in command of such precinct, with powers of captain, under the rules and regulations of the Board, but without increase of pay.

The Judge at Chambers will continue to hold the same to and including the Saturday preceding the first Monday of the succeeding month, except when otherwise directed herein.

All applications for business to be transacted at Chambers and Special term must be made to the Judge assigned to hold that branch of the Court.

REGULATIONS.

All issues of fact already joined and triable in the city of New York will be noticed to the Clerk, and be put on the Calendar for the ensuing January Circuit.

During the first week of that Circuit, motions to correct the Calendar may be made.

After that week the Calendar will remain unchanged, and continue the Calendar for every successive circuit until all the causes on it shall be tried; each Circuit beginning on the Calendar where the immediately preceding Circuit left off, and new causes to be placed in order at the foot of the permanent Calendar.

After the first week of each Circuit (during which motions to correct the Calendar may be made), the Calendar of the causes which may have gone down at the previous Circuit and the new issues will be entered as part and in continuation of the permanent Calendar; and so on, from court to court, until the end of the year.

These regulations do not affect the question of noticing the causes for trial to the opposite party, as the statute may require.

Hereafter no causes will be reserved, generally, after they are placed on the day Calendar.

No cause on any day Calendar will be passed, except where the counsel is actually engaged in a trial of a cause in another court in the city, or in the Court of Appeals, and then only until such an engagement is discharged, or upon proof of the absence of a witness duly subpensed.

Parties, by consent, may apply to the clerk, and have any cause on the Circuit Calendar reserved generally, and set down for a particular day, before it is placed on the day Calendar; and may, on filing with the clerk a like consent, have the same placed on the day Calendar, or apply to the Court, on a notice of two days therefor.

SPECIAL CIRCUIT CALENDAR.

At any Circuit, until further orders, any causes belonging to either of the following classes may be placed on a special Circuit Calendar, unless the trial is likely to occupy more than one hour.

1st. Where the action is on contract, and the answer merely denies the allegations in the complaint, without setting up any new matter.

2d. Where the action is on contract, and new matter is set up in the answer, and there shall be reason to believe that the defense is made only for the purpose of delay; or, where it shall appear, by affidavit, that the cause can be tried in an hour.

To entitle the cause to be placed on such Calendar, the Plaintiff's Attorney must give a notice of four days, to be heard before a Judge at Chambers, that he will move to have the cause placed on such Calendar; and if the motion be granted, the cause may be heard on any subsequent Friday.

If the motion be founded on the belief that the defense is for delay, or that the cause can be tried in an hour, affidavits must be served at the time of notice.

The Plaintiff's Attorney must deliver to the Clerk of the Circuit a like notice one day before such Friday, containing also the number of the cause on the General Circuit Calendar.

If the cause shall actually occupy more than one hour on the trial, the trial may be suspended, at the discretion of the Court, and the cause be put down at the foot of the Calendar.

1862. January Term, on Monday, January 27th.

" March " " March 24th.
" May " " May 26th.
" Newsphere" " Newsphere"

November " November 24th.

NATHANIEL JARVIS, Jr., Clerk.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS

For the City and County of New York for the year 1862.

ORDERED:

- 1. The General Calendar for the trial of Jury Cases will be continued in its present condition for the year 1862, except that all the causes thereon will be renumbered. New causes noticed for January, or any subsequent Term, will be placed at the end of the General Calendar, in their order, according to date of issue.
- 2. Causes may be generally reserved by a written consent of the attorneys, filed at any time before the case is on the day calendar. Cases so reserved may afterwards be placed upon the day calendar, on the application of either party to the Judge at Chambers, provided two days' previous notice of such application be given to the adverse party.
- All causes marked "Off for the Term," shall have priority at the succeeding term, and will be placed at the head of the calendar therefor.
- The Calendar of causes to be tried by the Court, without a jury, will be called at the trial terms on the fourth Mondays of January, March, May, and November.
- Fifteen causes will be placed on each day calendar, and no calendar will be made for Saturdays.

- 6. At the General Terms, in appeal cases arising in this Court, the parties may, by consent, reserve the argument until the second week in term, when all so reserved will be called in their order on the calendar. But in appeals from the Marine and Justices' Courts no such reservation will be allowed, and counsel therein must be prepared for the argument when the case is reached in its order.
- 7. In any action on contract, where there is reason to believe that the defense is interposed for delay, and that the trial will not occupy more than one hour, the plaintiff may, upon a notice of four days, apply at Chambers to have the cause placed upon the Special Calendar for short cases, and which will be made up for the last Friday in each trial term.

The notice must be accompanied by the affidavits (if any) upon which the motion will be founded.

If the motion be granted, the order to that effect shall forthwith be delivered to the Clerk, with a written notice specifying the number of the cause on the General Calendar.

Sould the trial occupy more than one hour, it may be suspended, in the discretion of the Judge holding the court, and the cause will thereupon be placed at the foot of the General Calendar, unless otherwise specially ordered.

By the Court.

NATHANIEL JARVIS, Jr., Clerk.

Officers for 1858.

SIXTY-THIRD ANNUAL REPORT OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES, 1861.

To the Representatives of the New York Fire Department:

Gentlemen—In our Report which we had the honor to submit to your notice some few years ago, we congratulated you, as well as our fellow-citizens, on the merciful dispensation of a Divine Providence in protecting us from the evils of War, Pestilence, and Famine. Subsequently we had the pleasure of calling your attention to the opinion entertained by the public Press in regard to the members of the Department, not only in the discharge of their duties as Firemen, but in the language as expressed by one of the leading journals of this city, in the following words: "Our city has a sure protection in her military force, and, if necessity required, could summon a powerful auxiliary in the sturdy and efficient Fire Department. No insignificant powers to support and enforce the law and maintain order."

Although we have been spared the evils of pestilence and famine, it is with sorrow we have at this time to record the existence of an unnatural civil war, produced and continued by the ambitious and selfish views of political demagogues, whereby thousands of the people of this once happy Union are engaged in a deadly strife.

When the trumpet of war, over six months ago, announced that our national capital was in danger, how prompt and truly did the members of the New York Fire Department verify the opinion set forth by the public press. In ten days a regiment was organized, embracing men of various occupations, who were willing to forego all social and domestic ties for the defense of the Constitution and laws of this Republic. What a proud day was the 29th of April for the New York Fire Department, when the First Regiment of the New York Fire Zouaves, under the command of the lamented Ellsworth, hastened to the scene of danger; and whatever censure may have subsequently been applied to this regiment, it must not be forgotten that it was the first regiment to occupy the enemy's ground, and sealed the doom of a traitor to his country, even at the sacrifice of their gallant Colonel. The wide difference in the duties of a fireman, in comparison to the discipline which is requisite to make an efficient soldier, is sufficient to exonerate them from the unjust censure which has been bestowed on them. Their bravery and courage have never been questioned, even by their opponents. "They were the target for the guns of the enemy, so bitter was their hatred to the Fire Zouaves."

In the death of their subsequent commander, Noah L. Farnham, the Department mourns the loss of one of their brightest ornaments, who sacrificed his life in defense of his country. At this time a portion of this gallant band, in their devotion to the Union, are confined as prisoners of war many miles from their families and friends; for their sake, and for the many good and faithful men who have offered their lives, or have been disabled in the service of their country, we ask in their name and memory not to censure the innocent for the guilty. Not only in the First Fire Zouaves do we find those who have been, or who are now, connected with the Department. Few regiments have departed from our city without a representation from the New York Fire Department.

Your Trustees, in presenting to your notice a statement of the financial affairs of the Department, derive great pleasure in stating that the amount of moneys expended in various charitable acts for over sixty years, in the aggregate exceeds, we believe, any charitable institution in the country.

Owing to the disturbed state of the country, we have been in a measure deprived of a portion of our revenue, and at the same time we have had to provide for a large additional number of applicants for assistance; and it has been necessary to exercise a very careful distribution of moneys at our disposal, to meet all the calls on the fund. We appeal to those who are able, to assist us in our endeavors to relieve the wants of the widows, orphans, and disabled firemen with their aid; and trust that, with the usual liberality of our citizens, we will be placed in a position to respond to their applications. In the discharge of our duties as Almoners of the Fund, we are governed by the rule laid down in the charter, to ascertain whether the applicants are in need and worthy of assistance. Parties applying under this rule will ever meet a ready response from the Trnstees, and, wanting the aforesaid requirements, will meet with a firm and positive denial; for it is our duty to know and report to the Representatives as well as the patrons of the Fund, that their moneys are justly distributed among those who, from various causes, have met with reverses in life, and have to seek for succor in the hour of trouble from our noble Institution.

By referring to the annexed Report of the Treasurer, you will perceive that, at the time of his last report, there was a balance in the Butchers' and Drovers' Bank, to the credit of the Department, amounting to six hundred and eighty-four dollars and seventy-three cents ($684.73). Since then he has received, from various sources, the sum of thirty-four thousand two hundred and sixty-nine dollars and sixty cents ($34,269.60), which in the aggregate amounts to thirty-four thousand nine hundred and fifty-four dollars and thirty-three cents ($34,954.33.) In the above sum is included eight thousand three hundred dollars ($8,300), for bonds and mortgages canceled.

The disbursements during the past year have amounted, in the aggregate, to thirty-four thousand seven hundred and sixty-nine dollars and forty-four cents ($34,769,44), including five thousand dollars reinvested in bonds and mortgages, and thirty-three hundred dollars ($3,300) in United States Government bonds. This amount is a portion received for bonds and mortgages canceled, leaving a balance in the Butchers' and Drovers' Bank, to the credit of the Department, of one hundred and eighty-four dollars and eighty-nine cents ($184.89.)

The permanent Fund remains the same as the last report, namely, ninety-seven thousand two hundred and fifty dollars ($97,250), invested as follows: ninety-three thousand seven hundred dollars ($93,700) in bonds and mortgages; thirty-three hundred dollars ($3,300) in United States Government bonds; and two hundred and fifty dollars ($250) in Manhattan Bank Stock.

We would be derelict in our duty were we to remain silent in regard to the valuable services rendered by the financial officer of the Fund, who is ever on the alert to preserve intact the great trust confided to his care, as well as affording your Trustees with the aid of his long and experienced information in relation to the financial affairs of the Department.

In returning thanks to those who have assisted us in our charitable work, we have to acknowledge the sum of twenty-seven hundred and ninety-two dollars and thirty cents ($2,792.30), being the net proceeds of the Thirty-second Annual Firemen's Ball. In connection with the efforts of the gentlemen who have from time to time comprised the Firemen's Ball Committee, it is due to them, that, through their exertions for the past thirty-two years, they have paid to the Treasurer, in aid of the Fire Department Fund, the net sum of seventy-four thousand two hundred and ninety-three dollars and cighty-eight cents ($74.293.88.)

To the honorable Common Council we have to acknowledge the receipt of the usual annual donation of two thousand dollars,

To the proprietors of the New York Herald and Sun we are indebted for the whole amount of their respective bills for printing; and from George C. Genet, Esq., Attorney to the Corporation, the sum of three hundred dollars ($300), paid to the Treasurer for penalties collected for violations of the Hoistway Ordinance.

The Special Committee to solicit donations are everengaged in seeking resources to sustain the Fund, and at a suitable time will call on the patrons of the Department.

Your Trustees are pleased to report to you that the Court of Appeals have reaffirmed their former decision in favor of the constitutionality of the Foreign Insurance Laws. You will perceive, by the report of the Treasurer, the receipt of four thousand dollars, being the amount due for some years prior to the time of testing the legality of said laws. The income derived from this source, although not amounting to as much as previous years, is at present one of our principal sources of revenue.

The Committee on Fuel have distributed coal, amounting in all, as per report of the Treasurer, to fourteen hundred and eighty dollars and two cents ($1,480.02).

The Committee on Schools have distributed 1,405 pairs of shoes to the various recipients of the Department. The vacancies in the New York University still exist. It is hoped that, for the credit of the Department, they will be speedly filled. Any information relative to admission of pupils will be furnished by the School Committee.

The Committee have made the usual contracts for the present season.

At the time when your officers are looking for new sources of revenue to sustain the Fund, it is gratifying to know that your Honorable Body took the initiatory step in aiding them in their endeavors. The amendments of the By-Laws of the Board of Representatives, whereby the initiation fee has been increased, has been, and no doubt will be, beneficial to the Department, as well as in a financial sense.

The expenses of the meetings of the Representatives, which were formerly paid from the Fund, are now defrayed by the Representatives from an assessment on each Representative.

Frequent complaints have been made in regard to the delay of obtaining Certificates of Membership; it is due to exonerate the Treasurer and Chief Engineer from all blame. The subject has been referred to a Committee of the Trustees, who will endeavor to remedy the same for the future.

In addition to the various duties devolving on the Trustees, they were selected by the Union Defense Committee for the special duty of furnishing relief cards to the families of active and exempt members of the Department who enlisted in the volunteer regiments from this city. Although Committees were appointed for every Ward in this city, nevertheless the exception was made in favor of the Department, to attend to their own applicants; a compliment fully appreciated by your Trustees, as evidence of the claims of the Department, and the confidence entertained by our citizens.

It has been our duty, on previous occasions, to call to the attention of our brethren in the active ranks of the Department, that the prosperity of the Fund depended on the estimation in which the volunteer Department was held by our citizens. At the present age, when changes and innovations on long-established customs are so prevalent, how necessary it is to keep the Department in a position whereby it can escape from this rule. That the present system can be sustained, there can be no doubt, provided that each and every member of the Department will conduct themselves, and each constitute himself a guardian of the fair fame of the Department. If this is accomplished, little fear have we to anticipate for the future.

The term of service of Messrs. James Y. Watkins, Samuel B. Thomson, and Robert McGinnis expire at the annual meeting; it will be necessary to elect three Trustees, for three years each. All of which is respectfully submitted.

By order of the Board of Trustees.

HENRY A. BURR, President.

George F. Nesbitt, Secretary.

DEPARTURE OF THE 7TH REGTNYS M FRIDAY APRIL 19TH 1861 VIEW OF BROADWAY, COR COURTLAND ST.

THE NEW ARMORY, OR DOWN-TOWN ARSENAL.

This edifice is situated on the corner of White and Elm streets. It is one hundred and thirty-one feet on White street, and eighty-four feet on Elm street. It is built of blue stone, only two stories high, the first being thirteen feet, and the second thirty feet high. The windows are very narrow, being only eighteen inches wide, so that, in case of an assault by a mob outside, the building could be defended with success by fifty men. The first floor is used as a gun-room and meeting-room, the second as a drill-room, and a rendezvous in case of a riot. The style is Gothic, and on the three corners of the building are situated towers; there are five doors on White street, and one on Elm, which are made of boiler iron. It is built on piles driven into the ground. This building is used as a receptacle for a portion of the artillery of the first division of the New York State Militia. It is a very handsome building, and is constructed on the very best plan for defense. On the centre of the roof is erected a large flag-staff, by which communication from this building and the arsenal uptown may be carried on by signal telegraph.

^{*}The sum of $4,657.36 is, by law, chapter 301, of 1832, required to be raised by tax, annually, and invested by the Commissioners of the Sinking Funds, to constitute a fund for the redemption of the Public Education Stock, when it becomes due. The said amount has accordingly been raised in each year since and including the year 1854, and paid over to the credit of the Sinking Fund for the Redemption of the City Debt for the above purpose, it being calculated that the aggregate amount of such annual contributions, with the accumulation of interest thereon, would produce a sum sufficient to pay the principal of the stock at its maturity, in 1872.

THE FREE ACADEMY.

The Free Academy of the city of New York is the first institution established in this State by the popular sovereignty, and maintained at the public expense, for the purpose of extending to the pupils of the Common Schools the advantages of free education in those higher departments of learning, which cannot be obtained but at a considerable expense in the colleges previously established in this State. It was intended to be the complement of the system of free public schools—making them complete and available for all classes of the people, and by their courses of studies and means of instruction, fitted to meet the wants of all, from the elementary instruction of early childhood to the more various and profound studies in literature and science, which constitute the higher departments of collegiate learning.

The Board of Education of the city of New York took the first action in reference to the establishment of this institution, by the adoption of a resolution, introduced by Commissioner Townsend Harris, July 27th, 1847, raising a Committee to report upon the subject. On January 20th, 1847, a report was presented by said Committee, recommending the establishment of "a Free College or Academy," and presenting its design, nature, and objects, in this language: "Your Committee will not at present enter into the details of the proposed institution, but will briefly remark, that their design is to offer the idea of a college, which, while it shall be in no way inferior to any of our colleges in the character, amount, or value of the information given to the pupils, the course of studies to be pursued will have more especial reference to the active duties of operative life, rather than those more particularly regarded as necessary for the pulpit, bar, or the medical profession."

The report was published, and considered at a meeting of the Board, held on the 10th of February, 1847, when a Committee was appointed to draft a memorial, in the name of the Board, to be presented to the Legisture, praying, among other things:

First—"That the Legislature will be pleased to pass a law directing the Regents of the University to pay over to the Board of Education such amount of the literature fund as may be apportioned by them to the third, fourth, fifth, and sixth Senate Districts of this State; such moneys to be applied to the support of a free college or academy, in the city of New York, for the instruction of students who have been pupils in the Common Schools of the said city."

Second—"That the Legislature will further authorize the Board of Education in said city to call on the Supervisors, from time to time, to raise by tax such sums as may be required for the erecting, furnishing, and fitting up of said college or academy, and supporting the same, such sums to be notified to, and raised by the said Supervisors, in the same manner and under the same heading of taxation that the moneys for the support of Common Schools in said city are now raised."

The memorial was drafted and presented to the Legislature, offering, among others, the following views and purposes:

"One of the important objects designed to be secured by establishing a Free Academy is to bring the advantages of the best education that any school in our country can give within the reach of all the children of the city, whose genius, capacity, and desire of attainments are such as to render it reasonably certain that they may be made, and by such means would become, eminently useful to society; the permanency of our free institutions, the future state of society, the extent to which the laws of the country will be regarded, and social quiet and order preserved, depend essentially upon the virtue and intelligence of the people."

"Another object of the proposed free institution is, to create an additional interest in, and more completely popularize the Common Schools. It is believed that they will be regarded with additional favor, and attended with increased satisfaction, when the pupils and their parents feel that the children who have received their primary education in these schools, can be admitted to all the benefits and advantages furnished by the best endowed college in the State, without any expense whatever. It is believed that such an institution as the proposed Free Academy is designed to be, in addition to the great benefits it will confer by annually graduating a large number of highly-educated young men, destired to pursue some of all the various pursuits of life, would stimulate tens of thousands, who might never enter into this Academy, to additional industry and greater advances, while in the Common Schools. The certainty to a young man of good abilities, and desirous of making large acquisitions in knowledge, of having the opportunity of gaining as extensive an education as can be acquired in any institution in the State, if his parents can only furnish him the means to subsist at home, is in the highest degree cheering, while the certainty that the limited earnings of his parents will preclude him, in the existing state of things, from having any such advantages, tends to repress such generous aspirations, paralyze effort, and prevent the full development of his ability to become extensively useful to the class in which his lot may be cast, or to society at large."

Such were the objects presented to the Legislature, to induce the passage of the law authorizing the establishment of the Free Academy. The people were promised an institution which, in the character, amount, and value of the education imparted, should be inferior to none of our colleges, and at the same time should be so organized that the course of studies to be pursued would tend to educate the pupils practically, and particularly qualify them to apply their learning to advance and perfect the operations of the various trades and occupations in which they may engage; and, also, to furnish peculiar facilities for instruction of the highest order in various branches of knowledge, omitted altogether, or not practically taught, in our colleges. These views were approved by the Board, and concurred in by the succeeding Boards, who always have considered the Academy as a part of the Common School system of the city, by which, in easy and continuous development, students may pass on, as far as they are able, to the higher levels of literary and scientific education—an institution uniting in a properly progressive system the usual duties of the American Academy and the American College-retaining always its characteristic peculiarity of an agency of the government, in offering to all the people, equally, the means of educating their sons up to the point from which they respectively are to start in the pursuit of manhood and citizenship, and meeting the wants not only of those whose wealth is largely taxed to support education, but of those, more numerous, whose aggregate taxes are still larger, and also those whose more slender resources are subject to no direct pecu niary tax, but who, in numberless indirect exactions, contribute their full share in supporting the burdens of organized society.

The act authorizing the Board to establish a Free Academy was passed May 7th, 1847, providing, as a condition to its becoming a law, that the question whether such academy should be established according to its provisions, should be submitted to the people at the election to be held on the first Monday of June, 1847, and that a majority of the votes given must be in favor of the proposition. The question was so submitted, and 19,404 votes were given in favor of it, to 3,409 against—leaving a majority of 15.995.

ORGANIZATION OF THE FREE ACADEMY.

By the statute, it is made the duty of the Board of Education:

"To continue to furnish, through the Free Academy, the benefit of education gratuitously, to persons who have been pupils in the Common Schools of the said city and county, for a period of time to be regulated by the Board of Education, not less than one year.

"To supervise, manage, and govern said Free Academy, and make all needful rules and regulations therefor; fix the number and compensation of teachers and others to be employed therein; prescribe the preliminary examination, and the terms and conditions on which pupils shall be received and instructed therein and discharged therefrom; direct the course of studies therein, and provide in all things for the good government and management of the said Free Academy; and purchase the books, apparatus, stationery, and other things necessary and expedient to enable the said Free Academy to be properly and successfully conducted, and to keep the said building or buildings properly repaired and furnished. And the Board, upon the recommendation of the Faculty of the Free Academy, may grant the usual degrees and diplomas in the arts, to such persons as shall have completed a full course of study in the said Free Academy.

"To appoint annually a standing committee of not less than five persons of their number, who shall, subject to the control, supervision and approbation of the said Board, constitute an Executive Committee, for the care, government, and management of the said Free Academy, under the rules and regulations prescribed as aforesaid, whose duty it shall be to make detailed reports to the said Board of Education, and, among other things, to recommend the rules and regulations which they deem necessary and proper for the said academy."

The organization of the institution, based on the above enactments, is shown in the following digest of the by-laws of the Board of Education and regulations of the Faculty.

REQUISITES FOR ADMISSION.

The examination of candidates for admission takes place immediately after the general examination in July, and continues at the same hours every day, until concluded. No student can be admitted to the Academy unless he resides in the city, be fourteen years of age, shall have attended the Common Schools in the city twelve months, and shall pass a good examination in Spelling, Algebra, as far as quadratic equations, Reading, Geography, [inclusive, Writing, History of the United States, English Grammar, Constitution of the United States, Arithmetic, Elementary Book-keeping.

No candidate can be examined for admission unless he shall present to the Principal of the Academy a certificate, in the form prepared by the Executive Committee, signed by the Principal of the school or schools of which he has been a member, and specifying the age of the candidate, the Common Schools of the city which he has attended, the length of time in each, and when. If the number qualified for admission be more than can be admitted, the preference is given to those who have attended the Common Schools the greater period.

At either of the regular examinations, members may be admitted to one or all of the classes, to pursue the studies of any one or more departments, provided they shall have attended the Common Schools the requisite period—shall be of the proper age—shall pass the proper examination in the requisites for admission, and also an examination satisfactory to the Faculty, in the previous studies of the class or departments to which they are to be admitted.

No person is allowed to be present at the examination, except the instructors in the Academy, and members of the Board of Education, and other school officers; neither are the names of the candidates, nor the schools from which they come, made known to the instructors conducting the examinations, but each candidate is designated during examination by a number given to him on a card, by the Principal. Only the names of such as have passed a good examination are afterwards ascertained, in order to be inscribed on the rolls of the Academy.

Students are not allowed to reside or board in the Academy; they reside or board with their parents or guardians. By removing from the city, they forfeit their right to remain in the institution.

Graduates may become resident graduates, and continue their studies at option.

DISCIPLINE.

The discipline of the Academy is mild, persuasive, and just, but steady, strict, and unyielding. The law on this point is clear and explicit.

"Every student," it says, "shall conduct himself according to the rules of good manners, good morals, and manly propriety; shall give punctual and constant attendance to all his duties; shall use the property of the institution with care and economy, and restore the same when required."

The punishment inflicted in the Academy are demerit marks, private admonition, admonition by the Principal in presence of the Section and of the Instructor in the recitation-room, suspension by the direction of the Principal, public admonition by the Principal in presence of all the students at roll-call, final admonition by the Principal in a meeting of the Faculty, and dismission for misconduct, to be directed by a vote of the Faculty.

Every violation of the rules is recorded in the Book of Discipline, together with the degree of punishment inflicted, and the amount of demerits received. No student is demerited without receiving notice of the fact and the cause. Every student admitted into the Academy receives a certificate thereof, stating that on leaving the institution with a good character, after one year, he shall receive another certificate or diploma, stating the period he has been in the Academy, and the studies there pursued by him; and, provided he shall have satisfactorily accounted for all the books and other property committed to him, and shall have maintained a good character, he shall, on so leaving the Academy, receive such diploma; but no student shall receive a certificate of dismission if he be dismissed for misconduct; and, in each certificate, it shall be stated that he is furnished with a statement of his standing in the Academy, as it shall appear on the records during his whole connection with the Academy.

OFFICERS OF INSTRUCTION AND GOVERNMENT.

The studies are pursued under the following academic officers, appointed by the Board of Education:

The Principal, who shall be Professor of Moral, Intellectual, and Political Philosophy.

- A Professor of English Language and Literature.
- A Professor of the Latin and Greek Languages and Literature.

FORMATION OF WARDS.

In 1683, the city of New York was divided into six wards, under the designation of "South," "Dock," "East," "North," "West," and "Out" Wards; for map showing the boundaries of these wards, see page 212 of Manual of the Common Council for 1848.

The Montgomerie Charter, dated January 15th, 1730, designates, in addition to the above, the boundaries of the "Montgomerie" Ward.

By an act of the colonial government, passed February 28th, 1791, the wards are designated numerically from 1 to 7, and the bounds of each described.

By an act of the Legislature, passed March 8th, 1803, the wards are increased to nine, numerically designated, and boundaries described.

The Tenth ward was creeted from the Seventh, by act of March 18th, 1808.

The Eleventh and Twelfth wards were formed, and the boundaries of all described, by an act passed April 25th, 1825. (Chap. 195, Laws of 1825).

13th ward was erected from the 10th ward. Act April 6, 1827.

THE BATTERY.

THE south point of the island, in its natural condition, extended to about the present line of State street; and its condition, after the town had been settled by families about thirty years, is shown by the following sketch, taken from a drawing made in 1656.

VIEW OF THE SITE OF THE PRESENT BATTERY, IN 1656.

The present inclosure is all beyond the original water-line, and the early condition of the adjacent lands is not strictly within the limits of a description of the improvements in that section; but it may be mentioned that the most notable improvement adjacent to the present lattery was the erection of a private mansion by Governor Stuyvesant in the year 1658. This was designed for his private residence, and was considered in its time as the principal effort made by private enterprise towards beautifying the city.

GOV. STUYVESANT'S HOUSE, ERECTED 1658, AFTERWARDS CALLED "THE WHITEHALL."

In the Dutch records the following mention is made of this building :

Thursday, 14th February, 1658. "The Heer Nicasius De Sille and the Heer Peter Tonneman handed the Heeren Burgomasters a certain petition from the Heer Director-General, reading as follows:

[&]quot; To the Right Honorable Lords Councillors of N. Netherland, and the W. Burgomasters of the City Amsterdam therein:

[&]quot;Petrus Stuyvesant, your Honors' petitioner, represents in due form to the Lords Councillors, to whom it appertains to grant the patent, also to the Burgomasters, to whom the conveyance of lots is surrendered, that he, as your Honors are aware, fenced, dammed, and raised up, at great cost and labor, out of the water and swamp, certain abandoned lots, granted in the year 1647, by the Heer Kieft, your petitioner's predecessor in quality as Director-General, to one Jan Pietersen, and conveyed by him or his attorney to one Thomas Baxter, a bankrupt and fugitive from this province, in consequence of great indebtedness, and who, during the troubles with the English, likewise plundered divers of the inhabitants of this province; on which lot, now that about eight or nine thousand loads of sand are ridden (and even then it is not high enough), the petitioner has erected an expensive and handsome building." Petitioner requests a confirmation of his title.

To this the Burgomasters replied as follows: "Whereas, the Director-General and Council have been pleased to grant to the city all vacant and ungranted lots, and the Heer General has ornamented the place described with a handsome building, and requests due conveyance, we cannot refuse it, but approve it and land it."

In October, 1693 (war then existing with France), the Common Council were called upon, by Governor Fletcher, to furnish eighty-six cords of stockadoes, twelve feet in length, for the purpose of building a battery "on the point of rocks under the fort;" in pursuance of which, the Mayor issued his proclamation, requiring the Aldermen of the country wards "to call together all and every the respective inhabitants of the Out Ward, and of Manning's and Barn's Islands," with a view to agree upon the terms of furnishing the stockadoes. A bargain was made with several of those inhabitants, and their "companies," to supply them.

The question of paying for these articles, however trifling the amount may seem at the present day, produced a very considerable discussion, which is to be ascribed, no doubt, to the state of political excitement arising out of the "Leislerian troubles," which then raged rampant in the whole body politic. Probably there were many, both in and out of authority, who would willingly have cooperated to subject the country to French or any other rule, if it had not been for the perils of treasonable acts.

Upon the report of the Aldermen having in charge the matter of furnishing stockadoes, stating the price at which they could be furnished (something over fifty pounds), a majority of the Common Council objected that it would be necessary to raise a tax for the expense, and that the charter did not give the city authority for that purpose. Upon this the Common Council were summoned to attend the Governor, in Council, and there the same objection was made. Insinuations appear to have been thrown out against the loyalty of the city authorities; and after a somewhat excited conference, the Common Council returned to the City Hall, and it was resolved, "by a majority of votes, that the cutting and paying for the stockadoes for the building of a platform on the point of rocks, for the defense of the city, is not a county charge, but, numine contra dicente, the Board are of opinion that the said platform is a necessary work."

They subsequently resolved, that the easiest way of raising funds, to pay for the stockadoes, will be by a tax on the inhabitants, which they were willing to lay, if the Governor and Council declare in writing that the Common Council is enabled to do so by virtue of Protesting their loyalty, they drew up a formal demand that the Governor and Council render a written opinion and judgment upon the powers of the Common Council in that respect. To this an answer was given, as follows: "His Excellency and the Council are of opinion that it is a power natural to every body politic, by the very act of incorporation, to do all those reasonable acts that are necessary for the continuance of their being, and accordingly, to impose a tax, or other levy, on the respective members of such body, for the carrying on and effecting all such matters the representatives of a corporation judge necessary for the good and advantage of the body politic, be it for its civil defense or otherwise. and that it is lawful for any private corporation to raise money upon its respective members, according to the proportion of their interest in the same, for its military defense, whenever the government under which it has its being is pleased to give leave."

The magistrates, having no further excuse, ordered a levy of 3d. on the pound towards the object indicated.

In November, 1734, a bill being before the General Assembly "for erecting a battery on Capsey Rocks," under the authority of the Colonial Government, a clause was inserted, with the consent of the City Government, as follows: "To the end that when the battery shall be so built, it may not be rendered useless, by buildings which may blind and encumber the same, be it enacted that no houses or edifices shall be built on the river, or on parts which overflow with water, between the west part of the battery, or Capsey Rocks, to Ells Corner, on the Hudson River" (present Marketfield street).

THE BATTERY IN 1746.

The Battery was used exclusively for military purposes until after the Revolution. About the year 1692, measures were taken for filling up, inclosing, and adorning the place as a public park, to which purpose it has been devoted since that period.

ERECTION OF PUBLIC MARKETS.

The following extracts from the records indicate the measures taken towards the establishment of public markets.

A temporary shambles, having a block in it for the convenience of country people bringing meat to sell in the city, was erected prior to 1658.

April, 1659, the Burgomasters resolved "to erect a meat market, and cover it with tiles, to have a block brought therein, and to leave the key with Andries the baker, who shall have temporary charge thereof." The location of this market was in the green, in front of the fort (now Bowling Green).

It was further resolved, that "the market for live cattle shall be beside the churchyard (Broadway, west side, above Morris street), where some stakes shall be fixed."

In January, 1660, a general cattle fair was provided for, and publication made thereof, as follows: "Be it known to all persons, that the Burgomasters of the city of New Amsterdam, in New Netherland, intend to open a market in said city, for store and fat cattle, steers, cows, sheep, goats, hogs, bucks, and such like, and, to that end, stalls shall be built. Said market shall be opened on the 20th of October and end on the last day of November in each year, during which time it shall remain a free market, and no stranger shall then be liable to arrest."

January, 1677—" Whereas, a weekly market in this city has been thought necessary for the convenience of the inhabitants, for which purpose a suitable house is now being built by the water-side, near the bridge and weigh-house, it is hereby made known to all, that said market shall begin on the 24th day of March next, and so continue every Saturday following for three years."

On the expiration of those three years, the market day was changed to Wednesday, and the market was continued for three years longer.

In 1683, three market days in each week were established, viz.: on Tuesday, Thursday, and Saturday.

In 1684, the market was removed from its former location (foot of Whitehall street) to the green in front of the fort. The old market-house was let as a place of storage for merchants' goods landed at the dock. The market-place in front of the fort was, for several years, the only one authorized for the sale of meat in the city. A resolution was passed to that effect as late as the spring of 1691, but in the course of that year it was ordered that there be two markets for flesh kept in the city, viz.: one on Broadway, opposite the fort, and the other under the trees by the slip (present Hanover square).

It was further ordered, at that time, that fish be brought for sale to the dock opposite the City Hall, or "the house that long Mary formerly lived in; likewise herbs, fruits, roots, &e."

Some idea of the kind of building used for the principal market at that period may be inferred from an order made in 1694, that, "the market-house or shed in Broadway be let to Henry Crossly, butcher, for seven years, at one pound per annum, he to keep it in good repair."

The subject of improving the character of these edifices was agitated about this period, and a plan was adopted by which the city was saved the expense of crecting the necessary buildings. This was by the inhabitants of different sections of the city, adjacent to the prosed market, contributing the fund for its crection, the building to be maintained and kept in repair by the neighbors, a certain rent to be paid to the city, and the building to revert to the city after a long term of lease, in some cases extending to fifty years. In this manner a two-story building, constructed of stone, was crected at the foot of Broad street, in the year 1700, by the inhabitants of the South Ward. Two others were constructed, upon the same system, about the same time—one at Burger's path (Hanover square), and another at the foot of Maiden lane.

The old market-house in Broadway was, however, still standing, as we find it was let for five years from the year 1702.

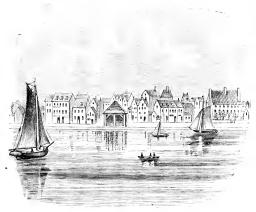

On the same system of constructing markets by private subscription of the neighborhood, a market was erected in 1706 by the inhabitants of Queen street. This was situated at the foot of Maiden lane, and was long known as "the Fly Market."

In 1709 a market was permitted to be erected at the foot of Wall street. This market was afterwards (1726) appropriated, for a time, exclusively for the sale of corn and meal, and was hence commonly known as the Meal Market. It was also the established place where "slaves stood for sale or to be let to hire."

A new system for governing public markets was established in the year 1735, by an ordinance which recited, that—whereas, the markets of the city were chiefly supplied by country people with victuals and provisions, by water carriage, as the tide and wind permitted, by reason whereof no particular times or days could conveniently be appointed for holding said markets, it was ordered that thereafter every day in the week (Sundays excepted) be appointed public market days, from sunrise to sunset, when country people might resort in the markets then named, viz.: at the market-house at the slip, commonly called Coenties Dock (Coenties slip); at the market-house at the old slip, commonly called Burgher's Path (now Old slip); at the market house at the lower end of Wall street; and at the market-house at Countess Key (present Maiden lane).

A Standing Committee of the Common Council was appointed, to have full charge of the markets, and to contract for letting stalls to butchers.

Under this arrangement, the seven stalls at the Old slip market were let for an aggregate of forty-six pounds, and those of Fly Market (seven stalls) were let for twenty-nine pounds per annum.

THE MEAL AND SLAVE MARKET, FOOT OF WALL STREET, 1746.

In 1738, the market occupying the centre of Broadway, near Maiden lane, long known as the Oswego market, was crected. A petition was presented in April of that year, by the inhabitants of the West Ward (which was on the North River side of the city), stating that most of the inhabitants of that section lived at a great distance from any of the public markets; and as there were country people who came from Hackensack, Tappaan, and other places up the North River, they asked leave to erect a market-house forty-two feet in length and twenty-five feet in width, in the middle of Broadway, "fronting the street in which the Chief Justice lives" (probably Maiden lane), "and opposite to Crown street" (now Liberty street). This petition being considered, and "the place being found convenient," it was granted. In 1746, twenty-one feet were added to the south end of this market.

At about the same time that the market was erected in the middle of Broadway, another was built in the middle of Broad street, by the inhabitants of the Dock Ward. This was situated near the present Exchange place. But it was not of so long duration as its rival in Broadway. In 1742, the system of leasing out all the stalls in the markets to one lessee, to be by him sub-let, was adopted. Under this system, the city realized, in 1743, £98; in 1744, £105; in 1753, £151; in 1760, £245.

Oswego Market, in Broadway, enjoyed a prosperous existence for over thirty years; but the increasing population of the city, and the amount of travel, rendered it a great public inconvenience, occupying, as it did, a great portion of the width of one of the principal streets. Its continuance had been opposed by an influential class of citizens during many years, but unsuccessfully, inasmuch as business interests had grown up around the locality, which would be greatly affected by the removal of the market, and a strong party advocated its continuance.

In 1771, however, the building was presented by the Grand Jury as a nuisance. In their indictment, they state that the building was, at that period, one hundred and fifty-six feet long, and twenty-feet three and a half inches wide. The Common Council resolved to traverse the indictment, and maintain the market, and applied to James Duane, Esq., to act as counsel in that behalf; but this gentleman declined. They then sought to engage Samuel Jones, Esq., who asked time to consider, and finally gave his opinion that the indictment could not be successfully defended, and advised that the building be taken down. This, however, the Corporation refused to do, and concluded to let the Court act as it thought proper.

Longer reflection, however, produced a modified state of feeling, and projects for a new location were brought under consideration. The three localities which received the strongest support were the Fields or Commons (present Park), Mesier's dock, on the North River (at which a small market had been previously built by private subscription), the foot of Dey street, and the Corporation lots foot of Vesey street. The question on the "Fields" was negatived in the Common Council by a vote of four to eleven. The Dey street locality was also lost by a vote of one to fourteen. The question being then reduced to Mesier's dock and the Corporation lots, the former received six votes, the latter nine. The locality chosen is the present site of Washington Market. The size of the building adopted was one hundred and sixty-six feet long and twenty-eight feet wide.

In order to render our account of the erection of markets full up to the time of the Revolution, it may be mentioned that in addition to those before named, leave was given in 1763 to William Walton and others to erect a market at Peck slip.

THE GREAT DOCK.

As the part of the city earliest populated, and where the principal trade was carried on, was that along the shore of the East River, or the "Roadstead," as it was called, it was natural that the attention of the authorities should be directed towards its improvement at an early period; and the progressive character of their labors in that direction will be treated upon in the order in which the several projects for that purpose were brought into action.

Before the city was granted a municipal government (which was in the year 1653), no improvement or alteration of the natural condition of the shore was made whatever, except the construction of a small wharf for the landing of row-boats. The precise locality of that wharf was on the present site of Moore street. Between that place and the southerly point of the island was a beach, commonly called "the Strand," having a number of large rocks exposed at low water.

THE POSITION OF THE ORIGINAL WHARF, FROM MAP, 1601.

In 1653 the Government granted to the city liberty to erect a weigh-scales at the wharf, with power to make regulations as to the weighing of goods, and also as to the sealing and stamping of weights and measures, the profits of which were to accrue to the city; and after this period improvements began to be made in that vicinity.

In July, 1659, the city magistrates published a placard, to the following effect—that, "whereas, the Burgomasters and Schepens have received from the Director-General and Councillors authority to take from traders and skippers, for the erection of a pier and the benefit thereof, eight stuyvers per last for loading and discharging at the aforesaid pier, and for less quantities in proportion, of which the skippers shall pay one-third and the owners of the goods two-thirds; therefore all such persons are required to pay their quota to the proper officer."

With the funds thus provided, the pier was extended, in the year 1659. It was commonly called, in the language of that day, the "Hooft." In the following year, it was still further extended by an addition of four rods; for which labor the contractor received 225 guilders ($100) and a half-barrel of beer.

A curious proposition is found in connection with the "hooft" fees, which seems to indicate that it was contemplated at the time to surround the city with a stone wall, after the manner of the fortified towns of the middle ages in Europe. In October, 1661, it was proposed by the city magistrates, that, "whereas, the yachts trading op en aff' (off and on) are indebted for wharfage which they are equally liable to pay as well as the ships," it was proposed to ask the Director-General to order them, in lieu of wharfage, to go, each of them, one or two voyages to Tappaan, and bring thence full loads of stone, in order to surround the city, in course of time, with a wall. By the year 1667, it would appear that still further improvements had been made to the wharf, as it is recited that, "whereas, the city has been at very great expense in renewing and repairing the pier, that the rates of wharfage be established as follows:

"On goods landed from ships, five stuyvers per last.

"On goods placed there to be shipped—for each hogshead of tobacco or sugar, two stuyvers; for furs and peltries of one hundred beavers in value, twenty stuyvers; for dye woods, twelve stuyvers per ton."

A view of the easterly side of the city, about the year 1667, shows the form of the dock, as follows:

THE DOCK AND RIVER FRONT TO WALL STREET, 1667.

In the year 1675-6, it was proposed to build a new dock, embracing a large inclosure, and extending up to the City Hall. This was a measure involving considerable expense, the means to defray which were found partly in the sales of lots adjacent, and partly in the collection of wharfage. £180 were levied on transient traders to this port; and a permanent regulation, as to rates of wharfage, was established, whereby an anchorage fee was charged for vessels lying in the roads and landing their goods on the wharf; and for small vessels lying within the dock, rates of dockage were charged, proportionable to the size of the vessels. This dock appears to have been completed about the year 1683.

In the year 1687, fourteen lots were sold, producing the sum of four hundred and seventy pounds, and the surveyors were ordered to survey this ground, "lying in and near the dock, beginning from the weigh-house (present Moore street) to the City Hall, and to lay the same out in lots, eighty in depth, unto the dock, and about twenty-four feet wide, leaving sufficient space for the street." They were also instructed to lay out a street on a range with and as an extension of the Heere graft, with a convenient inlet in the middle, for the water to flow up to the channel of the graft. The street to be made along the new lots was, in 1687, ordered to be called the Dock street (now Water street).

As an indication of the extent of the shipping and boating interest belonging to this port at the time of the construction of the dock, it may be mentioned that a return of such vessels, made in 1683, showed that there were three barks, three brigantines, twenty-six sloops, and forty-eight open boats.

The purchasers of the lots before mentioned were required "to build a good and substantial stone wall, three and a half feet broad at the bottom, and to batter one foot inward on the outside, and to defend the same from rubbing of boats by driving spiles or stockadoes at every five feet distance, to be bound together by a plate at the top." It was further stipulated they were not to claim any interest in the street to be constructed in front of their premises, but the same was to remain for the use of the city.

A plan of the dock, as it existed in 1695, has been given in a map of that date, which exhibits it as follows:

The circumstance of this extension of building lots into the land naturally covered by water, is notable from its being the first of the gradual series of improvements afterwards made of that character. The particular limits of the lots so granted are shown upon the map; but, it may be added, that they embraced the present two blocks, one bounded by Moore, Pearl, Broad and Water streets, and the other bounded by Broad, Pearl and Water streets and Coenties slip.

On the shore opposite the City Hall was constructed a battery of five guns, and in the open space between that and the City Hall, in addition to the gallows (erected in 1660), in 1691 a cage, pillory, and stocks were added, and upon the wharf near by a ducking-stool was constructed; all these means of punishment being common in those days. In the year 1700, all of the dock west of the "bridge" or pier which extended into the dock, was ordered to be filled up.

In 1703, the dock was leased to John Ellison, at a rent of one pepper-corn for the first three years, and twenty-five pounds per annum for the last six years, he agreeing to build up the sides of the canal in Broad street, as far as the Fish Bridge.

In 1721, a Committee was appointed "to erect a substantial wharf on the west side of the dock, as far into the river as conveniently may be done between the dock and Whitehall." In 1731, the pier erected ten years previously, extending from the dock into the river, was extended one hundred feet further into the river, and formed one side of another dock, the old one having been nearly all obliterated by the march of improvements. Along Dock street, storehouses were erected, of a superior character. The vacant place west of the dock, which had laid open for many years, was proposed, about the date last mentioned, to be sold, in order that improvements might be made. Opposition to this had always been made by the inhabitants of the old "markvelt" fronting the vacant space, for the reason that to build upon the land would obstruct the "delight and advantage of the prospect;" and they also urged that the range of the guns on the south-east bastion of the fort would be impaired. This was a new question in the history of the city, for it was thought reasonable by many that the objections of those whose "delight" in the water prospect was to be taken away without their consent, were worthy of consideration. They did not avail, however, and the vacant ground was divided into seven lots, and sold at auction, producing the sum of thirteen hundred and forty-four pounds. It may be mentioned here that Jacob Leisler, a son of the patriot of that name, was one of the objectors, and probably was a merchant residing and doing business on the same premises occupied by his father fifty years previously.

VIEW OF THE GREAT DOCK, 1746.

The above view exhibits the appearance of the dock and adjacent buildings in the year 1746. It is unnecessary to pursue the history of the dock further with any minuteness. It soon began to lose its importance, from the erection of piers along the shore, east of it, by private individuals. The "Albany pier" built by Van Cortland, now forming the west side of Coenties slip, commenced at the outward part of the dock, and extended far out into the river; and on the west side of the dock the present Moore street was extended, as far as the present Front street, and the block between Front, Water, Whitehall and Moore streets was built up before the Revolutionary War. Still, at that period, the old dock still continued in existence, and occupied the blocks bounded by the present Water, Front and Moore streets, and Coenties slip. It was filled up soon after the Revolutionary War.

THE HEERE GRAFT.

A natural rivulet led from a swamp through the centre of the present Broad street, which at first was dug out, and made into the "Ditch," so called at that day. About the year 1657 it was resolved to plank the sides of the ditch, and make what was known in the old country as a "graft" or canal. The Burgomasters employed three laborers upon this work, who are found to have been at work in February, 1658. It seems to have been, at least in part, completed in the course of that year, as in March, 1659, the Under Sheriff was ordered "to take good care and superintendence on the newlyconstructed graft, that no filth be cast into it; and also, that the boats, canoes, and skiffs be placed in regular order therein."

The means of payment for this public improvement next engaged the attention of the authorities, and was the cause of not a little embarrassment.

At a final rendering of the accounts of the superintendents, in February, 1660, it appeared that the total expense incurred was about 2,800 guilders; and it was resolved by the Burgomasters to assess the amount upon the residents on the sides of the street. Commencing on the west side, at the river, they assessed up to the present Beaver street, as follows:

				Rods.	Feet.

On the opposite side, commencing at the south-east corner of the present Beaver and Broad streets, they assessed as follows:

						Rods.	Feet

The amount which each of these individuals was called on to pay was about 40 guilders ($16) per rod, for the fronts owned by them, and a great uproar was occasioned thereby. In June, 1660, the magistrates resolved to resort to severe proceedings, and notified all in default to appear before them.

Hendrick Willemsen, the baker, declared that he was profited nothing by the improvement, and refused to pay, whereupon he was ordered to the prison chamber.

Hans Dreper, living on the river shore, and having to sheet the front as well as the side, his assessment was reduced.

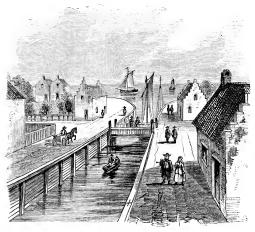

Jochem Beekman knew no reason why he should be taxed; was informed that it was even so, notwithstanding. Then, "Do what you may," he replied. He was ordered to the prison chamber.

Other objections of similar nature were made by various parties concerned, and finally the magistrates concluded to relieve the delinquents for the present. A part was taken in installments; the Provincial Government contributed 1,000 guilders, and the expense was finally defrayed.

In 1671, the canal was extended above its former limits, to near the present Exchange place, and the old graft was improved, under the following order: The residents along the graft are ordered to make it as follows:

- 1. From the water-side to the bridge opposite Stone street, in the same breadth and form as it was made before.
- 2. From the bridge to the corner of the lot of Jochem Beekman (Beaver street), to be finished in the same manner as Johannes Depeyster has already begun before his lot.
- 3. From the corner of Jochem Beekman to the corner of the lane at Jacob Kips, in the same form as the old graft.

VIEW OF THE "GRAFT," OR CANAL, IN BROAD STREET, AND THE FISH BRIDGE, 1659.

In May, 1676, it was ordered that "all the inhabitants living on the street called the Heere graft, shall, without delay, fill up the graft and make the same level with the street, and then to pave and pitch the same with stone."

Thus was one of the old landmarks which characterized the city under the enterprise of the Dutch rulers destroyed. The "graft" was, no doubt, necessary to the proper drainage of the section in which it was constructed, inasmuch as a swamp which received the waters from surrounding hills, occupied the upper part of Broad street, when in its natural condition. Even after the lapse of twenty years after the filling up of the graft, inconvenience from bad drainage is found to have existed; and in May, 1696, on a petition of the residents on the street, the subject of constructing a sever was considered, and referred to a committee for examination. In June of that year, the committee reported that they had taken the dimensions of the street through which it was proposed to construct the sewer, and found it to be "in length, from the corner of Mr. Le Boyteaux" (present Water street) "to the upper well, by Mrs. Van Vleck's" (Exchange place), "eleven hundred and fifty-eight feet," and computed the cost at fifteen shillings (English) per foot.

It seems, however, that to enable the City Corporation to carry out this measure, an act of the General Assembly was considered necessary, which was passed; and in 1703, upon another petition of the inhabitants of that section of the city, the construction of the work was completed. The extent to which this sewer ran up Broad street does not appear in the records, but it is always described as "the common sewer, at the lower end of Broad street." Cartmen were prohibited from driving across it, under a severe penalty. The sewer, as originally constructed, emptied into the "great dock," but in 1717 it was ordered that "it be carried through the dock to the outside thereof, so that it may empty itself into the river, and that a good and substantial bridge be made over said common sewer, from the market-house fronting the dock to the dock's mouth, and that there be an entrance-way into the dock on each side of the common sewer."

The original sewer through Broad street was probably constructed of wood, and it seems that the inhabitants along the street were generally under the necessity of making lateral drains, in order to relieve their cellars from water. In 1745, it was ordered that "the common sewer, at the lower end of Broad street, be newly built with stone."

In 1765, a petition of the inhabitants of Broad and Beaver streets stated that the common drains through those streets were decayed and useless, and asked that new drains be constructed.

PUBLIC ROADS.

ROAD TO HARLEM.

The Harlem Flats, which were considered a desirable agricultural section, were granted in farms at an early period; but the road thereto was a very poor one, as will be seen from the following measures for its improvement:

April, 1671: Whereas, the road between this city and the village of New Harlem is impassable, and it is necessary a road should be maintained, it is ordered that the overseers of roads and the magistrates of Harlem lay out a suitable road, and that it be made by the inhabitants of Harlem, in conjunction with those living on the other side of Fresh Water (Collect Pond), each within their respective limits.

February, 1672: Whereas, the road to New Harlem is still unfinished, and many complaints have been made, even that people lately wishing to travel over that road on horseback have been in danger of losing their lives by the bad condition of the road, therefore overseers are appointed to urge the inhabitants to go on with the work, and to impose fines for neglect.

In 1673, instructions were given to the overseers of fences, from which it appears that the road previously ordered had been finished; and inasmuch as it was found that much of the land along it lies within one fence, and without partition fences between the several owners, it was ordered that cattle should not be pastured on such lands until the crops be removed.

From the olden time a bridge had existed crossing "the Fresh Water," by which name the brook which emptied the waters of the Collect Pond into the East River (north of present Pearl street) was known. This bridge was made anew in 1695, at a cost of one pound sixteen shillings.

In 1707, in pursuance of an act of Assembly, commissioners for laying out highways reported the plan of the road to Harlem, as follows:

To begin at the Spring Garden gate (Broadway, near Fulton street), to the Fresh Water, the course being east by north; thence, by a small turning, to the tree in the highway upon the hill (head of Chatham square), so along the lane (Bowery) to the furthermost house in the same, the course being about north-north-east.

From the said last house the road to run along the fence upon the right hand, as the road now lies, to Kip's Runs (the brook emptying into Kip's Bay). From thence north-north-east, to the bridge beyond the hill; from thence to the corner of Turtle Bay farm, to the top of the next hill, about cast-north-east; from thence to the Sawkill bridge, north-east a little northerly; from Sawkill bridge along Mr. Codrington's fence to the half-way house, about north-east; from the bridge by the half-way house, the road to turn to the right hand, and so over the creek to Harlem. There was no bridge over Harlem River until about the time of the Revolutionary War. high road or Great Post-road to Boston crossed at the King's bridge, which was erected about the year 1690, by Frederick Philipse, the proprietor of Philipse manor. In 1774. Col. Lewis Morris represented to the City Corporation that the existing post-road between this city and East Chester was twenty miles in length, and passed over many high and steep hills; that the road, by way of Harlem, through Morrisania and Westchester, would be less than sixteen miles, and comparatively level, and that he and his neighbors in Westchester county would give land for the road; it would be desirable, however, to build a bridge over the Harlem River, and he asked consent of the Common Council for that purpose; which was granted.

KINGSBRIDGE ROAD.

This was an ancient road, and was the post-road for New England. It was re-surveyed in 1707, and new courses in some places were laid down. Its direction was the same as that mentioned for the Harlem road up to the half-way house; "from thence it runs along the lane to the next hollow, about north; from thence to Meyer's, northeast, and thence to the run by Barent Maldron's, north-north-east; from thence along the fence, and so by John Kierse's house, on the right hand, and so along as the road now lies, leaving the run of water on the left hand, until you come to the deep bridge; from thence along the foot of the hill, which is to the left about half a mile, then turning to the left, and leaving the swamp on the right hand, as the road now is, unto Nagel and Dyckman's farm; from thence, as the way now lies, leaving the fence on the west hand, through the ground of the said Nagel and Dyckman, by the house where the said Dyckman doth now live, and over his bridge, and so forward, as the road now is, unto Kingsbridge, the main course being north, a little easterly."

THE BLOOMINGDALE ROAD.

This road was also laid down in 1707, by the following description: "From the house at the end of New York lane (present Bowery), there is likewise to be a road, turning to the left hand, the course being northerly, and so by Great Kills, and forward, as the road now lies, unto Tunis Edis's and Captain De Kay's, through said Edis's land."

In 1760, a road leading from Greenwich, to intersect the Bloomingdale road, was surveyed and established. This road was laid out four rods in width, and was constructed at the expense of the Corporation. It led past Captain Clarke's large mansion, called Chelsea.

THE MONUMENT ROAD.

The road commonly called by this name in the middle of the last century, was also established at a very early period, in the times of the Dutch. It led to Sapocanican, afterwards called Greenwich. Its description in the survey of 1707 is as follows: "From Rebecca's house, in New York lane (Bowery), there is to be a road, as it now lies, unto Greenwich, the said road running to the leftward of the house late of Captain Douwe, deceased."

THE GREENWICH ROAD.

The river road leading to Greenwich is not mentioned in the survey of roads in 1707, and probably did not exist previous to the year 1730, at which time improvements along the river shore, north of the swamp at Canal street, began to be made. It is found to have existed in 1760. It lay upon the line of the present Greenwich street.

CITY FORTIFICATIONS.

In expectation of a war with the people of New England, and of an assault upon the city, the authorities, in consideration that the fortress was not sufficient for the defense of the inhabitants and the protection of the houses, resolved it to be necessary "to inclose the greatest part of the city with upright palisades and small breastworks, so that, in case of necessity, all the inhabitants may retire within the inclosure, and, as far as possible, defend themselves and their property against attack."

This resolution was made on the 10th of March, 1653, and, for the purpose of raising funds, several of the principal inhabitants were called on for loans.

The people at once commenced the labor of digging entrenchments, all able-bodied men turning out for that purpose.

But different views were discussed in respect to the character of the defenses to be raised in front of the entrenchments. The first plan adopted was to erect a line of palisades, and proposals were published for estimates, as follows (13th March, 1653):

The palisades to be in length 12 feet.

The palisades to be in diameter 6 feet.

To be sharpened at the top, and placed in a line, close together.

At every rod a post of seven inches diameter, to which split rails should be nailed, at two feet distance from the top of the palisades.

The length of the whole work to be about 180 rods.

For this work several offers were made, at about 45 guilders ($18) per rod, but they were not deemed satisfactory. The authorities offered 25 guilders per rod, and that offer not being accepted, a different plan was proposed, which it was thought would answer the purpose and be more economical. The character of this plan (which was finally adopted) will be seen from the estimate of the expense then made:

340 posts will cost
Nails	100
Cartage and freight	120

which, it will be seen, is a saving of about one half less than the plan of the palisades.

On the 20th of March they issued proposals for 300 oak posts, 12 feet long and 7 inches diameter, to be delivered within fourteen days, either on "the strand" or at the "Beaver's path" (foot of Battery place).

The work was then proceeded with, and, in a document dated 21st July, 1653, it is said that "the citizens have surrounded the city on the land side with palisades, and have so far fortified it that they have now for three weeks ceased from the work." In one of the documents of a late day, it is said: "The walls were at first hastily built of sods, and afterwards set off by a curtain of planks." The expenses incurred in preparing for this war are stated to have amounted to about 7,000 guilders ($2,800), towards which the Government made some contributions, in the way of grants of several productive franchises to the city.

In 1656, it was resolved "to erect a large and suitable gate at the wall near the East River, according to the plan of Captain Coninck."

This very imperfect defensive work seems, notwithstanding its want of durability of structure and its occasional dilapidation from age, to have been maintained, probably with some improvements (though the character of such, if any there were, does not appear in the public records), for nearly twenty years after its first erection.

After the capture of the city by the English, a proposition was made on the part of the city authorities, in consideration "that the city is very open and defenseless, that the people be called together to consult upon improving the defenses;" but the result of this suggestion does not appear.

In 1673, however, on the occasion of the recapture by the Dutch, it seems that the walls were renewed in a more substantial manner, upon the Governor's recommendation that "the fortifications of the city be proceeded with as the engineer shall order and stake out." This new structure was upon the old line along the present Wall street; and the city at that time had grown so considerably, that the work was "obstructed by the houses, gardens, and orchards. which lie so close under its walls and bulwarks, that it is impossible, when requisite, to defend it against its enemies, unless some, at least, of said houses, gardens, and orchards be demolished or removed." Thereupon an order was made that other lots should be given to the owners, upon which they might remove their buildings, and arbitrators should be appointed, to settle upon an indemnity for the loss incurred. The "houses, gardens, and orchards" indicated in this order, were situated both without and within the walls, but all within a short distance from them. The owners of houses thus removed were Gerrit Jansen Roos, Peter Stoutenberg, Henry Taylor, the Lutheran Congregation, Peter Jansen Mesier, Martin Meyer (smith), Augustyn Heermans, Lysbet Teysen, Peter Harmensen. The gardens and orchards of Johannes Van Brugh and Sarah Kierstede were also included.

For the purpose of raising funds to indemnify these losses, the proceeds of an extra impost were allowed to the city, viz.: on exports of beavers and peltries, two and a half per cent.; on imports of duffels and blankets, two per cent.; on imports of powder, lead, guns, wines, brandies, distilled water, and rum, five per cent.

There was no occasion, however, for the use of these defensive works, as the city was finally surrendered to the English by treaty between England and Holland.

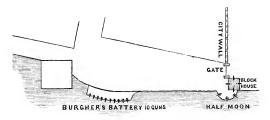

THE BLOCK-HOUSE AND CITY GATE (FOOT OF PRESENT WALL STREET), 1674.

The walls stood for nearly twenty years afterwards, without material alteration, viz., until the year 1692, at which period a war existed between Great Britain and France, and measures were taken to renew the dilapidated works.

A committee which had been appointed to survey the works around the city, and make an estimate of the expense of repairing them, reported that they had had the assistance of some of the militia captains, and computed the cost of making necessary repairs at £200, exclusive of the cost of "great guns, powder, and shot."

At this period (1692) all the inhabitants not listed in the train bands were required to work on the fortifications, under a penalty. Block-houses were erected, as advance works, on the opposite side of the valley of the Maiden's path. One of these stood near the Governor's garden, at Broadway and the present Fulton street. Two stone bastions were also erected on the line of the walls, one of which stood at the present corner of Wall and William streets, and the other at the corner of Broadway. These were distinctively called "Hollandia" and "Zealandia."

GROUND PLAN NEAR THE CITY GATE, 1695.

The final demolition of the "city wall," along Wall street, after it had existed nearly half a century, occurred at the close of the seventeenth century.

In August, 1699, the Common Council petitioned the Governor and Council, representing that "the former line of fortification that ranged along the Wall street, from the East River to the North River, together with the bastions that were thereon erected, are fallen to decay, and the encroachments of buildings which have been made adjacent thereto will render the same useless for the future; and the city, proposing with all speed to build a new City Hall, at the end of one of the principal streets fronting to the aforesaid line of fortifications, pray his Excellency that the said fortifications be demolished, according to the powers and authority intrusted to him, and that the stones of the bastions, with the consent of the owners thereof, may be appropriated to building the said City Hall."

But other defenses were soon made necessary. In May, 1706, the Common Council petitioned the Governor (Cornbury), representing "the imminent danger we conceive the city to be in from an invasion by the common enemy (the French), who, we fear, have committed great depredations upon the islands of Nevis, St. Christopher's and Montserrat, and the apprehensions we have that they will attempt the destruction of this flourishing city and province, which at this time are incapable of making a vigorous defense, by reason of our fortifications being wholly out of repair, our artillery dismounted, and our inhabitants not so completely armed as so great an emergency requires; and we do therefore humbly request that the repairing of said fortifications be ordered, and the making of others in convenient places."

It was considered necessary, for the object above indicated, that an act of Assembly should be passed, which was accomplished; and in accordance with its provisions the City Government ordered, in July, 1696, that "whensoever there shall be occasion for making or repairing the fortifications, the inhabitants on the south side of the Fresh Water (Collect Brook), shall be compelled, by themselves or substitutes, to work on the fortifications by equal turns, the Crier of the city to give notice, by beat of drum, when the different sections shall be required, at which time each one shall appear with a good spade, shovel, axe, or pick-axe, or other necessary tool to labor, as the overseers shall direct."

The excitement prevalent at this period was strengthened by advices from Antigna, received in the same month (July, 1706), that "four French privateers are sailed out of Martinique, and also that Mons. Deberville, with a strong squadron of ships of war, designs speedily to attack this city and province."

During several years after this period, although no attempt was made by the French to assail the city, the inhabitants were kept in readiness for labor, by the re-enactment of the law just quoted; but it is probable their active services were not called into requisition.

In after-time troubles, the Colonial Government, within whose functions the subject of public defense properly lay, generally assumed the burden of providing for the fortification of the city, and the city authorities were relieved, to a great extent, from active participation in measures of this character.

It may be mentioned, however, that in the war with the French, about the middle of the last century, extensive fortifications were erected for the defense of the city; among them was a palisade across the city, ranging not far from the present line of Chambers street. This work was carried on under the authority of the Colonial Government. An extensive building for barracks was, however, erected by the Corporation on the line of the present Chambers street, north of the Park. For this purpose, three thousand five hundred pounds were raised by tax, about the year 1757. These barracks were two stories high, twenty-one feet wide, and four hundred and twenty feet long. It contained twenty rooms on each floor. It continued to be used for military purposes until after the Revolutionary War, when, having become useless, it was sold at auction. This was called the "upper" barracks, in contradistinction to the "lower" barracks, which were on the Battery, on a line with the present State street, near Whitchall street.

CLEANING STREETS.

In the early times of the Dutch, no public orders relating to cleaning the streets appear to have been made, if we except that which was promulgated in the year 1658, which recited the too prevalent custom of building hog-pens and privies along the streets, with openings on the highway, left that the hogs, which roamed the public thoroughfares, performing the duty of seavengers, might enter and consume the filth. Indeed, the city was in existence three-fourths of a century, apparently without measures being taken, on the part of the public authorities, towards an organized system of street cleaning.

The first mention in the records relating to this subject appears in year 1695, in the following words: "Mr. Vanderspeigle, having considered concerning cleaning the streets, proposes to undertake, for a year from the 1st May, inst., to supervise the cleaning of the streets, for the sum of thirty pounds."

In March, 1699, a committee was appointed to agree with a scavenger for cleaning the streets, and the town-crier was required to give notice every Saturday morning to the inhabitants to clean the streets and sweep the dirt in heaps before their respective doors.

In May, 1701, the Assistant Aldermen of the different wards were instructed to call on the several inhabitants in their respective wards, and ascertain what they are willing to pay towards cleaning the streets and carrying away the dirt; but this method not meeting with a proper response on the part of the inhabitants, an order was made in the same month that the inhabitants of the city, on every Friday, sweep the dirt in heaps before their respective premises, in order that it be carted away on Saturday by the city cartmen. To compensate the latter, the inhabitants were ordered to pay them for every load three pence, if loaded by the inhabitants themselves; and sixpence, if the cartmen load it. The only street cleaned at public expense was Broad street; to this street much of the dirt was washed from other streets, by rains, and it was not considered just to compel the inhabitants to maintain its cleanliness. A public scavenger was appointed for this purpose, who received a salary of about forty dollars per annum.

THE BOWLING GREEN.

The Bowling Green was the first public park established. In March, 1733, it was resolved by the Common Council "that the piece of land lying at the lower end of Broadway, fronting the fort, be leased to some of the inhabitants of Broadway, in order to be inclosed to make a Bowling green, with walks therein, for the beauty and ornament of the said street, as well as for the recreation and delight of the inhabitants of this city, leaving the street, on each side, fifty feet wide;" and in October, of the following year, it was resolved that the Bowling Green, as now fenced, be leased to Frederick Philipse, John Chambers, and John Roosevelt, for ten years, for a bowling green only. These lessees were public-spirited gentlemen, who had inclosed the square and engaged to keep it in repair for the public enjoyment.

The establishment of this ornamental park served to improve the character of the buildings fronting it on the west side. In May, 1745, it was ordered that the line of the street in that locality (which was irregular) be straightened between the houses of Augustus Jay (near Morris street), and the house of Archibald Kennedy (corner of Marketfield street), and that Mr. William Smith, who proposed to build, and others who might build, conform their lines thereto.

In 1747, it was ordered that a committee be appointed to have so much of the street around the Bowling Green and along the fence of the fort paved as they might see proper; and it is probable that no previous paving existed in that locality.

A few years previous to the Revolution, the Colonial Assembly resolved to procure from England a statue of the King (George III.). In 1770, the statue arrived here, and, by consent of the Common Council, it was erected in the Bowling Green. This was a period of intense excitement in the city, arising out of the political events which finally brought about the war. The King was extremely un-Although riots were of frequent occurrence, no opposition seems to have been made to the erection of this statue, notwithstanding its importation was felt to have a political significance. After its erection (in May, 1771), the Common Council resolved that, "Whereas, the General Assembly have been at great expense in bringing from England a statue of his Majesty and erecting it on the Bowling Green, and the Board considering that, unless said Green be fenced in, it will soon become the receptacle of all the filth and dirt from the neighborhood, it is ordered that an iron railing be erected around the Green, at an expense of eight hundred pounds."

During the war, the statue, which was of lead, was demolished, and run into bullets, for the use of the American forces.

After the peace, a new iron fence was raised around the Green, and it was leased to Chancellor Livingston, who ornamented it, at his own expense.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE EAST RIVER SHORE.

The City Tavern, built originally by the Government, which was afterwards (in 1653) granted to the city for a "stadt huys," or city hall, was erected near the natural shore of the river.

In November, 1654, the City Government were brought to the consideration of measures for the general protection of the shore in that vicinity, by the application of a carpenter, named Sybout Clasen, who resided on the shore west of the Stadt-huys, in which he complains that he is the only person who has attempted to protect the shore in front of his premises from the washing of tides; and "inasmuch as the sheet-piling before his house had fallen down during the late high water," he will not repair the same, unless his neighbors are required to make the same improvement; whereupon it was ordered, that "the gardens from the corner of the ditch" (present Broad street) "to the City Hall be all planked up by the respective owners;" and at the same time the sheeting in front of the City Hall may go on;" and for this purpose "Carel Van Brugh is to be notified by the court messenger to let him take from the hill before his lot, lying next the City Hall, as much earth as may be necessary for filling before the City Hall." This is the beginning of an important improvement, which occupied then, and subsequently, considerable attention, on the part of the city authorities. It was known in the language of the time as the "Schoeinge."

A general plan seems to have been adopted, after a survey by Capt. Koninck, and an order was made, about the year 1655, requiring all owners between the City Hall (Pearl street, head of Coenties slip) and the Water Gate (at the foot of Wall street), to build up sheetpiling in front of their premises. The following extracts from the minutes of the Burgomasters sufficiently show the progress of the work in the year 1656:

"March, 1656. Ordered, that as the sheet-piling before the City Hall is finished, the neighbors be required to finish the same before their lots, or it will be done by the city, and they will be assessed therefor.

"June, 1656. Resolved, That those having charge thereof be ordered to complete, with all diligence, the survey of the sheet-piling before their houses and lots.

"September, 1656. Whereas, the sheeting in front of the City Hall and before the Water 'poort' (gate) is finished, and is begun in other places, and it is deemed expedient, not only for the welfare of the city in general, but of the neighbors resident along the beach in particular, that the sheeting be completely erected and finished: the Burgomasters therefore order and give notice to all those having houses or lots between the 'poort' and the City Hall, that they properly line their lots with sheet planking, according to the survey, to be finished by 17th December next, under penalty of twenty-five florins; and in case of default, the work to be done by the city, at the expense of such as are in default."

An illustrative view of the Schoeinge at this period, extending from the City Hall up to the present Hanover square, is herewith presented.

The sheet-piling, as thus constructed, seems, however, to have answered but a temporary purpose as, in 1672, measures were in progress for building up a stone wall along the shore, instead of the plank sheathing. That the old work was then in a state of great dilapidation seems obvious from the following order:

"September, 1672. Whereas, the highway on the water side, between the City Hall and Tryntje Clock's (corner of Pearl street and Hanover square), is so washed away that the passengers are in danger of some mischief, and it is therefore necessary that the said highway be repaired and made level, it is ordered that the owners of houses fronting on the highway shall cause a footpath of six feet in width to be placed before their premises within four weeks; and for the filling up of the rest, the Magistrates will take some course by which the owners shall be assisted by the town." This was the first footpath or sidewalk constructed in the city. The plan of improvement, at this period, embraced the construction of half-moons or batteries in two places on the shore, between the City Hall and the Water Gate. One of these is designated as "before the house where long Mary lives."

In connection with the subject of the "Great Dock," we have noticed the commencement of the first street, which was made by eneroaching on the natural shore line. This street was built through the dock, and was called Dock street (present Water street, from Whitehall to Broad street).

By the charter of 1686 (Dongan's Charter), the city was granted the land under water, from high to low water-mark, all around the island. Soon after this period, it was determined to bring the land into the market.

The lots first sold by the city were about forty feet front, and a provision was made in the grants that the purchasers should fill up the front of their lots with one entire house, to be full two stories in height above the ground, and the front to the street to be of brick or stone. With these conditions, the lots from Burger's path to the block-house (foot of Wall street), were sold about the year 1692, and soon after the premises began to be improved.

At this period a speculative impulse seems to have pervaded the community, and provision was made for the extension of the new street as far as the present Fulton street. The various steps taken for this purpose will be enumerated in their order.

May, 1692: It was ordered that a committee sell the several lots between the block-house and Mr. Beekman's. That the former streets of King street (now Pine), Green lane (now Maiden lane), and Mrs. Van Clyff's (now John street), be left open to low water-mark.

August, 1692: The committee reported that they had sold at auction twenty-seven lots, on the following conditions: that the purchasers should be obliged to build a wharf or street, the outer part whereof to be laid out to low water-mark (present Water street), the same to be thirty feet wide, and to be laid in a frame with stockadoes, to be finished by 1st November, 1693. When the said street or wharf should be finished, it should remain a free passage as all other streets, each owner to keep his particular part of the wharf in repair, and, in consideration thereof, should reap the benefit of the wharf.

The purchasers of these lots were as follows:

Major Merritt, two lots, at .				61
The Mayor, five lots, at				153	10
George Heathcote, one lot, at				38	10

Captain Clarke, five lots, at .			135
Dirck Vandenberg, three lots, at			59 - 5
Capt. Nich. D. Morrice, one lot, at			-26 - 10
Mr. Morrice, one lot, at			23 10
Captain Schuyler, two lots, at			44
Colonel Cortland, three lots, at .			53

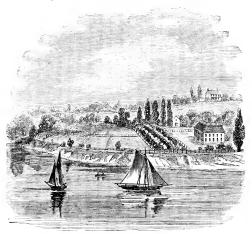

It was further agreed that the city would make the following wharts: one fronting King street, to be thirty feet wide; one on each side of Maiden slip, twelve feet wide, running to high watermark, and one on each side of the slip at Mrs. Van Clyff's, twelve feet wide. The slips to be twenty-four feet wide.

The progress of improvements on the East River side of the city was far in advance of those on the North River side. The ship-yards were situated on the East River, and the march of population set steadily forward in that quarter. Even the swamps were early laid out into streets. Wolfert's meadow, covering the present Roosevelt, James, and adjacent streets, was bought by speculators, and streets laid out before the middle of the last century, while, at the same period, all above the present Fulton street, on the other side, was in farm land. The owners of Wolfert's meadow were Rutgers, Roosevelt and Bancker, who applied for a water grant in front of their property as early as 1744; and a few years subsequently, the Rutgers farm, extending from the meadow nearly to Corlears Hook, was laid out in building lots.

As to the construction of South street, it was not commenced until after the Corporation had procured the charter of 1730 (Montgomeric's). This gave them an additional four hundred feet into the river, and grants were made extending as far as the present South street, within a few years subsequent to the grant of the charter; and South street was constructed, in certain places, before the Revolution

STREET REGULATING AND PAVING.

Before commencing to regulate and pave the streets, it was necessary, from the very irregular manner in which the houses were constructed, in reference to lines of thoroughfares, that a survey should be made, and permanent lines of streets be laid down. In reference to this survey, we find that in February, 1656, the Government was engaged in considering the plans submitted to them by the surveyor, and at that time they resolved to confirm the plan so submitted "from then and thenceforward."

In the same month inspectors were appointed to mark out the lines of buildings to be erected.

In January, 1658, it was resolved, that, "whereas, the inhabitants of Brower street (now Stone street) have represented that said street has been for some time impassable, and they are disposed to pave it with cobble stones, as well for ornament as for use, which the magistrates acceding to, overseers shall be appointed to contract for the stones, so as to make a beginning in the spring," and the expense was to be assessed on the residents.

This was the first street paved, but within the next half-dozen years most of the streets were paved in the same manner.

The pavement alluded to was without sidewalks, and the water ran off along the centre of the street.

The first sidewalk (then called a "strooke)" was that before mentioned in connection with the sheet-piling along the East River. But that was a local necessity. Sidewalks were not customary in streets for several generations subsequent to the period now spoken of.

The system of paving in existence in 1693 may be inferred from the following order, made in that year:

"Forasmuch as the former orders, made for paving the streets, have been much neglected, whereby citizens and sojourners are much annoyed, and intercourse of trade among the inhabitants greatly lessened; for the better regulation thereof, it is ordered, that every inhabitant in the streets hereinafter mentioned, shall, before the 1st of August next, cause to be paved, with pebble-stones, so much of said street as shall front their respective premises.

"Bridge street, from Lucas Kierstede's to Peter Delanoy's, ten feet from the front of each house.

"The whole of said street, from Peter Delanoy's to the middle of Broad street.

"From Mr. Cortland's corner (present Broad and Pearl streets) to the City Hall, ten feet from the fronts of the houses. From the City Hall to Martin Clock's (corner Pearl and William), ten feet; and so from the corner of Mr. Lewis' (William street and Hanover square) to the City Gate, ten feet.

"The houses facing the wall, up to the corner of Broad street, ten feet.

"The whole of Church street (Exchange place).

"The west side of Broad street to Ben. Devall's, ten feet.

"Broadway, on both sides, ten feet, down to Mr. Smith's (opposite the Bowling Green), on the west side, and to Lucas Kiersted's on the other.

"Beaver street to be repaired, ten feet on both sides."

From the foregoing order it will be seen, that some of the principal streets in the city were, at the period named, wholly without paving, and that none of the leading streets were paved more than ten feet from the fronts of the houses; that there were no sidewalks then paved distinct from the pebble-stone paving designed for vehicles, and that the middle of the street was without pavement.

The crude condition of the city in respect to its streets may also be inferred from an order made in 1691; that "the poisonous and stinking weeds before every one's door be forthwith plucked up."

In June, 1703, the street newly constructed along the river was ordered to be paved (present Water street); and at the same time, Flattenbarrack hill (Exchange place) was ordered for the first time to be paved. In 1707 Broadway was first paved, from Trinity Church to Maiden lane.

The system adopted for paving, at this period, was the same as formerly, viz.: by requiring the owners to pave before their respective premises. In their defau't, they were subject to a penalty, which could be enforced by suit. This system continued for many years subsequently, and it is believed that, up to the time of the Revolution, the "kennel" ran through the centres of the streets; and if sidewalks existed, they were the voluntary work of the adjacent owners; we find no regulations in the public ordinances concerning either their construction or repair.

We propose to give brief chronological statements of the various measures before the Common Council, for the regulating and paving of streets, as the city gradually progressed in growth:

1733. A petition of executors of Van Cortland and others, stating that they have laid out a street, and called the same Cortland street, and asking that it be made a public street; granted, and entered on record.

1749. Dey street was regulated and graded.

 $1750.\ {\rm A}$ Committee was appointed to lay out and pave Beekman and adjacent streets.

1750. Thames street was ordered to be paved. (This street had been made by Nicholas Bayard, as appears by the following proceedings: "Nicholas Bayard produces a draft of his lots between Trinity Church-yard and the Chief Justice's, and proposes that, if the Corporation will grant him a slip of ground on the south of his lot adjoining Trinity Church-yard, he would, in lieu thereof, leave a street on the north side of his lots twenty-one and a half feet wide, leading from Broadway to Comfort's Dock." This was agreed to by the Corporation.)

1757. A committee was appointed to lay out streets in North and Montgomerie Wards.

1760. A committee was appointed to regulate and pave Broadway, from Dev street to Division (now Fulton) street.

1761. Vesey and Division (now Fulton, west of Broadway) streets paved.

1761. Trinity Church ceded the streets on the King's Farm (from Broadway to the river, and from Fulton to Warren street).

1763. Part of Cliff street levelled and filled up.

1765. Committee to pave Roosevelt, James, Queen's (Pearl), and Rutgers (Madison) streets.

1769. Committee to regulate Crown street (now Liberty street).

1769. Vandewater street regulated.

BUILDING THE CITY HALL IN WALL STREET.

The time of erection of the building first used as a City Hall was in 1646. The position of the building is well known as being opposite the head of the present Coenties slip.

In 1695 we find the first complaints as to its insufficiency, through age and dilapidation, for the accommodation of the public service. A committee having been appointed to examine into its condition, reported in November of that year that it was in bad order, but that £150 would suffice to repair it and make it fit for use for "five or six years more." These repairs were ordered, and no further objection as to its sufficiency appears to have been made during the two subsequent years.

In October, 1697, the Mayor made a communication to the Common Council, setting forth that the next week the Supreme Court would sit, "at which several criminals" (probably Bayard and others, indicted for treason) "would be tried, to which trials it was supposed great numbers of people would resort, insomuch that it was feared the City Hall would not be of sufficient strength to sustain them." Upon this the Common Council ordered that certain masons and carpenters should examine the building, and give their opinion as to its sufficiency. The mason so appointed reported as his opinion that the walls were sufficient to sustain the concourse expected; and as to the carpenter work, the person designated on that subject was of opinion, that with six studs and a plank the building might be secured from any danger by falling.

These supports to the building were ordered to be made, and although the Supreme Court Judges made a special communication on the subject, representing, among other things, that several of the jurors who had been summoned had signified their determination not to answer to their names, by reason of the danger they would be in from sitting in the ruinous building, it seems the court was held as usual, and that no accident happened.

As early as May, 1696, the subject of creeting a new City Hall was agitated, and a committee was at that time appointed to make a draft of the proposed building and to estimate its cost, and to consider the means of defraying the expense. Upon the report of that committee, in June following, it was resolved that a new City Hall be built, and, as to the payment, that the rent of the Ferry should be mortgaged for fifteen years, that the old City Hall and its site should be sold, and certain lands belonging to the city, near the dock, should be offered in the market at nine pence per foot. By these financial measures it was estimated that three thousand pounds could be raised, which would finish a building, or a part of it, sufficient for present use.

In January, 1698, a committee, appointed for the purpose, reported the necessity of a new building, and that a site opposite the upper end of Broad street was the most eligible situation for it. A plan of the building, designed by James Evetts, was presented, and the site and plan were approved.

In the year following (1699), measures began to be taken for carrying this proposition into practical operation. It was resolved to sell the old City Hall and the ground on which it stood, reserving, however, the bell, the King's arms, and the iron-work belonging to the prison. This sale took place in August, 1699, at public auction, and the amount realized was £920, the purchaser being a merchant named John Rodman. The cage, pillory, and stocks, however, were permitted to remain in front of the old building for a year afterwards.

It would seem that the foundation stone of the new building was laid, with some ceremony, in August or September, 1699, as in the latter month a warrant was drawn for paying the expense incurred on that occasion.

In March, 1700, the Common Council agreed with one William Mumford, that the latter should find stones, and carve thereon the King's arms, the arms of Lord Bellamont, then Governor, and the arms of the Lieutenant-Governor, Captain Nanfan, of the size of the several squares left in the front of the City Hall for that purpose, all to be completed within six months. Mouldings of stone were required to be made around each coat-of-arms, each to be cut on one stone, unless a stone sufficiently large for the King's arms could not be procured, in which case two stones might be used. For this work Mr. Mumford was to receive forty-one pounds four shillings.

It would seem, therefore, that the building was finished in the year

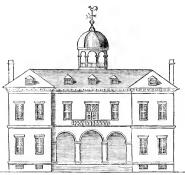

1700, or 1701. In the latter year, "a little old boarded house, standing by the City Hall," was ordered to be sold to the best advantage. The building was certainly finished previous to November, 1702, as at that time an order was made that "the arms of the late Earl of Bellamont and of Captain Nanfan, which are fastened in the wall of the City Hall, be, by the Marshal of the city, forthwith pulled down and broken, and that the wall be filled up."

In 1703, the cage, pillory, whipping-post, and stocks were removed from their old locality, at Coenties slip, and erected in the upper end of Broad street, a little below the City Hall. Several views of the City Hall, in Wall street, have been given in different publications of the Manual, but they were taken at comparatively late periods, when expensive improvements had been made to the building. Its general ground plan, however, as originally constructed, was not materially altered by those improvements, and an idea of its original character may be inferred from those views. When the building was erected, the line of Wall street, on which it was built, was all vacant ground, and was not built upon for thirty years subsequently.

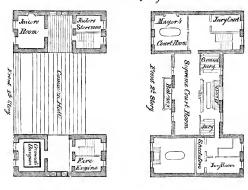

In the year 1713, Col. De Peyster and Mr. Bayard, the owners of the property adjacent, brought a suit in ejectment against the Corporation to recover certain lands covered by the City Hall, which they alleged belonged to them. The result of this suit does not appear in the records.

In 1715, Mr. Stephen Delancy, a liberal and wealthy merchant of this city, presented the city with fifty pounds, which he had received as his salary as representative of the city in the General Assembly; and, upon being consulted with as to the manner in which it should be used, suggested the purchase of a clock, to be placed in the cupola of the City Hall. In 1716 an agreement was accordingly made with Mr. Joseph Phillips, a clockmaker in this city, for its construction. It was provided, that the largest wheel of the clock should be nine inches in diameter, and that there should be two dial-plates of red cedar, painted and gilt, each to be six feet square. The price to be paid was sixty-five pounds.

It was not until the year 1718 that the balcony which is seen in the engraving representing this building, was constructed; although, when the order was given for its erection, it was stated that it was a part of the original design. The building, thus completed, presented the appearance shown in the accompanying engraving, which is substantially in accordance with the original design.

CITY HALL IN WALL STREET.

In 1738 it was found that the cupola of this building was "very rotten and in danger of falling," and it was resolved that it be taken down and a new one erected.

In 1763, which was a period when improvements, both private and public, were greatly encouraged in the city, the City Hall was altered and improved, at very considerable expense; a committee of the Common Council reported a plan of "alterations and ornaments" to the building, which was approved; and to defray the computed cost of three thousand pounds, a lottery was established. Among other improvements, the building was made higher, and roofed with copper procured from England. The "canopy," or balcony in the front of the building, was brought out to range with the two wings; a cupola of more imposing dimensions was raised upon the building, and a bell of larger dimensions than the old one.

After the Revolutionary War a notification was received from the Congress of the United States that they intended to sit in New York, whereupon the Common Council tendered to them the use of the City Hall, which was accepted, and the proceedings of that distinguished body were opened in that builning. At that time a room adjoining that of Congress was occupied as a school-room, and the noise of the scholars in their recitations was so annoying as to disturb the debates. Complaint being made of this, the school was discontinued. Previous to the ensuing session of Congress, the building was improved and altered, for their accommodation, according to a plan of Major L'Enfants, a French engineer. The expense of these improvements was so large as to render the financial measure of a lottery again necessary to provide funds to meet the expenses. But though a large amount was then expended, the building was still found insufficient for public purposes.

A committee was appointed to report a scheme for a new City Hall, but many years elapsed before this design was brought to a practical result.

LIGHTING THE STREETS.

No attempt was made to light the streets by public authority until the year 1762 (if we except a temporary ordinance in the latter part of the previous century, requiring the occupants of every tenth house to hang out a lantern upon a pole). An act of Assembly was passed, giving the Corporation authority to provide means for lighting the city. In 1762 the first posts and lamps were purchased. These were few in number for some years, but increased gradually. In 1770 a contract was made with J. Stoutenburg for supplying oil and lighting the city lamps, for the sum of seven hundred and sixty dollars.

In 1774 the city employed sixteen lamp-lighters. This system of lighting the city remained substantially the same until the contract with the New York Gas-light Company, in 1823, by which certain parts of the city were to be lighted with gas.

FERRY TO LONG ISLAND.

Although the city seems to have enjoyed the proceeds of this ferry in the times of the Dutch, yet the amount of rental must have been trifling, as it is found that as late as 1684 no more than twenty pounds per annum was bid for its rental. It further appears, that at that time no sufficient houses for the accommodation of the public desiring ferriage were erected on either side of the river; so that, when proposals were issued for leasing the ferry, in 1684, the best proposition offered was that of William Merritt, who offered £20 per year for twenty years, he to erect houses on each side of the river, and to have two boats for cattle and horses, and two boats for passengers; the rates of fare to be established at sixpence each for cattle and horses, and one penny for passengers. It seems probable that for a number of years subsequent to the time mentioned, no permanent arrangement was made in respect to the leasing of the ferry.

In January, 1699, it was resolved that a new house be crected at the ferry on the Long Island side, to be built of brick, two stories in height, 25 feet in front and forty feet deep, and soon after rates of ferriage were established, as follows:

Single persons, 8 stuyvers in wampum, or a silver two-pence.

Persons in company, half price.

After sunset, double ferriage.

Cattle (single) one shilling.

" (in company) nine-pence.

Colts or calves, three-pence, &c., &c.

Under these provisions, the ferry was let for seven years to Rip Van Dam (afterwards the celebrated Governor) at £165 per annum, he being the highest bidder. The ferry-house was contracted for in the same year (1699), under the following specifications:

Front, 24 feet; depth, 40 feet; cellar of stone, two stories above the ground, all to be built of stone. First story, $8\frac{1}{2}$ feet high; second story, $7\frac{1}{2}$ feet high; five chimneys, with jambs. The whole to cost £435.

In 1707, "the ferry, with the new ferry-house, the old house, barn, pen, and appurtenances," on Long Island, was put up again at auction, and by the conditions the lessee was required to provide two great boats, or scows, for cattle, &c., two small boats for passengers; the small boats to be kept constantly going to and fro. The new ferry-house was to be kept as a house of entertainment. The landing places on the New York side were established as follows: On Mondays and Thursdays, at Countess Key (Maiden lane); on Tuesdays and Fridays, at Burger's path (Hanover square); on Wednesdays and Saturdays, at the dock slip near Col. Cortland's house (Coenties slip). The lessee and highest bidder was James Harding, a victualler, at £180 per annum.

The Brooklyn people now began to make pretensions to some right of ferriage, and one Sebring applied to the Governor for a ferry grant, the landing on the Long Island side to be near the present Atlantic street. This was opposed by the Corporation of New York, and in their remonstrance they set forth that New York, for seventy years past, had enjoyed the right of the ferry, and that "the landing-place on Long Island had been esteemed to extend from the wharf (foot of Fulton street, Brooklyn) to the west end of the hill to the westward, and that from high water mark to low water mark."

These proceedings were the foundation of the charter of 1708, by which the Corporation of New York was granted all the land between high and low water mark, from the Wallabout to Red Hook, thus effectively cutting off all right to land boats between those points (individual privilege to that end was, however, reserved to the inhabitants along the shore, for private purposes).

In December, 1717, two ferries were established, both running from the former landing-place on the Long Island side, one of which was called "the Nassau Ferry," which was authorized to carry cattle, &c., as well as goods and passengers; the other, known as "the New York Ferry," could carry goods and passengers only. The landing places of the Nassau Ferry were the same as those before mentioned. The New York Ferry was confined to the slip at Burger's path and at the Great Dock.

Both these ferries were leased to James Harding; the Nassau Ferry at £145 per annum, and the New York Ferry at £85 per annum.

In 1728, the ferry to Long Island was leased for five years, at £258 per annum.

In 1733, the ferry to Long Island was leased for five years, at £245 per annum.

In 1738, the ferry to Long Island was leased for five years, at £310 per annum.

In 1743, the first law-case respecting the Corporation franchise to this ferry was commenced, by persons representing the alleged rights of people in Brooklyn to free ferriage. This was the celebrated case of Remsen against the Corporation, which occupied the attention of the courts for many years subsequently, and finally lodged in the Appellate Court in England, about the period of the Revolutionary War.

In 1747, the ferry was leased for five years, at £452 per annum. The occasion of the delivery of the ferry lease in those old times was made one of festivity, and a committee of the whole of the Common Council attended at the ferry-house, to celebrate the event.

The old ferry-house on the Long Island side was burnt about this period, supposed to be the work of incendiaries; and in 1749, a new edifice for this purpose was ordered, of the dimensions of twenty-four feet front and fifty-one feet deep, two stories high. It was to be built of stone, the front and one side smoothed, the rear and one side rough-cast.

During a considerable interval after this period, there was but one ferry in operation, and regulations designed to increase the facilities of passage were suggested, viz.: that the ferryman should keep six boats; and as it happened that two men, on account of the wind and tide, were often unable to bring their boat across the river, so that passengers had to labor at the oar, or otherwise endure a tedious passage, and suffer great loss of time, it was proposed that three men should be employed in each boat; that two of the boats should be kept for the exclusive use of the passengers, the remaining four to carry passengers as well as cattle, wagons, goods, &c.; that a time should be fixed for the departure of each boat at either landing; and it was computed that a boat, rowed by three hands, might, under the greatest disadvantages, cross the ferry in one hour and twelve minutes, and this portion of time divided by the number of boats would give twelve minutes for each boat to remain at the landing.

In 1774, however, three ferries were established, and the leases were sold separately; the landing-places on the New York side being at Coenties slip, at Fly slip (Maiden lane), and at Peck's slip. On the Long Island side, there were two landing-places—one at the old landing, the other at Philip Livingston's wharf (present foot of Atlantic street). These leases, in the aggregate, produced £370 per annum.

PAULUS HOOK FERRY.

Previous to the year 1742, there does not appear to have been any attempt made to establish any other ferry from the city, except those to Long Island, an account of which has been given.

In October, 1742, parties petitioned for a ferry to Weehawken, but no definite action was taken upon it.

In 1753, a petition was presented to establish a ferry from New York to the Jersey shore, from "the half-moon battery to Domine's Hook." No definite action was had upon it.

In 1752, a petition was presented to establish a ferry from the city to Harsimus, the landing-place at New York to be at the west end of Pearl street; but it was not definitely acted upon.

In 1764, a committee was appointed to examine whether "the people of Paulus Hook have any right of ferriage, and to consult counsel."

In 1765, Archibald Kennedy and William McAdam petitioned for exclusive grant of ferriage to the Jersey shore; which was opposed by Cornelis Van Vorst, of Bergen county, New Jersey, who represented that he had been at considerable expense in erecting a ferry at Paulus Hook, and had been obliged to maintain a causeway half a mile in length, and a lane nearly a mile long, and he asked a grant of the ferry at reasonable rates, and to receive the ferriage for a term on both sides of the river. The consideration of the matter was deferred, and a committee ordered to confer with the respective parties.

The committee reported that they had conferred with Van Vorst, who offered forty pounds per annum for seven years, the rates of ferriage to be fixed by the Corporation. After the expiration of his lease, he would give the Corporation the privilege of landing on his side, they to make the most they could by ferriage from the New York side, while he was to be permitted to ferry from the Jersey side for his own benefit; that he was possessed of three large and two small boats. He consented that the Corporation should fix the place of landing on the New York side. This proposition of Mr. Van Vorst was accepted by the Corporation, and the landing-place on this side was fixed at a pier belonging to Nicholas Roosevelt, at the foot of Cortland street. But it appears that the arrangement fell through after about a year.

In 1767, the Paulus Hook ferry was leased, for four years, to Jacob Van Voorhis, of New York, at a rent of £310 per annum. It has ever since been in active operation, the landing-places on both sides not having been changed, except by the making of land into the river. Paulus Hook Ferry is notable as being the ferry upon which steam ferry-boats were first permanently established. The honor of running the first steam ferry-boat in the world doubtless belongs to John Stevens, of Hoboken; but having won the credit, he seems to have abandoned the permanent use of steam, and to have returned to the old-fashioned horse-boat, after a short period.

After the success of steamboats had been demonstrated by Robert Fulton, that gentleman, with several other persons, called the Jersey Association, procured the lease of the Paulus Hook Ferry, and early in the year 1811 proceeded to construct two steam ferry-boats. Mr. Stevens, also, about the same period, commenced the construction of one for his ferry, and succeeded in completing it by October, 1811, which was nearly a year before those built for Paulus Hook Ferry were completed. These were put in operation in August, 1812, and an entertainment was given at the tavern at Paulus Hook on that ccasion, which was attended by the members of the New York Corporation, and many distinguished gentlemen of the city. These ferry-boats had the propelling wheel in the middle of the boat, between two segar-shaped floats; a plan of construction which continued on the different ferries for many years subsequently.

OTHER FERRIES LANDING ON THE NORTH RIVER SIDE OF THE CITY.

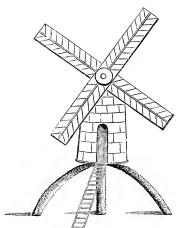

It was not until after the Revolutionary War that any other permanent ferry was established by public authority on the North River and bay, except that running to Paulus Hook; although private individuals ran boats from several points, such as Staten Island, Elizabethtown Point, and Hoboken. But soon after the Revolution, and before the commencement of the present century, the following ferries were under lease from the Corporation: Bull's Ferry, Elizabethtown Point, Fort Lee, Hoboken, Staten Island, and Weehawken.

IMPROVEMENT OF THE SHORE OF THE NORTH RIVER ABOVE THE BATTERY.

The early grants of lots for building purposes, on the west side of Broadway, extended to the river shore, which, for nearly a century, ran along the rear of the gardens of those premises.

In the times of the Dutch, palisades were erected along the bank of the river, being a continuation of those along Wall street, and extended down to the fort; but they did not exist long after the occasion for their construction had passed by.

The earliest map of the city (1661) presents a rough pictorial view of a windmill, which stood on the shore of the river, on the line of the present Battery place, of which ancient edifice the following is a copy:

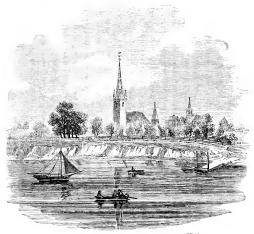

WINDMILL AT FOOT OF THE PRESENT BATTERY PLACE, 1661.

It was not until the year 1722, that the subject of encroaching upon the natural river line seems to have received any attention; at which period several persons petitioned for grants from high water to low water mark, in the Hudson River. The subject being thus brought to the attention of the Common Council, an order was made that notice be given to the owners of property adjacent to the shore, with a view to learn if they had any objection to such grants. As these proprietors seemed to view the matter with great indifference, the Corporation, in the following year (1723), resolved that "the land between high and low water mark, on Hudson River, from the house of Mr. Gaasbeek" (corner of present Battery place and Broadway), "near the fort, to the green trees, commonly called the Locust trees, near the English church" (present Rector street), "be granted to the proprietors on the west side of Broadway, at a rental; if they refuse, then to be granted to any other persons who will purchase the same."

This resolution seems, however, to have brought no response from the owners, and six years afterwards it was renewed in similar terms, and the subject was referred to a committee, to cause surveys to be made. This committee, in November, 1729, reported, after conference with some of the adjacent proprietors, that, in their opinion, two streets ought to be made, one of thirty feet in width at low water mark, and one of forty feet in width at high water mark, to run parallel with each other; high water mark to be about the centre of the street; the said streets to extend from the premises of Col. Gaasbeek to those of Mr. Rodman; that three slips should be left, "one fronting on the narrow street running through the land of Adolph Philipse, commonly called Goelets street" (now Morris street), "one fronting the narrow street near Alderman Van Gelder's, commonly called the alley that leads to Oyster pasty" (now Exchange place); "the other fronting the narrow street which runs from Broadway, on the south side of the English church. to the locust trees," said streets to be made by the respective own-The Common Council adopted this report, fixing the price of the land under water at nine-pence per foot, and authorized a committee to agree for sales, and that, if the upland owners refused to purchase, sales to be made to any other persons.

This was the permanent establishment of the present Greenwich and Washington streets, from the Battery to a point near the rear of Trinity Church-yard; those two streets running, respectively, the one on the natural high water mark, and the other on the low water mark.

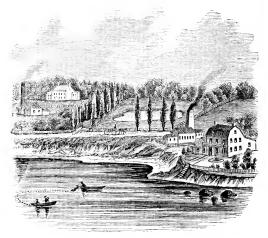

But it was a number of years subsequent to that period before any actual progress was attempted in the filling up of the streets thus laid down, although grants were gradually being taken up by the adjacent proprietors. A view of the river shore in the year 1740, embracing the whole distance from the Battery to Trinity Church, shows no other improvement of the natural shore except the erection of a small wharf on the line of the present Battery place.

NORTH RIVER SHORE NEAR TRINITY CHURCH, 1740.

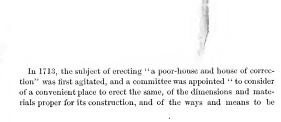

After the year 1743, the fact appears that parties owning the upland near Cortland and Dey streets began to take up water-grants from the Corporation. The conditions of these grants were that grantees should leave a street forty feet wide fronting their upland, and another street of the same width at the extremity of their grant. These streets were in continuation of those already adopted as before mentioned, and were those now known as Greenwich and Washington streets. The quit-rents for these grants were four pence per foot.

Trinity Church owned the King's Farm, extending from Broadway to the river, between the present Fulton and Warren streets, and they took out their grant about the year 1751. At about the same period, their farm was laid out in streets. Above that farm lay the Domine's Hook, extending to the present Canal street. This also originally belonged to Trinity Church. The following sketch shows the river shore along nearly the whole of this farm.

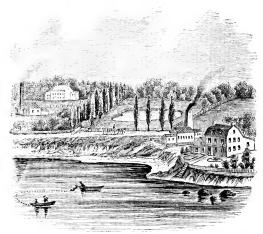

VIEW OF NORTH RIVER SHORE TOWARDS LISPENARD'S, 1761.

It was not until after the Revolution that the streets (present Greenwich and Washington), originally designed more than half a century previous, were regulated or improved as streets, except in occasional places. Two or three piers were erected on the west side of Greenwich street, between Cortland and Fulton streets, previous to the Revolution; and one large building, used for the deposit of artillery stores, occupied the block between Cortland and Dey streets, but below Liberty street the river shore was in its natural condition until near the commencement of the present century.

THE MEADOWS AND COLLECT POND.

The Collect Pond was the most noted geographical feature of the lower part of Manhattan Island, when in its natural state. The pond was fed by several springs, and was very deep, and contained varieties of fish. Its natural outlet was a brook emptying into the East River. This stream was in very early times known as "Old Wreck Brook," from the circumstance, probably, of a wreck on the river shore in the vicinity; but it afterwards was called "the Fresh Water," and was the line of the city jurisdiction for many purposes. The Meadows, a section of brambly swamp-land, extending to the North River, were permeated by the waters of the Collect. The ground was so wet and miry, that cattle were unsafe there in many places. When Mr. Rutgers procured a grant of the Meadows from the Crown officers, he was required to cut a drain through the meadows. This measure had the effect to lower the surface of the Collect, and the natural outlet to the East River dried up.

We have in a previous number of the Manual given a more minute history of these localities, and they need not be repeated, except to say that the filling up of the Collect was begun about the year 1800 and continued about ten years. It was considered as the most important public work which had been engaged in by the city, at that period.

PROVIDING FOR THE POOR.

In the times of the Dutch, the poor were taken care of by the church wardens, the funds being provided out of the receipts of the church. A building was provided for them in the present Broad street, west side, north of Beaver street. But no public fund was necessary to be raised for their support. As late as the year 1699, the matter of provision for the poor was of so inconsiderable a character, that it was resolved in Common Council "to agree with some person to keep a hospital for the maintenance of the poor of the city, and that a house be provided for their accommodation."

In 1713, the subject of erecting "a poor-house and house of correction" was first agitated, and a committee was appointed "to consider of a convenient place to erect the same, of the dimensions and materials proper for its construction, and of the ways and means to be provided for the same." At this period, the poor who were taken care of by the city were not maintained in any public establishment, but boarded. They were a badge upon their clothes, with the mark N. Y., either in blue or red cloth.

The first step towards the erection of a house for the poor was taken in December, 1734, when a resolution was adopted, reciting that: "Whereas, the poor of the city were increasing, and were very burthensome to the inhabitants, for want of a work-house and house of correction, it was resolved, that a convenient house be erected on the unimproved grounds of the Corporation on the north side of the lands of Col. Dongan, commonly called the Vineyard;" and a committee was appointed to lay out land enough for a house and garden. The house thus to be erected was to be fifty-six feet long, twenty-four feet wide, two stories high. It was to be built of stone.

In March, 1735, a committee, appointed to agree with parties for the erection of this building, reported that they had contracted with John Burger as follows:

- "For superintending the work, eighty pounds.
- $^{\circ}$ For 70 gallons of rum, for use of the masons and laborers, eight pounds fifteen shillings.
 - "For 70 lbs, sugar (to sweeten the rum), one pound five shillings.
 - "For small beer, two pounds ten shillings."

In March, 1736, it would appear that the building was ready for occupancy, as a committee was then appointed to inquire what materials were useful to set the inmates at work, so that "they might not eat the bread of idleness, and be a burthen to the public." This committee reported the necessity of procuring spinning wheels, knitting needles, flax, old junk, wool, and cotton. John Sebring was appointed overseer, at a salary of £30, with diet for his family. The supplies for the establishment were furnished by the church wardens out of the fund provided for maintaining the minister and the poor. It was further provided that slaves requiring whipping were to be sent there by their masters for that purpose, and a fee of one shilling and sixpence was to be paid for the service. A large garden, for the use of the establishment, was to be constructed.

In 1746, it was found this building was too small, and an addition was made to it.

In 1757, a grave-yard, for the inmates, was inclosed, to the eastward of the inclosure.

THE JAIL.

The room in the basement of the City Hall, used for confinement of criminals, became entirely inadequate both to secure the prisoners and to furnish them proper accommodations. As early as 1724, complaint was made by the judges of the condition of the jail. In 1727 it was presented by the grand jury, and four men were, in consequence, appointed to watch it, to prevent escapes. In 1740 it was still found insecure. But it was not until 1756 that an act of Assembly was procured, enabling the Corporation to provide means for the erection of a new jail. The site chosen was in the fields, and a building, at first designed to be two stories in height, and about fifty feet front, was commenced, in 1757. Before its completion, however, it was decided to add a third story. The walls of that building are still standing, though not recognizable under the exterior of the Hall of Records. In front of this building a whipping-post, stocks, cage, and pillory were erected in 1764.

BRIDEWELL.

About the year 1774, it was thought expedient to procure more adequate accommodations for the prisoners for debt and light offenses, and the erection of a Bridewell was commenced in the fields, near Broadway, on a line with the jail and alms-house. The means were raised by a lottery, in which the city took one thousand tickets.

HOSPITAL.

This institution, though not erected under municipal authority, received aid from the city in its erection, to the extent of one thousand pounds. It was at first proposed to erect the building in Broadway, opposite the fields, and the city offered the gift of a lot one hundred and twenty-four feet front, and two hundred and forty-eight feet deep. The erection of the hospital was commenced in the year 1771.

SUPPLY OF WATER.

There were no public wells before the year 1658. The inhabitants were supplied by private wells, within their own inclosures; but it was generally the custom for several neighboring families to join in the expense of constructing a well, which was used in common by them all.

The first public well constructed was in front of the Fort. This was petitioned for in 1658, by the city Burgomasters. It was the great resort of the inhabitants (not otherwise supplied) during the whole period of the Dutch rule.

It does not appear that any other wells were constructed in the streets until 1677, which was some years subsequent to the English establishment. At that time an order was made that "wells be made in the following places, by the inhabitants of the streets where they are severally made, viz.:

"One opposite Roelof Jansen, the butcher.
One in Broadway, opposite Van Dyck's.
One in the street, opposite Derick Smith's.
One in the street, opposite John Cavalier's.
One in the yard of the City Hall.
One in the steeet, opposite Cornelis Van Borsum's."

In 1687, seven other public wells were ordered in different streets; for the purpose of defraying the expense of which, the authorities designated the respective premises to be assessed; and, in the same year, the rule appears to have been established, that the City Government should pay one-half the expense, and the neighbors benefited the other half.

The means of constructing public wells, during the earlier part of the last century, was by a contribution of eight pounds by the City Government, and the remaining expense was defrayed by the inhabitants residing in the neighborhood, none of whom were allowed the use of the well until they had contributed a fair proportion of the expense.

About the year 1750 pumps came into use, and a general act was afterwards passed by the Assembly, to enable the city to raise a tax for the construction and keeping in repair the public wells and pumps.

The subject of procuring a supply of water by means of large wells, pumped by machinery, and thrown into an elevated reservoir, from which it might be led through the city in wooden pipes, was brought before the Common Council as early as the year 1774, by Christopher Collis, who may justly be styled the father of improvements in the water supply of this city. We do not propose to give the history of the measures taken at that time, except to say that some time after the Revolution they were brought into active operation.

THE EXCHANGE, AT FOOT OF BROAD STREET.

An edifice for the accommodation of merchants was proposed in 1752, and the site fixed upon was the centre of Broad street, near the East River. This place had formerly been occupied by a public market-house. The Common Council contributed one hundred pounds towards its erection, and assumed the expense of constructing the second story, and a cupola. The building was finished about the close of the year 1753.

After the Revolutionary War, this building was disused as an exchange, and the lower part converted into a market, while the "long room," on the second floor, was occupied as a military school, and occasionally for dancing assemblies. It was taken down about the beginning of the present century.

PREPARED FOR D. T. V.

Head-Quarters, New York, April 5, 1776.

THE soldiers are strictly enjoined to retire to their barracks and quarters at tattoo beating, and remain there until the reveille is beat.

Necessity obliges the General to desire the inhabitants of the city to observe the same rule, as no person will be permitted to pass any sentry, after this night, without the countersign.

The inhabitants, where business requires it, may know the countersign by applying to any of the Brigade Majors.

Head-quarters, New York, April 8, 1776.

The General informs the inhabitants that it is become absolutely necessary that all communication between the ministerial fleet and shore should immediately be stopped—for that purpose has given positive orders, the ships should no longer be furnished with provisions. Any inhabitant or others, who shall be taken, that have been on board (after the publishing of this order) or near any of the ships, or going on board, will be considered as enemies, and treated accordingly.

All boats are to sail from Beekman's slip; Capt. James Almer is appointed inspector, and will give permits for oystermen. It is expected and ordered, that none attempt going without a pass.

I am, with regard, sir,

Your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM TRYON.

To David Mathews, Esq., Mayor of the city of New York.

To the worthy Inhabitants of the city and county of New York:

Whereas, several members of your General Committee for this city and county do, as it is supposed through extraordinary attention to the private interest of their families, find it inconvenient at this time to give constant attendance to the business of the public; and as there never was a season when this city and county have stood in more need of a constant and full representation than the present, we beg leave earnestly to recommend it to you to meet at the City Hall, on Wednesday next, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and there to elect by ballot twenty members as an augmentation to your present Committee.

Extract from the minutes.

JOSEPH WINTER, Secretary.

Published by order of the Committee.

COMMITTEE CHAMBER, NEW YORK, June 20, 1776.

Whereas, it has been represented to this Committee that printed tickets are circulating in this city for small change, which, if permitted, in our estimation, will have a tendency to depreciate the paper currency emitted by congresses, committees, or corporated bodies: Therefore, resolved, That we will not receive in payment any tickets issued by any individual, and we do recommend to the public not to encourage, by any means, the circulation of any such tickets for the future.

JOSEPH WINTER, Secretary.

TO THE PUBLIC.

Whereas, the Committee of Inspection have thought proper to discourage the circulation of printed sixpenny promissory notes of my signing; this is therefore to acquaint those who may possess any of them, that they may have the value of them, by applying to the subscriber, who had them struck for his own conveniency; nor does he mean that any of them shall circulate any longer than till small change is provided for the public.

DAVID PHILIPS.

New York, June 26, 1776.

To the Inhabitants of the city and county of New York:

Whereas, the Convention of the State of New York did, on the 9th instant, unanimously resolve: That a Declaration of the Independency of the United States of America should be transmitted to the several Committees in the said State of New York, with orders that it should be by them published with convenient speed in their several districts: Therefore, resolved and ordered: That, at twelve o'clock on Thursday, the 18th inst., at the City Hall, in this city, the aforesaid Declaration be published, when and where it is hoped every true friend to the rights and liberties of this country will not fail to attend.

Extract from the minutes.

Committee Chamber, New York, July 16, 1776.

The following account of the reading of the Declaration, in compliance with the above order, appeared in "The Constitutional Gazette," July 20, 1776:

On Thursday last (July 18), by order of the Convention of the State of New York, the Declaration of the Independence of the United States of America was read at the City Hall to a numerous and respectable body of the freeholders and principal inhabitants of this city and county, which was received with general applause and heartfelt satisfaction; and, at the same time, our late King's coatof-arms was brought from the Hall, where his courts were formerly held, and burned amidst the acclamations of thousands of spectators.

By His Excellency

GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq.,

General and Commander-in-chief of the Army of the United States of North America.

Whereas, a bombardment and attack upon the city of New York, by our cruct and inveterate enemy, may be hourly expected; and as there are great numbers of women, children, and infirm persons yet remaining in the city, whose continuance will rather be prejudicial than advantageous to the army, and their persons exposed to great danger and hazard: I do, therefore, recommend it to all such persons, as they value their own safety and preservation, to remove, with all expedition, out of the said town, at this critical period, trusting that, with the blessing of Heaven upon the American arms, they may soon return to it in perfect security. And I do enjoin and require all the officers and soldiers in the army under my command, to forward and assist such persons in their compliance with this recommendation.

Given under my hand, at head-quarters, New York, August 17, 1776.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Head-quarters, New York, August 17, 1776.

Gentlemen: When I consider that the city of New York will, in all human probability, very soon be the scene of a bloody conflict. I cannot but view the great numbers of women, children, and infirm persons remaining in it, with the most melancholy concern. When the men-of-war passed up the river, the shrieks and cries of these poor creatures, running every way, with their children, were truly distressing, and I fear they will have an unhappy effect on the ears and minds of our young and inexperienced soldiery. Can no method be devised for their removal? Many, doubtless, are of ability to remove themselves, but there are others in a different situation. Some provisions for them afterwards would also be a necessary consideration. It would relieve me from great anxiety, if your Honorable Body would immediately deliberate upon it, and form and execute some plan for their removal and relief; in which I will cooperate and assist to the utmost of my power. In the mean time, I have thought proper to recommend to persons of the above description, to convey themselves without delay to some place of safety, with their most valuable effects,

I have the honor to be, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON

TO THE NEW YORK CONVENTION.

In Convention of the Representatives of the State of New York, at Haerlem, August 17, 1776.

Resolved, That the women, children, and infirm persons in the city of New York be immediately removed from the said city, agreeable to General Washington's request, of this house, in his letter of this date.

Resolved, That Colonel Lott, Mr. James Beckman, Mr. John Berrien, Chairman of the Committee of New York, and Mr. John Campbell, a member of the said committee, be empowered to remove such persons to such place or places in this State as they shall think proper; and that this Convention will pay the expenses incident to the removal and maintenance of such persons as the said committee shall think in such indigent circumstances as not to be able to remove and subsist themselves.

Resolved, That the General Committee of New York be earnestly requested to give all possible assistance to the above gentlemen, in carrying into execution the above resolutions in the most expeditious manner possible.

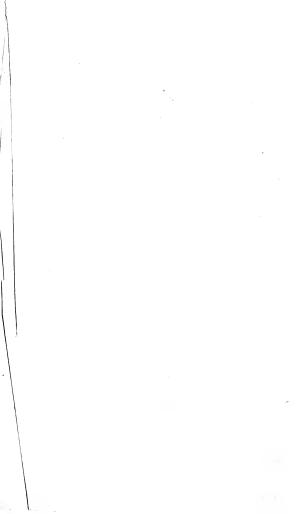

Extract from the minutes.

ROBERT BENSON.

Secretary.

WE, the subscribers, being appointed by the Convention of the State in the above resolutions, give this public notice to all such poor persons in this city, who are proper objects, that we will attend that business, at the Exchange Room, every morning, from eight to twelve o'clock, to give permits to them, and procure vessels to remove them to proper places in the country, where they will be accommodated agreeable to the above resolutions.

ABRAHAM P. LOTT, JAMES BEEKMAN, JOHN BERRIEN, JOHN CAMPBELL

STATHE OF PITT.

On Friday, September 7, 1770, the statue of the Right Hon. WILLIAM PITT, Esq., Earl of Chatham, was fixed on the pedestal erected for it, in Wall street, amidst the acclamations of a great number of the inhabitants. The statue is of fine white marble; the habit Roman; the right hand holds a scroll, partly open, whereon we read Articul Magna Charta Libertatum; the left hand is extended, the figure being in the attitude of one delivering an oration. On the south side of the pedestal, the following inscription is cut on a table of white marble:

THIS STATUE

RIGHT HONORABLE

WILLIAM PITT,

EARL OF CHATHAM,

AS A PUBLIC TESTIMONY OF THE GRATEFUL SESSE THE COLOSY OF NEW YORK RETAINS OF THE MANY EMINENT SERVICES HE RENDERED AMERICA, PARTICULARLY IN PROMOTING THE REPEAL OF THE STAMP ACT.

ANNO DOM. MDCCLXX.

BURNING OF THE STUYVESANT HOUSE.

Saturday morning last (October 24, 1778), about two o'clock, the old mansion house belonging to Mr. Nicholas Stuyvesaut, in the Bowery, took fire, and was burnt to the ground, with part of the furniture therein contained. The above fire is said to be occasioned by means of the ash-house being near the dwelling.

Nothing could be more polite and humane than the conduct of Colonel Munichausen, of the Hessians, at the fire of Mr. Stuyvesant's house; he not only ordered a guard for the protection of the property rescued from the flames, but attended in person, with several of his officers, a great part of the night; and when he retired, left the guard entirely at the direction of the family interested, until all the effects were removed and secured.

Mistory of the Poor in the City of New York, 1699–1816.

IN proportion to the light of the Gospel shining upon our land, the history of the poor becomes increasingly interesting. Searching the public records of this city, under the old administration, the population of its inhabitants, in 1699, amounted to six thousand souls. The poor, at this early period, received partial relief in their own habitations, or lodgings were provided for them by the Vestry. Johannes De Peyster, Esq., was then Mayor. In 1707, greater attention was paid to the indigent, both by food and clothing; every person so relieved had a badge upon the sleeve of the garment, formed of the letters N. Y., in blue or red cloth. As population increased, certain persons of humanity and opulence, in 1774, presented a well-written petition to Robert Lurting, Esq., the Mayor, and to the Corporation, on the utility of erecting a good and substantial building for the reception of various classes of poor, and as a house of correction. Whereupon Messrs, Roome, Bayard, Fell. and Burger, who were Aldermen, with three other gentlemen, were appointed a committee to fix upon a suitable piece of ground, and to purchase materials for the purpose. They eventually chose a spot then called the Vineyard; the very place on which now stands our City Hall. The house crected was sixty-five feet by twenty-four, two stories high, with good cellar apartments. The front room to the right was appropriated to the use of the Superintendent; the first of whom was John Seabring, having a wife and one child. The upper room on the west side was used as an infirmary; the first physician of which was Dr. John Van Buren, grandfather of the present Dr. Van Buren, of this city; who held his office thirty years, His salary was one hundred pounds a year; out of which he found his own medicines. Trustees, by an annual election, were appointed to the Institution, who regularly met once a week. The description of persons received to this house were—the indigent poor, the sick, the orphan, the maniae, and the refractory. This house of poor was supported out of what was then called the Ministers' Fund, a small tax upon the inhabitants; and by voluntary contributions, which sometimes were very liberal. Besides, the clergy of this city benevolently took their turn, weekly, in preaching the Gospel to the poor.

When the war commenced between England and America, in the year 1776, it became necessary to remove the poor, first to Westchester, and afterwards to Poughkeepsie, under the charge of Mr. John Forbes. During the war, however, the poor and the refractory were received into the Alms-house, then under the care of Mr. William Littlewood; who was permitted to draw King's rations for nine months, to support the poor. After this the Corporation appointed Samuel Bell, Esq., grandfather to the present Deputy Sheriff, Mr. James Bell, to the office of Superintendent of the establishment. In consequence of the destructive fire which took place in this city on the 21st September, 1776, three hundred destitute persons were received into this institution.

On the establishment of the independence of the United States, Christian benevolence to the poor assumed still more cheering features. The poor who were fostered in Poughkeepsie returned to the city, under the superintendence of Mr. Samuel Dodge. Several out buildings were soon erected on the premises, to make the Almshouse more commodious. The old school-house still remains.

The increase of population and the great influx of emigrants from various parts of Europe so exceedingly added to the number of the poor, that it became indispensably necessary to erect a more commodious Alms-house in Chambers street; while, at the same time, the old site left a favorable space for erecting the present City Hall. This house of the poor is of brick, 260 feet by 44, with two projections in front of 15 by 30. Possession of this establishment was taken in 1795.

From the more opulent and benevolent part of the community, about this period, a spirit of philanthropy began still more eminently to appear in favor of the needy and the destitute. For these purposes various societies have been successively established. Here are public charity schools for indigent children; the widow with small children are fostered by a society of females; by another, clothing is provided for the naked; by a provident society, the imprisoned debtor, with other necessitous persons, are supplied with refreshments; aged widows, who once saw better days, are materialy aided with the necessary comforts to soften their pangs while closing the period of life; here, too, as one of the brightest ornaments of our city, exists an asylum for helpless orphans, where they are tenderly fostered, and receive such education and religious precepts as prom ise the greatest advantage to the infants and to the general community.

For wise purposes, combining a greater number of objects, the Corporation of our city have erected an establishment at Bellevue—the chapel of which we this day opened for divine worship.\(^\circ\) The first stone of this building was laid August 1, 1811, by the Honorable De Witt Clinton, Mayor of the city. The premises at present occupy about seventeen acres of ground. The building itself is 320 feet by 50, with two wings, 100 by 50 feet. Two hospitals are in the rear, 75 by 25 feet, three stories high. A penitentiary is also erected, for the confinement of those who have committed petit larceny; likewise a spacious work-shop, 200 feet by 25. These extensive buildings, no doubt, will accommodate various classes of the poor and unfortunate, to the advantage of society. To these will be added separate schools for the male and female children to receive plain education and religious instruction, in hope that they may become useful citizens.

Papers relating to the Fire Department of the City of New York.

An Act for the Better Extinguishing of Fires that may happen within the city of New York.

Passed the 16th of December, 1737.

Whereas, the inhabitants of the city of New York, of all degrees, have very justly acquired the reputation of being singularly and remarkably famous for their diligence and serviceableness in cases of fires: And, whereas, the same inhabitants have, at a very great charge and expense, supplied themselves, and are provided with, two fireengines, and various sorts of poles, hooks, iron chains, ropes, ladders, and several other tools and instruments for the extinguishing of fires: And, whereas, notwithstanding which, many houses have frequently been burnt, consumed, or very much damaged by fires, unfortunately happening in the same city, before such fires could (notwithstanding all diligence used) be extinguished, often to the great damage of owners, and might happen to be the impoverishing and utter ruin of many of the good people of the same city; the rage and violence of which, for the future, may be, in great part, prevented, if a sufficient number of skillful persons be appointed to have the care, management and working of the said fire-engines, and other tools and instruments for extinguishing of fires, in eases of such casualty and distress, that may hereafter happen.

I. BE IT THEREFORE ENACTED by his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, the Council, and General Assembly, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That from and with all convenient speed after the publication hereof, it shall and may be lawful to and for the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the city of New York, or the major part of them, in Common Council convened, and that they are hereby required to elect, nominate and appoint a sufficient number of strong, able, discreet, honest and sober men, willing to accept (not exceeding forty-two in number), whereof an equal number shall be elected or appointed out of the six several wards of the said city, on the south side of Fresh Water, of the inhabitants, being freemen or freeholders of the said city; to have the care, management, working and using the said fire-engines, and the other tools and instruments for extinguishing of fires that may happen within the said city; which persons so to be elected, nominated and appointed as aforesaid, shall be called $The\ Firemen\ of\ the\ city\ of\ New\ York\ ;$ and who, with the engineers of the same city, are hereby required and enjoined always to be ready at a call, both by night as well as by day, to manage, work and use the said fire-engines, and others that may hereafter belong to the sume city, and the other tools and instruments for extinguishing of fires that may happen or break out in the city aforesaid.

II. And, in order to compel and oblige the firemen, so to be elected, nominated or appointed, as aforesaid, to be diligent, industrious and vigilant, in the execution and discharge of their office and duty: BE IT FURTHER EXACTED, by the authority aforesaid. That the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the suid city, for the time being, in Common Council assembled, or the major part of them, are hereby authorized and empowered to remove and displace all or any of the firemen so, as aforesaid, to be elected, nominated or appointed, when and as often as they shall think fit, and others, in the room or places of such as they shall remove or displace, to elect, nominate or appoint and put in; and so, from time to time, as they, the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty aforesaid, for the time being, in manner aforesaid, shall see convenient.

III. AND BE IT FURTHER ENACTED by the authority aforesaid, That the persons so to be elected, nominated or appointed firemen as aforesaid, and each and every of them, from time to time, during the continuance of being in the office of firemen, and no longer, shall, and are hereby declared to be, freed, exempted and privileged from the several offices of Constable and Surveyor of the Highways, and of and from the being put into or serving upon any juries or inquest, and of and from being compellable to serve in the militia, or any of the independent companies of or in the said city, or any or either of them, except in cases of invasion, or other imminent danger; and the names of such persons to be elected, nominated or appointed firemen by virtue hereof, from time to time, shall be registered and entered with the Clerk of the Peace for the said city. And if, at any time after the publication of this act, and the electing, nominating, or appointing firemen, by virtue hereof, any such person or persons elected or appointed firemen as aforesaid, shall be chosen, elected or appointed into any of the said offices, or returned, required or appointed to serve in any jury or inquest, or the militia, or any of the independent companies as aforesaid (except as before excepted), or be disquieted or disturbed by reason thereof; that then such person or persons, producing a testimonial or certificate, under the hand of the Mayor, Recorder, or any one Alderman of the said city for the time being, of such his election, nomination or appointment, to the person or persons by whom he shall be so elected or appointed, or by or before whom he shall be summoned, returned or required to serve, execute or hold any of the said offices or duties, shall be absolutely discharged from the same; and such election, nomination, return and appointment shall be utterly void and of none effect; unless such person or persons shall voluntarily consent and agree to hold such office, or serve upon such jury or inquest, or in such militia, or independent company; any order, custom, law, or practice to the contrary hereof in any wise notwithstanding. Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to exempt or excuse any such person or persons to be elected, nominated or appointed firemen, as aforesaid, that is, or shall, before the commencement of this act, and such election, nomination or appointment, be elected to serve in the said offices of Constable and Surveyors of the Highway, from serving therein for the usual time for which he was so elected.

IV. And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That it shall and may be lawful to and for the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the said city, for the time being, or the major part of them, and met as aforesaid, to make, establish, and ordain such rules, orders, ordinances and regulations, in respect of the government, conduct, duty and behavior of the persons, from time to time to be by them elected, nominated or appointed firemen, by virtue of this act, in the working, managing and frequent exercising, trying and using of the same fire-engines, tools and other instruments, and to impose and establish such reasonable fines, penalties and forfeitures upon them, or any of them, for default or neglect of the duties, businesses and services thereby to be enjoined or required from them, as the Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the same city for the time being, or the major part of them, met as aforesaid, shall from time to time think meet and convenient.

V. And he it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That upon the breaking out of any fire within the city of New York aforesaid, all Sheriffs, Under or Deputy Sheriffs, High Constables, Petty Constables, and Marshals (upon notice thereof), shall immediately repair to the place where the said fire shall happen, with their rods, staves, and other badges of their authority, and be aiding and assisting, as well in the extinguishing the said fires, and causing people to work, as also in preventing goods being stolen, and shall seize and apprehend all ill-disposed persons that they find stealing or pilfering from the inhabitants; as also that the said officers aforesaid shall give their utmost assistance to help the inhabitants to remove and secure their said goods.

Fire-engines were built and for sale in this city six years after their first introduction, as will be seen by the following advertisement from The New York Gazette, May 9, 1737:

"A Fire-engine, that will deliver two hogsheads of water in a minute, in a continual stream, is to be sold by William Lindsay, the maker thereof. Enquire at Fighting Cocks, next door to the Exchange Coffee-house, New York."

A Proposal of some further REGULATIONS for the specifier and more effectual Extinguishing of Fires, that may happen in this Cdy.

It is a common observation that the inhabitants of this city are remarkable for their agility in extinguishing fires; and since so judicious a poet as Virail hath compared the industry of the Tyrians to the labors of the bee, I think the amazing celerity with which my fellow-citizens cluster together at the ringing of the Fire-bell may fitly be resembled to the swarming of those curious insects, at the sound of the instrument used for that purpose. To pursue the simile, there is not a drone among them; but the rich and the poor are alike indefatigable in preserving their neighbor's property from the devouring flumes. It is one universal hurry and incessant activity: nay, they have often exposed themselves to the peril of their lives. and performed feats almost surpassing comprehension or belief. They toil with unwearied diligence, and seem insensible of the danger which threatens them. In a word, they stand in the midst of the flames, as unconcerned as Salamanders, mocking at fear, and striving to outvie each other in suppressing the general calamity a noble emulation and worthy the highest eulogiums!

Non ought the companies, lately formed for the preservation of goods at fires, be passed over, without that share of applause which is due to so landable an undertaking—an undertaking which deserves to be commemorated with gratitude and honor, as it exhibits a glaring attestation of their public spirit and exemplary devotion to their country. They have been at a considerable expense in furnishing themselves with proper apparatus, and given undeniable proofs of the extensive utility of their respective societies. Animated by their example, may others project expedients equally tending to the public benefit, and reap for their rewards an equal share of public gratitude.

For my own part, as my future speculations will, on the one hand, evince my reluctance at sparing the rod, where correction is necessary, so they will, on the other, show my readiness to bestow all due honor upon whatever deserves the approbation of the public. Would to Heaven I never had an opportunity but to praise, with an absolute privation of the least necessity for the exercise of my chastisements! From this disinterested impartiality, I cannot refrain from paying to merit its just tribute of commendation and renown. I shall, therefore, take the liberty still a moment to detain the reader, in order to express my own and my countrymen's grateful sense of the Corporation's liberality in making such ample provision for the extinguishing of fires, that we are in want of but few things requisite to that end. As most inventions, however, arrive at perfection by gradual improvements, there is, I conceive, a possibility of superadding sundry regulations for the speedier controlling the rage of that terrible element.

It hath more than once been observed, that our engines are incapable of throwing water to such a height as is sometimes necessary. Of this we had a dreadful instance when the steeple of Trinity Church took fire. On that occasion, we observed, with universal terror, that the engines could scarce deliver the water to the top of the roof. The spire, however, was far beyond its reach; and, had not Providence smiled upon the astonishing dexterity and resolution of a few men, who ascended the steeple within, that splendid and superbedifice had, in all probability, been reduced to ashes, [©]

We are, therefore, in want of at least one engine of the largest size, which throws water about one hundred and seventy feet high, discharges two hundred gallons in a minute, and costs about sixty-

^{*} Friday morulug last (February 23), about 4 o'clock, a violent fire broke out in the new Free School House, kept by Mr. Joseph Hildreth, clerk of Trinity Church, in this city, which got to such a height before it was discovered, as to render it impossible to save it from being entirely destroyed; and though it stood at a considerable distance from the church, yet the flames ascended so high, and carried with them such abundance of live coals, as to put the church in imminent danger, particularly the steeple, which was set on fire five several times, almost at the top, what little wind there was setting directly on it; notwithstanding which, by the goal providence of God, and the diligence and activity of a few persons within, who broke holes through, it was happily extinguished and preserved. There was scarce anything saved out of the house, from the fury of the fire; and we are assured, besides a great deal of furniture and other things, the records of the church are entirely consumed. The whole loss sustained is supposed to be near two thousand pounds value.—Parker's N. Y. Gazette and Weekly Post Boy, February 26, 1750.

tive pounds sterling. Such an engine would have another advantige, besides carrying the water to so great a height. The prodigious quantity it delivered would be of unspeakable service at all fires.

Another thing, in which our present method of extinguishing fires is capable of further improvement, is this. It is usual for people, in cases of fire, to form themselves into two lines, the one to convey the full buckets to the engine, and the other to return the empty ones. Now, it frequently happens, that when the engine is full, word is given to stop water. This occasions a total cessation in the conveyance of more water to the engine, as well as the greatest confusion in the ranks; the consequence of which is, that the engine is empty, before the ranks regain their former regularity, which ereates a considerable intermission in its playing. The mischievous effects of this are apparent, on the least reflection: for these interruptions, be they ever so small, give the fire time to resume its fury, and which, if often repeated, requires a much greater quantity of water for its total suppression, than would be necessary, was the engine continued in one regular and uninterrupted exercise. inconvenience might, I conceive, be easily remedied, by supplying each engine with a large tub, of at least the size of an hogshead; which, being made of cedar, might be sufficiently strong, and at the same time light enough to be portable by two men. ought to be placed near the engine, and all the full buckets to be emptied into it. From this capacious tub, three or four men might eonstantly and equally keep the engine replenished; which would enable it to play an equable and uniform stream. The happy effects resulting from such an expedient would, I am persuaded, be immediately visible; and indeed the truth of the proposition is evident, and constantly exemplified in life; for a pail of water, sprinkled by degrees on a common fire, will very little affect it; in reality, all the water may be wasted without extinguishing it, which nevertheless, thrown on it together, would be sufficient entirely to quench it.

Again, fires often happen so remote from water as to occasion a want of people, and in places where the passage is too narrow to admit of a sufficient number of double lines to supply the engines. In such cases, I would propose that people should form themselves into three single lines, instead of two double ones; the two exterior ones for the full buckets; which, as they are emptied into the great tub, should be laid at the feet of the first man of the inner line, to be reconveyed to the water. This line would be sufficient to return the empty buckets of the other two. And by that method, three men might do the usual business of four, and in three quarters of the space of ground.

This economy is well worthy our consideration; nor can we, on these occasions, be too well supplied with water. With respect to the tubs before mentioned, I must take the liberty to entreat our magistrates that we remain no longer without them. For could they be applied to no other use than what I have already pointed out, that alone would render them extremely serviceable. But they will also be of signal advantage in other respects. They will, in a great measure, secure the engines against being clogged and choked with the sand and pebbles secoped into the buckets at the river side; for, the buckets being emptied into them, the sand and pebbles will sink to the bottom, and the water only be thrown into the engines.

Another advantage that would arise from the use of such tubs is, that no movement or change of situation in the engine, nor any other accident that might impede its playing, need occasion any interruption to the ranks in conveying water; to which they are at present greatly subject, on every such emergency; for their being no reservoir to receive the water when the engine is full or changing place, the lines must, during that interval, either cease conveying it, or set the full buckets on the ground, where they are generally overset, and the water lost.

It is further to be remarked, that many parts of the city, too remote from the river to be supplied with water from thence, are very deficient in public wells. I am sensible that when this has been mentioned, it hath often been esteemed a full reply, that the people have wells enough in their yards. But the inconveniences generally attending the bringing of water from thence, are sufficient reasons for making more public wells in the streets; for, without assigning any other, the opportunity it affords for robbing the houses through which the water is brought, is an evil almost as bad as the fire itself.

To what hath already been proposed, the reader will give me leave to add, that some of my countrymen, whom Nature hath blessed with better lungs than understandings, are often, on these melancholy occasions, very loud and vociferous; and others as fond of being directors, and exercising a kind of superintendency over the rest. Through this confusion and vociferation, the instructions given by the proper directors are often neglected, and generally incapable of being heard. It would, therefore, be of great use if people would make it a rule not to speak but when it is absolutely necessary. In a word, let them reserve their loquacity till they return to their spouses, when probably they will be relieved from the pain of so long a silence by sundry pertinent and momentous queries.

And to all this, that it ought invariably to be observed, at great fires, that all the large engines play nearly on the same part of the fire. The advantage of this may not, perhaps, appear at first sight; but, on the least consideration, it will easily be observed that the heat of a great fire will drink up a single stream of water, without any perceptible diminution; and in like manner the several different parts of it will bear several different streams of water, without being sensibly affected; but let them all be directed to the same part of the fire, and they will effectually extinguish it there; which done, the streams may be directed to some other part, till the whole be suppressed. The small engines may, in the mean time, be kept employed in preventing the communication of the fire to the neighboring buildings.

The preceding proposals are only intended as rude suggestions, so far to engage the attention of the curious, as either to improve these imperfect hints, or to substitute in their room more effectual expedients for the readier extinguishing of fires.

A PLAN FOR A PURLIC FIRE-OFFICE.

For the purposes of raising an annual sum, to be applied in keeping in repair, and (as occasion may require) increasing the number of engines, buckets, and other serviceable implements used in extinguishing fires. And for providing a Fund for the Public Hospital.

It is computed that there are at least three thousand houses in this city. In one room of each of which there must necessarily be a fire kept every day. Cleansing the chimneys of these from foot ten times per year (which is once in five weeks), at one shilling per time for the service, would produce fifteen hundred pounds yearly.

In two thousand of these houses, it may be supposed that a second fire is kept as a parlor fire, from the beginning of November to the last of April; and these being cleansed five times in that term, on the above-mentioned plan, would produce five hundred pounds yearly.

Taking the extra fires on an average (meaning in those houses wherein are kept three or four fires, as is the ease in many during the winter months), it is supposed that there would be at least fifteen hundred more to sweep four times in the cold season, which would bring in three hundred pounds yearly further.

It is presumed that, under the sanction of a law for cleansing chimneys, as above stipulated, a public office for the purpose might be maintained on the following establishment:

A SUPERINTENDENT, to act as treasurer and clerk, whose duty it should be to keep a methodical register of all the fire-places in the city, and visit them regularly every day in their turns, to see that the persons under him duly performed their office, and to collect the pay of their service; and for doing this and other duties, such as taking care that the sweepers' implements were kept in proper repair, &c., to have.....£300 per annum.

One MASTER SWEEPER, to attend occasionally, with the under-folks, and keep them to their duty.... 100 Fifteen Sweepers (who, cleaning eleven chimneys per day each, would easily do the duty), might

There would of course be a balance of one thousand two hundred and fifty pounds remain, to be appropriated to the purposes of this plan, of which two hundred and fifty pounds would amply suffice for fire service; so that there would be one thousand pounds per annum left for the Hospital.

IN PROVINCIAL CONGRESS. NEW YORK, September 2, 1775.

Resolved, That the firemen of the city of New York be, and they are hereby, exempted from the military night-watch, and being called upon as minute-men, or of the militia to go out of the said city.

NEW YORK FIREMEN TO THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

New York, September 8, 1775.

Gentlemen: We, firemen of the city of New York, beg leave to lay our state and condition before you; that we cannot serve two masters -to be drawn out in the military service and to tend our fire-engines. We desire the same privilege as is granted to us by the act of the Legislature.

We are willing to serve as firemen; and if a general attack should be made upon our city, we are willing and ready to be drawn out with the rest of the citizens; and if that is not agreeable to the Honorable Congress, we must lay down firemanship and turn out as soldiers.

We, the subscribers, are officers and foremen of the several engines. THEO, HARDENBROOK.

To the Honorable Provincial Congress.

IN PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

New York, 15th June, 1776.

On motion of Mr. Jay,

Resolved, That the clergy and licensed physicians be exempted from drafting for the militia to be raised in this city.

Resolved, also, That such of the firemen be exempted as will agree to form a separate company for the preservation of the city, in case of invasion, and be under the command of the General until the further order of this Congress.

Whereas, The Honorable the Provincial Congress of New York have, no doubt, thought it most conducive for the public benefit to dissolve the body of firemen, by not making provision for them, but drafting them with the militia (an instance never yet known in any city), by which means the fire-engines are become useless for want of proper persons to attend them; but as the necessity for such a body speaks for itself, it would be impertinent to make use of any arguments in its behalf; it plainly appears that the old firemen should not serve any longer; and as the safety of the city will oblige a new body of firemen to be raised; this is therefore to inform all such gentlemen as may take upon themselves that duty, that they may have almost all the old firemen's fire-caps at a more moderate price than they can now be made for, as they are a useful article.

FIRE-MEN.

Committee Chamber, New York, July 13, 1776.

Resolved, That, in the opinion of this Committee, the members of the different Fire-engine Companies that remain in this city ought not to be called out on any military duty which the common militia of this city and county are subject to; and that it be recommended to the different captains of the said firemen, to engage as many able citizens as are sufficient to fill up the vacancies of such firemen as are entered in the Continental service, or have removed out of town; and that they pay strict attention to the state of the engine and publick buckets; and that the captains aforesaid return a list of all such firemen as soon as possible to this Committee.

GARRISON ORDERS.

Eighth April, 1781.

A Number of the citizens having formed themselves into companies, by the names of the Friendly, Union, Hand-in-Hand, and Heart-in-Hand Fire Companies, with the very laudable intention of undertaking every service in their power, in case of fire, by removing and securing the effects of such of their fellow-citizens whose situation, at such time, may require their attention, having provided themselves with the necessaries for that purpose; and in order to be distinguished on those occasions they will wear round hats, with black brims and white crowns: It is ordered, that no other person or persons (except such as do belong to the said companies) do presume to wear, at any fire, such badge of distinction, on pain of immediate imprisonment, and being tried by a court martial, for a breach of public orders. And, in case of fire, all persons belonging to the said companies, and having such badge of distinction, are to be permitted by all officers and sentinels to pass and repass, without molestation, and are also to be exempted from handing buckets, or assisting to work the engines.

Whereas, there are a number of Firemen now wanted to fill up the different vacancies in the companies belonging to the fire-engines in this city, occasioned by a number of men, belonging to the said companies, removing to other parts; it is, hereby, requested by the engineers, that any person or persons, residents in this city, that they are requested to apply immediately, in order that the said companies may have their full complement of men. None need apply but those who are sober, discreet persons. Enquire of said engineers, who are appointed, by authority, for that purpose.

New York, November 5, 1783.

About the year 1794, the fire-engines were of a very inferior quality; we had no water, except from wooden-handle pumps. By a law of the Corporation every owner of a dwelling was obliged to procure a fire-bucket for every fire-place in the house or back kitchen; these buckets held three gallons, made of sole leather; they were hung in the passage, near the front door. When the bell rang for fire, the watchmen, firemen, and boys, while running to the fire, sung out, "Throw out your buckets." They were picked up by men, women, and boys running to the fire. Two lines were formed. from the fire to the nearest pump; when the pump gave out, the lines were carried to the nearest river; one line passed down the empty. the other passed up the full buckets; if a person tried to break through the lines, he was compelled to fall in, or get nearly drowned by buckets of water thrown over him. The buckets were marked with the name and number of the owner. Every morning, after a fire, the Corporation earmen went to the streets near the fire, picked up the buckets, and dumped them in the lobby of the old City Hall, which then stood where now stands the Custom-house; people then sent their children or servants to bring home the buckets, when they were hung up in the front entry, to await the next fire. - De Voe's Market Book.

During the dreadful fire which happened in this city, a gentleman,

^{*} This morning (December 9, 1796), about one o'clock, a most dreadful fire broke out, near the centre of Murray's wharf, Coffee-house slip, which, notwithstanding the exertions of all the engines, and a vast concourse of the citizens, could not be got under, until it terminated at the Fly Market, consuming nearly fifty buildings, the property of a number of citizens, some of whom are reduced from affluence to indigence.—N. Y. Magazine, 1766, p. 671.

belonging to the Company of the Bag-men, returning home with a bag filled with papers (of considerable importance to the owner), in order to insure their safety, met with two "sons of the sea," evidently disinterested in the horrors of the night, standing idle at the corner of one of the streets. The gentleman, observing their want of duty to their fellow-citizens in distress, expostulated with them on the impropriety of their absence, when one of them, more impertinent than the other, retorted with, "Blast the fellow! What business is it to you—y at each of your body the Trinity Church-gard.

BY THE HON, FRANCIS R. TILLOU.

In the annals of the past, it is difficult to find an episode more interesting and useful than the Qistory of the French Quguenots.

From their original organization, until their destruction as a sect in France, the detail is a succession of events, which, even now, when contemplated, hold the mind in wonder, sympathy, and excitement. Realities of wrongs, bigotry, persecutions, and cruelties, awful and terrific; of sacrifices, suffering, devotion, sincerity, fortitude, and bravery, rare and marvellous, and, but for assurances, which must be accepted as reliable, apparently, in many instances, incred-Demonstrating the power of religious faith and affection, the power of education and surrounding influences, in directing the thoughts of the mind, the feelings of the heart: in the inspiration of prejudices or prepossessions, in the infusion of intelligence, the establishment of principles and habits: in the formation of character; in giving strength to the energies, the accomplishments, the passions and impulses of humanity. Truths, which inform us what dreadful and disastrous consequences flow from the allowance of any religious denomination to be a part of the government of a nation; which manifest the wisdom of the Constitution of these United States, by which religious as well as civil liberty is guaranteed to the people. No true-hearted American can contemplate those events without an emotion of gratitude to Heaven, that he belongs to a land where such intolerance is not allowed to exist.

Among those events is the Massatt of St. Bartholomtin, an appalling and bloody chapter of atrocity, in which, according to De Thou, 30,000 of the Huguenots in and round Paris, and, according to the Duke de Sully, 70,000 of them in all France, were destroyed under circumstances of intense treachery and barbarity.

Thereafter followed the series of fierce and varied wars, which, for many years, convulsed and desolated France—including the battles and contests of the Ltagut, and of the several successive sovereigns of those times; and the terrible transactions of fraud, assassination, and wickedness, which attended those struggles; including, also, the actions in those wars of the great and good Ring Menry of Nabartt, eminent, alike, for his intrepid bravery, his gallantry and generosity, and his great goodness of heart.

Among the events, too, are the pacification of those bitter quarrels—the £bitt of Nant; its wicked violation; the long and subsequent train of persecutions of the Huguenots; the dragooning system; the formal revocation of the Edict by Louis XIV., and the final ruin of the Calvinistic Church in France by the talented and vindictive minister, Carbinal £lightien.

Previous to and subsequent to the formal revocation of the Edict, multitudes of the reformers were compelled to fly to avoid the persecutions to which they were subjected.

It is estimated that upwards of 500,000 of the best and most useful of the French people sought refuge in other countries—Switzerland, Holland, Prussia, England and Ireland; and the then lonely regions of Ametica received large numbers of them. They were of all ranks and occupations—men of letters and science, agriculturists, artists, surgeons, physicians, manufacturers, mechanics, artisans, vinevardsmen, laborers, and ministers, were included.

Prussia had regiments of them as soldiers; and many of them had high military as well as civil and scientific positions in its service. The Printe of Otange, also, had large numbers, in various capacities, in his service. Saurin, the distinguished divine, was protected by him. At the Battle of the Baput, regiments of them fought on the side of King William, and Marshal Schomberg, a Huguenot, was there, at the age of eighty-two, killed, at the head of his division. In England and Ireland they were quite numerous; in London, whole blocks of buildings were erected and neighborhoods were established by them; and to them does England owe her after eminence for some of the best of her fabrics.

A remarkable circumstance, in relation to this exiled people, is the fact that, wherever they went, and were received, they conferred substantial benefits, and were distinguished for their virtues, abilities, and usefulness—endowments which appear to have generally continued in their posterity.

Among the exiles was the philosopher and physician, Denis Papin. He was born at Blois, in France, in 1647; in 1681 he emigrated to London; in 1699 he became professor of mathematics in the city of Marburg, and died, while yet in that office, in 1710.

In the first years of his exile, he was engaged in researches in the use of steam, and that which was called his pretense to navigate a vessel without either sails or oars. He then conceived the idea of a steam vessel, and afterwards essayed his scheme of navigation on the Fulda. The experiment had only partial success. His engine wanted improvements in details. But he gave impulse to his successors. He was the first to cause a piston to move in the chamber of a pump; who invented the safety-valve; who demonstrated the possibility of applying steam to the purposes of navigation. By him the wonders of steam navigation were brought to a point very near development a century earlier than when they were disclosed.

To those above mentioned may be added numbers of other distinguished men—of literature, of science, of accomplishment, of genius, and of skill, talent, and learning. That wonderful man, Huet, who, though a Huguenot, was honored and trusted by Louis XIV. for his virtues and marvellous abilities; Ancillon, the pastor of Metz; Henry D'Holland, the Beauforts, the Du Buissons, the ministers of the Gospel; La Fontaine (the maternal ancestors of the Maurys of Virginia), and a host of other noble men, who were members of that extraordinary denomination, and shed lustre on their reputation.

In America, large numbers of the exiles settled in New Areadie, in Massachusetts, in New York, in Virginia, in South Carolina, and elsewhere.

It is a task of pleasing curiosity to trace the history of their families and posterity, and singular to find how generally beneficial were the race to the neighborhoods in which they settled; how distinguished many of them were for exalted virtues and rare endowments.

Many of them were a portion of the noble heroes of our Revolution, and were eminent for their patriotism, their devotion, and efficient services and sacrifices, to the cause of their country—the Hugers, the Laurens, the Manigaults, the Legarés, and General Murion, of South Carolina. Who can read the life, the trials, sufferings, and triumphs of the latter, and of the two Luurens, father and son, without sentiments of gratitude and admiration?

Mr. Faneuil, the founder and erecter of Faneuil Hall, the Crable of American Liberty, in Boston; Mr. Boudinot, one of the leading promoters and members, in his lifetime, of the Bible Society, proverbial for his piety and benevolence; Mr. Jay, of New Rochelle, in this State, all Huguenots, were among those noble men who achieved our independence.

Many of the refugees, who settled in New York, had first found an asylum in Holland, and there, by kind treatment, had become attached to the Dutch people, and they had, not only by the bonds of friendship and sympathies of religion, but, in numerous instances, by the ties of marriage, become connected with the Hollanders.

When the Dutch emigrants left their fatherland for America, many of the Huguenots thus connected with or attached to them naturally accompanied them, and settled with them in the State of New York.

Staten Island, New Utrecht, Gravesend, Bushwick, Brooklyn, and other places on Long Island, New Rochelle, in Westchester county, New Paltz, and other places on the North River, as well as the Island of Manhattan, were settled by them and their friends, the Hollanders.

In the annals of the Dutch Government of the New Netherlands, the Huguenots' names numerously figure, as those of able and trustworthy men. In the times of Governors Kieft and Stuyvesant, that of Doctor La Montagne stands forth in high and useful public position. He was one of the Governor's Council. He rendered essential service in official affairs, was a man regarded as of great talents and accomplishments. He was termed the Learned Huguenot.

For and during the period after the conquest by the English, until and after the Revolution, indeed hitherto, the Huguenot race, in the city and State governments, as well as in the private positions and relationships of life, have continued to be a people generally held in confidence and respect, and considered as of great moral worth.

Soon after their emigration to New York, a small humble church was established by them, in what was originally, in the Dutch language, and is now in the English language, called Marketfield street, but, which, at a period after the English conquest, and until after the Revolution, was called Dttfroat Lane.

Subsequent to the Revolution, by authority of an act of the Legislature, their church in Petticoat lane was sold, and they bought a plot of land fronting on Pine and Cedar streets, near to Nassau street, and there creeted and established a new church, with a grave-yard attached to it. They continued to worship in the latter church for about half a century, when the church and ground were sold; the building and the contents of the cemetery were removed, and the congregation purchased the ground and creeted the church now at the corner of Franklin and Church streets—the church "Du St. Esprit."

While divine service was performed in the small, humble church in Petticoat lane, the service was in the primitive form of the Calvinists; and then, such was their attachment and devotion to their religious duties, that from New Rochelle, and other villages of the neighboring counties, they, on Saturday evenings, such as could, in wagons or other vehicles, would ride, and such as could not so come would walk, to the city, and attend the church on the Sabbath, and return to their homes on Monday morning.

After the sovereignty of the English succeeded that of the Dutch, the forms of the English service were gradually introduced, and in the course of time the church become Episcopal. Now the congregation is in communion with the Episcopal Church in this diocese.

In that venerable cemetery, Trinity Churth-gard, repose the remains of countless numbers of past generations of that remarkable people, including those of the Rev. Elias Neau, the paternal ancestor of the wife of the late Commodore Oliver H. Perry, of Rhode Island.

The memory of Mr. Neau deserves more than ordinary notice. He was a good and a talented man. His life was a life of rectitude, of usefulness, of beneficence, and of piety. His heart was of benevolent impulses, his mind of pure and generous thoughts. His occupation was that of unceasing benefaction. His religion was his love. Practically he obeyed the injunction of our Saviour, and in his generation was justly loved, admired, and respected.

Previous to his escape from France, he suffered, for several years, confinement in prison and in the galleys. While in his dungeons,

* Among the Huguenots who arrived in the British Colonies of North America, from France, in or about 1685, were the Rev. Elias Neau, and his wife Susannah, and aughter Judith. Judith Neau married in New York a Rabineau. The issue of that marriage was one child, Marie Rabineau, who married Daniel Ayrault. Their issue was six sons and five daughters. The second son, Daniel Ayrault, married Susannah Eargrass, and the issue of the latter marriage was Daniel and Mary Ayrault.

Mary Ayrault married Benjamin Mason. Their issue was two sons and two daughters. The eldest son, Benjamin Mason, M. D., pursued his studies in England. He married Margaret Champlin, of Newport, Rhode Island. Their issue was three sons and one daughter. The daughter, Elizabeth Champlin Mason, married Oliver Hazard Perry, of the United States Navy.

The issue of the latter marriage was four sons and one daughter. Elizabeth Mason Perry, the daughter, married the Rev. Francis Vinton. The issue of that marriage is seven sons and three daughters, being the eighth generation from their venerable Hugnenot ancestor, trained in the Church of which he was a member and officer, after a lapse of upwards of one hundred and fifty years, their father now being one of its talented and distinguished assistant ministers.

he learnt part of the Liturgy by heart, and became attached to the English Church service.

After the English had a second time recovered possession of New York, and when the Rev. Mr. Vesey was rector of Trinity Church, Mr. Neau was appointed Catechist of that Church.

For a series of years after his appointment, he faithfully discharged his duties among the Indians and slaves, of whom about fifteen hundred were catechumens in the city. In 1708, the catechumens had risen to more than two hundred, and were increasing daily. He could never get them together till candle-light, in summer or winter, except on Sundays, when they came after the last service of the Church. It was his practice to resort every afternoon with his catechumens to the Church, to be catechised by Mr. Vesey, and to take them to him for baptism, from time to time, as he considered them sufficiently prepared to receive that sacrament. But this was only a part of his task of human usefulness. He may be said to be the parent of the Free School of the Church, which afterwards became numerous.

The building once employed for that seminary, and the stone tablet inserted in its front wall, still exist, behind Trinity Churchyard, in Lumber street.

Mr. Neau closed a life of extraordinary usefulness in 1722. His remains lie in the burial-ground of Trinity Church, nearly in a line with its northern porch.

The character, as the facts of the past demonstrate, of the Luguenots of france, is made up of many remarkable elements: strong, firm, and consistent in their faith, nor terror, nor suffering, nor wrongs, nor violence, nor temptation, nor certainty of ruin, even of death, could induce them herein to waver; resolute and decisive, daring and intrepid, they scorned deceit, artifice, or subterfuge; lovers and practicers of truth and honesty, they would not stoop to duplicity or prevarication; invincible in integrity, their fidelity was inexorable; industrious, frugal, methodical, and attentive, they became skillful, prosperous, able, and generally wealthy, oftentimes eminent in their professions; their strue birtues could not be measured by any price, their value could not be estimated by any standard.

To their friends, they were devoted, even to the sacrifice of life; to their enemies, they were a terror; for their valor, chastened by well-recognized discipline, made them a foe not often unsuccessful.

The hallowed remains of so many of these Christian people, whose memory cannot but be held in veneration and respect, form a part of the hosts of the past, whose relics compose the vast contents of Erinting Church-para. That mighty and holy ligament, which binds, by silent and resistless power, by irrepressible though quiet emotions, the living to those who are in eternity. That home of the dead, where abide the memorials of patriotism, honor, and exalted virtue—memorials which may truly be regarded as among the most precious jewels of the American nation.

Old New York.

READ BEFORE THE NEW YORK INSTORICAL SOCIETY, FERRUARY 4, 1862,
BY BENJAMIN ROBERT WINTHROP, ESQ.

Among the many memorable benefits conferred on this Society by an honored and beloved associate, the venerable and lamented Frances, the student of our local history will undoubtedly regard the fifty-third anniversary discourse as the most valuable and enduring.

I think every member of the Society who hears that respected name mentioned in this connection, will recall the genial presence, the cheerful countenance, beaming with an expressive benevolence, and the sympathetic tones in which that true-hearted antiquarian depicted the events, the scenery, and the actors in the life of our city, fifty years ago.

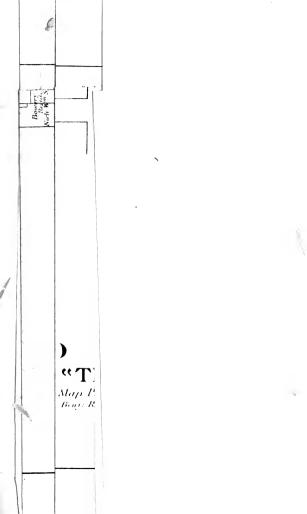

Whatever was touched by his master-hand is hallowed in our memories. My purpose is to fill up, so far as I am able, in the brief space allotted to me, some few interstices left in his interesting memorial of the past.

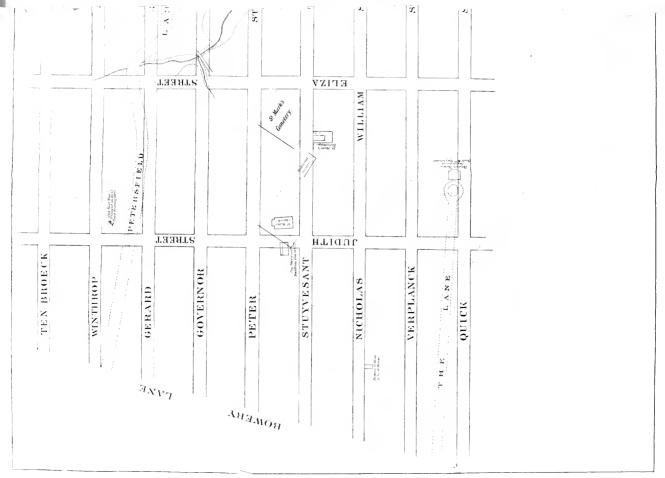

Although, in comparison with most of the great cities of the world, New York is still in the freshness of youth, yet her records, going back beyond the period of two centuries, may perhaps justify me in applying the term "Old New York" to the few observations with which I propose to trouble the Society at this time.

We have a municipal historian in the venerable Clerk of the Common Council, whose love of research and accuracy of details give to his writings a well-deserved authority.

Mr. Valextine carries back the discovery of Manhattan Island to the year 1525, while Hudson, usually regarded as the "discoverer," first saw the Highlands of Navesink in September, 1609. Hudson thought it "a very good land to fall in with, and a pleasant land to see." The native Indians did not covet the intimate acquaintance of the English sailors; and after an exploration of the river, on which he conferred his name, Hudson abandoned the fruits of his discovery.

Holland, from her position necessarily commercial in her interests and in the character of her people, soon gathered up the ravelled threads of the English enterprise, and wove them into the web of a great colonial success. The Dutch were specifily at work to secure the benefits of their acquisition. Their first superstructure was a block-house, erected in 1626.

Manhattan Island had been selected as the head-quarters of the Dutch West India Company, and the commercial city, looming up in the future, was to be the "New Amsterdam" of a new continent.

The Society all know, or can readily learn from the elaborate details of Mr. Brodhead's History of the State of New York, that under the administrations of Van Twiller and Kieft, especially of the latter, the affairs of the Dutch Government in New Netherlands became seriously embroiled with those of the English authorities, and the Dutch Government was in imminent danger of losing its influence, and the control of its possessions on the American continent.

In May, 1647, a new phase was given to the public affairs by the landing of Peter Stuyvesant on the Island of Manhattan, as the Chief Director of the Government of Nieuw Netherland.

The administration of Governor Stuyvesant continued for sixteen years. The determined vigor and sturdy integrity of the Dutch character were stamped upon the whole record of his public career. He led the Dutch troops in battle with dauntless bravery, and his wisdom and honesty appear on every page of his civil administration.

In 1664, the civil power departed from the Dutch dynasty. The name of New Amsterdam gave place to that of New York, and the city, now become the commercial metropolis of a continent, passed quietly under the control of the English Crown.

Nicolls, the first English ruler, thus speaks of the city of which he had just taken possession: "The best of all his Majesty's towns in America; within five years the staple of America will be drawn hither, of which the brethren of Boston are very sensible." Nicolls, if not a good or great ruler, had at least the merit of a sagacious forecast.

Governor Stuyvesant's name is connected with the history and the interests of the city of his love by other ties than those which belong to his character as a ruler. I think I may, without infringing any rule of delicacy or propriety, justly ascribe to the influence and example of his civil life the traditions which have come down to us of the sturdy honesty, the patriotic spirit, and the incorruptible integrity of the municipal rulers; the industry, the frugality, and the probity which marked the character of the people of the city of New York, as it came out of the hands of our Dutch progenitors.

I cannot claim for the Dutch that they were a fast-moving people; they considered long over all their projects of improvements; many pipes were smoked in silence before the decision came; if regrets followed, they sprung from what had been omitted, and not from what had been done. Theirs was, at least, a prudent philosophy.

Deputy Governor Nicolls foresaw competition between New York and Boston. The two cities were rivals, just and honorable rivals, for the supremacy of commerce, for more than a century and a half. In this our day, while the rivalry for the crown of commerce has ceased, a loyal, earnest and undying emulation has succeeded in all that is great and useful in science and art, humanity and letters, and devoted love of country.

If New England has indeed been outstripped in the race with New York for commercial enterprise and prosperity, we must not fail to concede one point, namely: That it is to a strong infusion of a new element of character, particularly the New England element, that we owe much of the vast increase of the moral and material power of our city, the growth of the last half-century. New England men have cast freely into the common stock of the community, their enterprise, intelligence, ingenuity, industry, commercial integrity, and unconquerable perseverance. With such a commingling of moral and social elements, where should be the wonder that a city should rise in power and greatness with a rapidity that has no parallel in the history of the world?

Pardon me, Mr. President, that I have so long detained you by these crude suggestions from the recollections of the old New York of my early days, with which I propose to occupy, for a short time, the attention of the Society, having to speak in especial reference to that portion of the city which once composed the family estate of Governor Stuyvesant. I could scarcely avoid recurring to his connection with its early history and progress.

The changes that have occurred, within my memory, in the city at large, almost defy my own belief. The scenes of a moving panorama scarcely pass with greater rapidity before the vision. It is far from an easy task to recall the objects of local interest which have so suddenly disappeared. Time and the inexorable demands of commerce and population and progress, are sweeping away all the landmarks associated with the traditions and memories of a past generation. As a people, we have very little veneration for antiquity. Mansions which were beautiful in the eyes of our ancestors, have lost their fine proportions in the judgment of posterity, and must give way to the more attractive models of modern architecture. The tiny Holland brick, the golden hue of which which had such fascination for the eyes of the Dutch burghers of New Amsterdam, have long been displaced by the ruddy-tinted Collaberg, or the smooth vermilion blocks of which the City of Brotherly Love has long been so proud. To these succeeded the stately fronts adorned with the sculptured brown free-stone, whose sombre countenance has more recently been enlivened by the admixture of palaces of marble, pure as the product of Italian quarries.

Our streets, which once meandered in their crooked ways through green suburban groves, have been straightened and widened under despotic mathematical rules, until all the romance and the better part of the memory of our youth have disappeared. Let us seize the little that remains of the past, and picture it to the mind of history, ere it disappears forever from our view.

The map which lies before me, and of which I shall ask the Society to accept a copy, delineates a portion of the property which once formed the estate of Governor Stuyvesant. It was in his day a suburban retreat, far removed from the glitter of society and the tumults of business, and in its embowered recesses he found his best relief from the labors and cares of office. The "Bouwery lane" brought him within the confines of the city, and over its unpayed roads the stately coach bore him to and from his official duties. The house in which he dwelt was situated about one hundred and twenty-five feet west of St. Mark's Church; its site occupied a portion of the churchvard, and extended over to what is now the north side of Tenth street. A portion of the foundation remained, until a very few years since, on the spot where now stands the house adjoining St. Mark's church-yard on the west. The mansion was burned by the British troops in 1777. The two copper coins which I lay upon the table were recovered from these ancient ruins, while excavating for the foundation of the house in Tenth street. One relic of the Governor's farm has become familiar to the present generation. The pear tree still standing on the north-east corner of Third avenue and Thirteenth street, and which bore fruit in 1861, tradition tells us was brought by him from Holland and set out on his farm in 1647.

A church was erected on the estate by Governor Stuyvesant, which fell, from natural decay, many years ago. Upon the site of the ruins of the old church was erected the present 8t. Mark's. Beneath the original building, and still remaining under the present structure, is the family vault of the Stuyvesants. From the construction of this vault and the position of the entrance, I have come to the conclusion that the western gable of the old church must have stood about ten or twelve feet from the eastern gable of the present edifice. My reason for this conclusion is, that what appears to have been an entrance has been closed up by brick work, while the rest of the vault is of solid masonry.

The cemetery of the present St. Mark's Church lies between First and Second avenues and Eleventh and Twelfth streets. It was conveyed to the church by Mr. Petrus Stuyvesant, a lineal descendant of the Governor, by deed bearing date in the year 1803. One of the conditions upon which this property was to be held by the church is in the following works:

"And upon the further trust they, the said Rector, Church Wardens and Vestry, their successors and assigns, shall at any time hereafter permit and suffer the interment of any person who now is or has been the slave of the said Petrus Stuyvesant, and the children of all such persons, in the said burial-ground, without the charge of any mortuaries, burial fee, or other ecclesiastical duties whatsoever."

Near the entrance to the cemetery, and about ninety feet from the spot on which you sit, Mr. President, is the portion set apart for the interment of the slaves and their descendants, and where the remains of many of those faithful servitors have mouldered away to their original dust. In the cemetery stands a simple grave-stone, erected by a few of the descendants of Petrus Stuyvesant, of the present generation, which bears the following inscription:

Sacred

TO THE MEMORY OF

MRS. MARY BAY,

FAMILIARLY CALLED MAMMY MARY,

BORN

DIED

FEBRUARY 14TH, 1843.

SHE WAS BORN NEAR THIS SPOT,

BENEATH THE ROOF OF

GERARDUS STUYVESANT,

Where she dwelt until his death, in 1777.

After that event

zijier inui eeem

She remained the faithful servant and friend Of the same family,

 $And\ thus\ passed\ her\ long\ life\ of\ near\ a\ century$

Among the same kinsfolk,

And in the same neighborhood

In which she was born.

She has now gone to dwell

Where the distinctions of this World are unknown,

And, being found worthy,

To reap rewards

Which the proudest may be happy

To share with her.

Nata Serva in Christo vivit libera.

I have been present and "assisted" at the interment in this cemetery of very many of the old Stuyvesant slaves; and while recalling innumerable acts of kindness received at their hands in my infancy and youth, have dropped tears of sincere sorrow while witnessing their humble sepulchral rites.

I call up to memory now, though so many years have elapsed, the names of the persons of these faithful adherents of the family altar. Well do I remember "Old Jonno" and "Mammy Isabel;" "Daddy Dick" and "Mammy Dinah;" of "Mammy Sarah," and "Bessie;" of "Mary," and "Bowery John," and "Lucy," and "Hannah;" but especially do I call to mind dear old "Mammy Mary," in regard to whom I have an incident to relate:

Almost at the close of the life of this good old soul, she took me to her closet, and, with a great deal of mystery, brought forth, nicely wrapped in a white napkin, a brick which she had taken from the Governor's mansion, and, coming into her possession, had been treasured for a lifetime. The "specimen brick" of the story-teller usually excites a jest; but, in my mind, no sense of ridicule can attach to a relic guarded with such jealous devotion, and which connects us with seven generations of the past. I ask permission to place it among the collections of the Society.

The old parsonage of St. Mark's, a further benevolent gift of Petrus Stuyvesant, remained in the sacred use to which it had been dedicated, until its removal became inevitable by the opening of the new streets about the year 1832.

At the commencement of the present century, a little settlement had grown up on the Stuyvesant farm. It took, naturally, the familiar name of the "Bowery Village." The school-house stood near the "Two-Mile Stone," about the present St. Mark's place, a little north of Tompkins Market. The school was kept in the upper story, and the lower floor was occupied by the fourth Methodist church. The first of these churches was in John street; the second, in what is now Chrystie street; the third, in Duane street. All are still standing, and remain devoted to the same spiritual objects, save the fourth. In this connection I may mention that the Rev. Henry J. Feltus, D. D., who attained great eminence as an eloquent divine of the Episcopal Church while rector of St. Stephen's, was originally a "local preacher" of the Methodist persuasion, and frequently officiated in the Bowery church, as did also the popular young preacher, Summerfield. It was not an infrequent practice of the latter clergyman to hold his religious exercises in the private houses of the citizens of this neighborhood.

While the people of "Old New York" had no Central Park, through the broad drives of which to exercise their prancing steeds, and over the artfully prepared frozen lake to glide on the precarious skate, yet they were not without these aids to healthful exercise and youthful amusement.

The drives were over smoothly kept roads, unvexed with cobble pavements, and the skating was on ponds of nature's own preparing. "Lispenard's" and "Burr's" had their surfaces crowded with the young and active skaters, while "Stuyvesant's Pond," more remote, was sought by those who desired more room, and did not shun a walk to obtain their much-prized pleasure. "Stuyvesant's" comprised the spacious opening between Thirteenth and Fifteenth streets and the First avenue and the East River.

The site of the "Bowery House," familiar to many of our elder citizens as the residence of Nicholas William Stuyvesunt, and also that of "Petersäeld," occupied until the year 1825 by the late Peter Gerard Stuyvesunt, will be found indicated on the map. These houses were both erected before the year 1765. The exact date I am unable to state.

"Ortley's," a famous establishment in that day on the East River, the resort of young men fond of fishing or sailing, will also be found on the map. There are some circumstances connected with the tract of property embraced within the limits of this map, which it may not be out of place to recall. As first drawn, the streets indicated bore the names of all the Stuyvesant family. In other countries this would have proved an enduring memorial, consecrated to an affectionate remembrance of departed relatives. In our city, and especially in our times, street names have little significance for posterity. Time and change have swept away many that were associated with historical events and persons, until finally we have come to know our streets and avenues as the dwellers in prison cells and hospital wards are known—by numbers, and not by names.

The lines, as well as the names on the Stuyvesant map, have been obliterated, with the single exception of Stuyvesant street, and a portion even of that small remnant has been diverted without authority. Other designs have been adopted, more in unison with the general plan of city improvements. The black lines indicate the streets as laid down on a map "drawn" from actual survey by Casimir Th. Goerck and Joseph Fr. Mangin, in 1803. The red lines show the streets now existing, in accordance with the plan of the upper portion of the city, laid out by the Board of Commissioners appointed by the Legislature in 1807, of which Gouverneur Morris was chairman and Simeon Dewitt and John Rutherford members.

Your attention, Mr. President, will doubtless be attracted to the spot indicated as the site of the building in which we are assembled to-night. How appropriate that the Historical Society should have found a permanent resting-place upon soil, the history of which is so intimately connected with the origin and progress of our city!

The Dutch dynasty opens its grounds to the descendants of those who came in with the British rulers. The immigrant seeking a new home, whether he comes from the Ocean Islands, from Continental Europe, or from the coasts of the far Eastern seas, finds here a common centre around which gather the lovers of history from every clime. Science and truth, civilization and loyalty: these are the bonds which unite the students of history as friends of our common humanity.

Ran away the 1st of this instant, February, about ten o'clock at night, from John Cannon, of the city of New York, three negro men, with a sloop belonging to the said Cannon, burthen about thirty-five tons. Whoever takes up said sloop and negroes, and secures them so that the owner may have them again, shall have twenty pounds reward, and all necessary charges paid by John Cannon.

Also, notice is hereby given that the dwelling-house of the said Francis Vincent, situate on the west side of the Broad street, near the Long Bridge, is to be sold, together with two young negro men, both good sailmakers, and sundry sorts of household goods. Those that incline to purchase the same or any part thereof may apply to the above-mentioned executors.

August 13, 1773:

We are informed by a person lately come from Bloster's Point, in the eastern part of the province of Massachusetts, that about a fortnight ago a very strange creature was found on the shore there, which the tide had left, about twice as large as an ox; its head and fore parts resembling a lyon, with prodigious large flat feet, and teeth eighteen inches long, white as ivory and as thick as a man's wrist. He was very slow and helpless, and had no other way to attempt an escape from his enemies but by sticking his teeth in the ground and dragging his hinder parts after him. The people assaulted him with axes and other instruments, which made no impression on him, till, by chance, they found a place susceptible of their weapons, wherewith he was at last destroyed. 'Tis further added that upon cutting off a piece of his flesh it was found so exceeding rough that it could not be torn asunder by three yoke of oxen.

He professeth himself to be a Roman Catholic, speaks very good English, is a carpenter and cooper by trade, and has with him a broad-ax, a two-foot rule, and a hollow-howel. He had on a pair of linnen or Osnaburg breeches and an old cloth coat, but it is uncertain what other clothes he has with him. Whoever takes up and secures the said negro man, and gives notice thereof to his said master, so as he may be had again, shall have forty shillings if taken within ten miles of the city of New York, and three pounds if further, as a reward, and all reasonable charges paid by Jacobus Van Cortlandt.

Whoever takes up said servant and secures him, so that his said master may have him again, shall have 30 shillings reward, and all reasonable charges.

December 17, 1733:

About eight o'clock on Wednesday night last, a fire broke out at the house of Gerardus Comfort, a cooper, on the North River side of this city, which burnt with great violence, by reason of a high wind at southwest, and in a short time consumed his workshop and stable. His dwelling-house was in much danger, but by the timely assistance of the inhabitants and Fire Indians it was extinguished without doing other considerable damage. It was occasioned by a crack in the oven (which being then heating to bake bread for the family) through which the fire took hold of a fish carr. A sloop which was building near the said house, and launched the Friday after, was also in danger of burning before she had the opportunity of escaping.

December 31, 1733:

To the Publisher of the New York Gazette:

Mr. Bradford—If you think proper to give this a place in your Gazette, you will oblige some of your constant customers.

"As a war is likely to break out, and the rumours thereof daily increase, it seems highly necessary that timely care should be taken to prepare for the safety of our country. And in order thereto, it may not be amiss to propose some methods necessary to be done as soon as possible, so that, in case of a rupture, the enemy should attack us in these parts, we might be in a condition to receive and salute after a brave and warlike manner, not trusting too much on our number of men, and carelessly saying, No fear, No fear; but let us be prepared, if possible, to disappoint them in their first attempt, by endeavoring to engage them smartly at every convenient place, as they enter the channel, thereby to disable them more and more as they come nearer the town; and as I am unacquainted with the depth and breadth of our channel, I shall only suppose the first convenient place for erecting a suitable battery (and other conveniences necessary) to be at Sandy Hook, and a suitable guard to be there placed as occasion shall require; and on the first alarm, all the Train Bands of the next adjacent towns and villages, to repair thither, well armed. The next convenient place I suppose to be at Coney Island, and the Narrows, on both sides of the channel. The Train Bands also, on notice, to repair to their respective fortifications. And also, in and about the city, such other batteries as shall be most necessary, and all the Train Bands of Queens county, and to the eastward, to repair to the city, and all that come by water to leave their boats and other small craft at Kip's Bay; and the Train Bands of Bergin to repair to New York also, and leave their small craft at Grinage. By which means, and farther good management, we might be able, not only to defeat and disappoint the enemy in their first designs, but also discourage them of making the like attempts for time to come.

"And towards affecting those good purposes, every man, in his capacity, ought to join his endeavors, and lay aside all private views, partyships, and divisions (which often tend to the ruin of a state or country) and declare for a strict and absolute resistance, suitable to the character we bear of good subjects, and as may render us worthy of those many blessing which we enjoy under the protection of our most gracious Sovereign, in a free country, where every subject may reap the fruits of his own labors and the free exercise of his religion. Those liberties enjoyed by English subjects, so dear, so precious, are well worthy of our concern, the same to preserve and maintain.

"Perhaps our enemies might flatter themselves that it would be an easy matter for them, with a small number of shipping, to sail into our harbor, and oblige us to a compliance of ransoming the place for a large sum of money (as indeed it would, if we should depend too much upon our present state and condition), and some of our careless inhabitants might also think that the cost of those new proposed fortifications would be a good help towards ransoming the place in case the enemy should come to disturb us; but every man that hath a regard for the honor of his King, the welfare of his country, and for the preservation of his life and liberty, ought to assist in using all endeavors of putting us in a good posture of defence, and on every occasion be ready for a noble resistance; that so, by our timely and earnest endeavors and God's blessing, we might remain a free and happy people."

WRITTEN AT A CONCERT OF MUSIC,

WHERE THERE WERE A GREAT NUMBER OF LADIES.

Music has power to melt the soul,
By beauty nature's swayed;
Each can the universe control,
Without the other's aid.

But here together both appear, And force united try; Music enchants the list'ning ear, And beauty charms the eye.

What cruelty these powers to join! These transports who can bear? Oh! let the sound be less divine. Oh! look, ye nymphs, less fair.

January 28, 1734:

Sunday, the 20th instant, being the anniversary of the birthday of His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, the honors of the day were deferred till Monday following, when, at 12 o'clock at noon, his Excellency was attended by the Corporation, and all the principal gentlemen and merchants of this city at Fort George, where the healths of his Majesty, his Royal Consort, His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, and the Ministers, were drank as usual, the cannon round the ramparts firing, and the two independent companies posted here being under arms. In the evening there was a numerous and splendid appearance of gentlemen and ladies at the Fort, where they were received by his Excellency and lady and the honorable family. The night concluded with a splendid supper and ball, which lasted till four o'clock in the morning.

Junuary 28, 1734:

In the dusk of the evening on Sunday, the 20th instant, a young woman, about 14 or 15 years of age, coming from a neighbor's house, at the outward part of this city, was met by a negro man belonging to Mr. Vallet, who threw her down, stopped her mouth, and made an attempt to ravish her; but by her struggling she got the cloth out of her mouth, cried out, and told him that she knew him and who was his master, upon which he desisted and ran away. On Monday said negro was apprehended; Tuesday he had his trial, by virtue of an act of Assembly of this province, appointing three or more of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace, in conjunction with five of the principal freeholders of the county, to try and convict negroes transgressing the law. At his trial, by some other evidence it appeared that said negro had endeavored to make the like attempt on another woman some time before; and this last fact appearing very plain, he was sentenced to be burnt alive, and, on Thursday last, he was burnt accordingly, in the presence of a numerous company of spectators, great part of which were of the black tribe. By the inspection of the justice inflicted on this negro, it is hoped it may be a means to deter others from attempting such wicked crimes for the future.

By His Excellency WILLIAM COSBY, Cuptain-General and Governor-in-Chief of the Provinces of New York and New Jersey, and Territories thereon depending, in America, Vice Admiral of the same, and Colonel in His Møjesty's Army, &c.:

A PROCLAMATION.

It having been represented to me by the Grand Jury for the city and county of New York, at the last Court of General Quarter Sessions, held for the said city and county, that on Friday, the 1st day of this instant February, about twelve of the clock at night, a letter was found under the door of the house of James Alexander, Esq., threatening him and his family with destruction, if a most villainous demand thereby made was not complied with: I being willing to put the earliest stop to such unparalleled a piece of wickedness and to prevent such villainous practices for the future, and in order for a discovery not only of the author, but the accomplices concerned in the conserting and contriving the said letter, so as he, or they, may be brought to condign punishment: I have therefore thought fit, with the advice of His Majesty's Council of this Province, to issue this proclamation, hereby promising a reward of Fifty Pounds, current money of this colony, to any person or persons who shall make discovery of the author of the before-mentioned letter, and of any accomplice or accomplices which were concerned in framing, conserting and contriving the same, or of either of them, to be paid to such person or persons who were the authors of or accomplices concerned in the framing and contriving thereof.

And as a further encouragement to a detection and discovery of so flagitious and heinous a crime as by the before-mentioned letter was designed, I do hereby promise the like reward of Fifty Pounds to any one of the accomplices concerned in the conserting, writing, framing or designing the said letter, or that were in any way privy, aiding, or assisting thereto, who shall make discovery of the author of the said letter, to be paid to such accomplice or accomplices upon the conviction of such author. And I do hereby also promise to such accomplice or accomplices, who shall make such discovery, as a further encouragement to incline them to a discovery and conviction of such author, as aforesaid, a full and free pardon for the offence by them, any or either of them, thereby done, committed and perpetrated, or by them being any ways privy, consenting, aiding or assisting thereto.

Given under my hand and seal, at Fort George, in New York, this nineteenth day of February, 1734.

W. COSBY.

By his Excellency's command,

Fred. Morris, D. Sec'y.

February 25, 1734:

M. Bradford: Having seen his Excellency's proclamation for the discovery of a scandalous piece of villainy, lately practised in this city, it made me reflect on a fine translation I remembered of one of David's psalms, by Tare and Brady; 'tis the 64th psalm, which I would recommend to the reading of all wicked men, in order to shock and restrain them, and to all good men, to please and confirm them, wishing it may prove prophetick, as they severally deserved it.

PSALM LXIV.

Lord, hear the voice of my complaint, To my request give ear. Preserve my life from cruel foes And free my soul from fear.

- O, hide me with thy tend'rest care In some secure retreat,
 And all their plots defeat.
- See how intent, to work my harm,
 They whet their tongues, like swords,
 And bend their bows to shoot their darts,
 Sharp lyes and bitter words.
- 4. Lurking in private, at the just
 They take their secret aim,
 And suddenly at him they shoot,
 Quite void of fear and shame.

- To carry on their ill designs
 They mutually agree;
 They speak of laying private snares,
 And think that none shall see.
- 6. With utmost diligence and care Their wicked plots they lay, The deep designs of all their hearts Are only to betray.
- 7. But God, to anger justly moved,
 His dreadful bow shall bend,
 And on His flying arrow's point Shall swift destruction send.
- Those slanders which their mouths did vent Upon themselves shall fall, Their crimes disclosed shall make them be Despised and shunned by all.
- The world shall then GOD's pow'r confess, And nations trembling stand, Convinced that 'tis the mighty work Of His avenging hand.
- Whilst righteous men, whem GOD secures, In Him shall gladly trust, And all the list'ning earth shall hear Loud triumphs of the just.

Lately imported, a choice parcel of swords; the blades are old, but the handles are made after the newest fashion. They may be worn, indifferently, by men, women or children, without hurting themselves or any other person; the blades, by being placed in a certain mathematical position, have contracted such extraordinary virtue, that they will ever prevent the person who wears them from being poisoned. They have many other good qualities, as may appear from affi—ts, taken before——. They may be had very reasonably at several smiths' and other shops.

N. B.—At the same places may be had the best sort of Italian pocket-pistols, with new invented powder, which will do a great deal of mischief at a distance without any report.

These are to give notice, that Arthur Browne now plyes in a boat, betwixt New York and South River, in New Jersey. If any gentlemen or merchants have any goods to send to Allins-Town, Burlington, or Philadelphia, he will carry such goods to South Riveras cheap as is usually paid for carrying to Amboy or New Brunswick. And from South River, Samuel Rogers, of Allins-Town, will carry such goods for one farthing per pound to Burden's Landing, on Delaware River. And the said Rogers has a boat that plyes between Philadelphia and Burden's Landing, in which he will convey goods at the price they have for carriage of goods from Burlington to Philadelphia. The said Arthur Browne will be at New York once a week, if wind and weather permits, and comes to the Old slip. Enquire of the printer hereof.

These are to give notice, that Deliverance Moore, the wife of James Moore, of Woodbridge, in New Jersey, is eloped from her said husband's bed and board; wherefore all persons are desired not to credit her, on her said husband's account; for as he is not obliged by law, so neither will he pay for anything she takes up during her said elopement.

JAMES MOORE.

August 27, 1734:

This day, His Excellency our Governour and family embarqued for his other Government of New Jersey, being attended to the water-side by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty, and sundry of the principal gentlemen of this city, and the officers and soldiers of the garrison, under arms. Upon their embarquing, they were saluted by the Fort with fifteen guns, and by the gentlemen with three huzzas.

At a Supreme Court of Judicature, held for the province of New York, at the city of New York, October 19, 1734: present, the Honorable James De Lancey, Esq., Chief Justice; The Honorable Frederick Philipse, Esq., Second Justice.

The Grand Jury having yesterday presented two scandalous and seditious songs or ballads lately dispersed about this city—one entitled A Song mode upon the Election of the new Magistrates for this City, the other entitled A Song mode on the foregoing occasion; both highly defaming the present administration of his Majesty's Government in the Province; tending greatly to inflame the minds of his Majesty's good subjects, and to disturb and destroy that peace and tranquillity which onght to subsist and be maintained in this Colony, and all other well-governed communities, of which virulent, scandalous and seditious songs or ballads they have not been able, on a strict enquiry, to discover either the author, printer, or publisher: It is therefore ordered by the Court, that the said virulent, scandalous, and seditious songs or ballads be burnt before the City Hall, sitting the Court, by the hands of the common hangman or whipper, on Monday, the 21st of this instant, at 12 o'clock, and that the High Sheriff of this city and county do take order accordingly.

Per Cur, J. HUGHES, Cl. in Cur.

November 25, 1734:

On the 17th instant, John Peter Zenger was taken up and committed to gaol, by virtue of an order of Council, for printing and publishing certain articles in the journal or newspaper entitled the New York Weekly Journal, &c., and on the 20th instant he was brought by a writ of habeas corpus before the Honorable James De Lancey, Esq., Chief Justice, at his Chambers, where the writ was returnable, who ordered the further argument of the matter to be at the City Hall, on the 23d, in the afternoon; at which place, after a long debate (the City Hall being crowded with people), the Chief Justice was pleased to order that the said John Peter Zenger should be admitted to bail; himself to be bound by recognizance in the sum of 400 pounds, and two sureties in 200 pounds each, for his appearance the next term, and remanded him to prison for want of such recognizance, which we don't hear is as yet entered into.

Last Saturday night His Excellency our Governour and family arrived here in good health, from his Government of New Jersey.

September 1, 1735 :

On Tuesday last, His Excellency our Governour embarqued for Albany, to meet the Six Nations of Indians, in order to renew the covenant chain, and was attended to the water-side by the Gentlemen of His Majesty's Council, the Corporation, and most of the principal merchants and gentlemen of the city, there being a greater concourse on the occasion than usual.

Whereas, Obadiah Hunt, tavern-keeper, having let his house to Mr. William Inglish, of this city, tavern-keeper, has two lusty young negroes for sale, one named Tobey, 22 years of age, brought up in his house from 7 or 8 years old, fit for cooking or washing linnen, or any sort of men or women's work; the other, a lad named Wooster, about 14 or 15 years old, brought up in the house from 8 or 9 years old, and fitting for any work. January 20, 1736:

February 3, 1736:

On Wednesday last, arrive l here the ship King George, from Bristol, by whom a gentleman here received a letter from a merchant in London, wherein were the words following, viz.: "London, November 28. Last night the affairs of Colonel Morris with your Governour came on before the Committee of the Council, when the lords gave it as their opinion, that the Governour's reasons for removing him were not sufficient."

Just published, Mr. Truman's Observations on Mr. Freeman's Performance against the Court of Chancery in Pennsylvania. Sold by Wm. Bradford.

February 24, 1736:

In the beginning of this paper, you have a description of a distemper that has carried off a great number of persons in New England; which being spread into these parts, a gentleman having received a receipt of the medicine which has cured many, he has sent it to be published, which is in the following manner, viz.: Mr. Bradford—I have received a receipt of a medicine for the cure of a sore throat, of which a great many have dy'd in New England, and the following medicine having been a means to save the lives of a great number, you are therefore desired to insert it in your Gazette, for the publick good.

Take a large handful of the leaves of mallows, which you must boyl in sweet cream; which done, take about half a point of the liquor in a cup, and give to the patient a tea-spoonful every half-hour, and gargle the throat with it and swallow it. Then take the cream and mallows that remain in the vessel they were boyled, and mix them with flour for a poultis, and apply the said poultis to the throat, and change the same every three hours, keeping the patient warm, and in forty-eight hours you may expect relief.

In New Jersey they have found relief by the following medicine: Take some honey and the sharpest vineger, with allom dissolved therein, and let the patients often gargle it in their throats; or if they be children, then take a feather and dip it into said liquor and so wash their throat.

Although in our last week's paper we gave an account that since the impostume in his Excellency's breast had been lanced, his cough was ceased, and there was a very great prospect of his recovery, which account was according to the opinions of his physicians and friends about him; yet since that, it appears that it was only an enlivening before death; for on Wednesday, the tenth of this instant, His Excellency Coll. William Cosby, Governour of this province, departed this life, after a severe illness of almost sixteen weeks; and on Saturday following he was decently interred in His Majesty's Chappel in the fort, his corps being attended by the gentlemen of the Council, the clergy of the city, the physicians that attended him in his illness, and most of the principal gentlemen and merchants, who, from an affectionate concern for his death, voluntarily assisted in paying their last duty to his remains. The grief and affliction of his family, the concern and regret of all that knew him, is a testimony that he was in relation of life a valuable man.

March 15, 1736:

We hear that about two years ago, a certain Irish gentlewoman was brought into this province a servant, but she pretended to be great fortune, worth some thousands (was called the Irish Beauty). Her master confirming the same, a certain young man (Mr. S-ds) courted her; and she seeming shy, her master, for a certain sum of money, makes up the match, and they were married, and go to their country-seat; but she, not pleased with that, persuades her husband to remove to the city of New York, and set up a great tavern. They did so. Next, she persuades her husband to embark for Ireland, to get her great portion. When he comes there, he finds her mother a weeder of gardens to get bread. In his absence, madam becomes acquainted with one Davis, and they sell and pack up her husband's effects (which were considerable), and embark for North Carolina. When they come there, they pass for man and wife, and he first sells the negro's and other effects, then sells her clothes, and at last he sells her for a servant, and with the produce returns to his wife in Rhode Island, he having made a good voyage. [Let this be a caution to ----.1

March 22, 1736:

Mr. Bradford: If you will insert the following relation in your next Gazette, you will oblige several of your constant readers, and particularly your friend,

J. S.

The late seizure of sundry boats belonging to New York, made by persons appointed to put in execution the act of Assembly made for the preservation of oysters within the province of New Jersey, having occasioned a great clamour and reflection against the inhabitants of this province (a gift, indeed, which has been long since nearest at hand, and which has been as liberally bestowed on us on every pretence): This, I say, together with the false representations of the facts, and of the treatment which the captors met with, has given us the trouble of writing this to inform the public of the truth of the transaction of the affair.

But, before I proceed, it may be necessary to premise, that the proprietors of the province of New Jersey are said to be legally vested under the Crown with a right (among other things) to all fishings on all the rivers to the westward of the channel, from Sandy Hook to Hudson River; I suppose the fishery of the oysters passed in that grant. I say, I suppose so; for I am not knowing enough to affirm it; yet I may assert (if the grant be good) that it is contrary both to the law of God and man, without the assent of the proprietor, to take away his property. This, however, may remind you of the east boundaries of our province, whose Assembly, I presume, have an equal right with any other of the American Colonies, to pass laws (upon a principle which will hold both in justice and policy), passed an act rendering all boats, &c., not belonging to an inhabitant of this province, or in which an unresident shall be raking oysters on the banks, seizable.

The occasion of putting this law in execution is this: several boatmen, in boats belonging to New York, provided themselves with chosen men, small arms, powder and bullets, &c., and, in direct opposition to the law, did gather large quantities of oysters from the beds within the bounds of this province; where Captain Hews (one of the Commissioners) accidentally, being with a white man and a negro, saw these men transgressing, &c.; he thereupon manfully attacked, entred and seized the boat of one John Cannon, who was called the Commodore, and was fastened to another, in which there was fifteen men, accourred as is before set forth; after his receiving many blows, they knocked him overboard, but he recovered himself, and seized the boat of one David Provoost, another of Jaques Dennis, and a pettianger of Alderman Romer, and brought them into Ambov: but Commodore Cannon and one William Cook got clear and hoisted a flag of defiance (as they called it), and dared the Jersevmen to attack them (as by their message). Capt. Hews pursued them, and Cook running aground, Hews came up with him. Cook, with six men, resisted, and presented their fire-arms at Capt. Hews (who had not any with him), but not being daunted thereat, he entred and seized Cook's boat; but in the engagement two of our men were knocked overboard, and had like to have been drowned. and two others of our men were wounded; when one of our men who were knocked overboard, being got upon Cook's deck again (and before he had recovered his senses), took up a cutlass and struck Cook over the head, which was the chief wound the New York men received, who then surrendered their loaded arms, one of which was loaded with nine swan shot, &c., 'twas said the rest were so too; but our men had no further curiosity than to discharge all their said fire-arms, and to secure the powder, ball, &c., which lay in readiness upon deck. After they had thus surrendered, then rebelled twice, and both times overcome. But, being landed at Perth Amboy, they were treated civilly, but conducted before the Mayor and other magistrates, who, upon complaint and proof of facts, committed against the words and intent of the law, could do no less than commit them; but they remained in the court-house without the restraint of a lock, and the third and fourth day they were all bayled out, and the whole matter accommodated with the persons who, by the act, had the right to the services, by the mediation of almost every one who was at hand, and the like was done in behalf of the owners of the other two boats and perrianger, who all (before they left Amboy) acknowledged their transgressions and the reasonable treatment which they had met with, not having paid an eighth of the forfeitures.

I should have told you before that W. Cook chose a private house for his lodging, where he had assistance from the doctor at the request of our people, and the next morning he was so well as to attend the doctor at his own house. As to a negro man assisting in this affair, we all blame the action, but it was accidental (as I mentioned before), and the part he acted was this: when Captain Hews entred the boat, they knocked him down with the teller, and the man being about to repeat the blow, the negro, apprehending what danger might happen, run to him with a pistol (without flint or powder), and swore he would shoot him if he killed his master, upon which a surrender ensued.

The greater part of the transactions of this relation I was a witness to, and the rest is, or may be, proved; and, if so, let any impartial reader judge if this deserves the hard measures we met with; or was it just and reasonable for —— of you to advise some hot-headed persons to come and make reprisals in our province, vi et armis, which they were ready enough to put in practice had not a certain lawyer advised in the case and told them it would be a riot, and, consequently, the actors might be committed. In the next place they seek occasion against the Jersey boats, and, upon search, they find in a boat that carries four coard and a half of wood, three sticks that were an inch shorter than the established length, for which he was fined forty shillings, which we think hard measure, because there were many more sticks longer than the three short ones; and if a person that buys has his quantity, we think it might suffice, and in equity answer the end of the regulation; but men are not always so happy as that the best things have the most patrons. What shall I do? Something must or ought to be done.

I've not the art of tickling vulgar ears, But yet my vote weighs somewhat with my peers. When A—'s judge, 'tis musick to be loud, And that which shocks the thinking charms the crowd.

Some others of our Jersey boats, I am told, have accidentally transgressed the ordinances of your city, and they have paid the full fines. I hope the watchfulness of said citizens will make our people more cautious. As to the Corporation of the city of New York just at this time to make a new regulation of the size of casks for beef and pork, looks as if it was done to prevent our carrying our beef and pork to New York; but it does not offend us, because we can find other markets to vend our country produce. And while we are thus taking advantage against one another, it will be a prejudice to both provinces for the present, but may turn to our advantage in time. (Necessity is the mother of inventions.)

However, the present circumstances of our poor countrymen bring to my remembrance what a great man long since wrote, which, as the rules are good and just, they may be of service to some of your readers; they are as follows, viz.:

Tis cruel pleasure to enjoy the pain Our sentence dooms the guilty to sustain. Justice forgets the first and great intent, When to revenge she turns the punishment. But 'tis a God-like happiness of mind, Freely to judge, with passion unconfined; To reason calmly, and, as things appear In their true light, be gentle or severe.

I have some more things to mention by way of complaint, but at present shall forbear, wishing we may agree, and not vex one another, but live in friendship with the other.

I am yours,

MIDDLETONIENSIS

March 28, 1736:

Last Saturday morning there was found posted up in the market and other public places in the city of New York, a printed paper, containing the following words, viz.: Whereas, on the 13th day of this instant March, James Alexander, one of his Majesty's Council for the Province of New York, was served with a protest by Rip Van Dam, Esq., against all persons who had aided, abetted or assisted, or should aid, abet or assist the Honorable George Clarke, Esq., in taking upon him or in keeping the administration of the Government.

And, whereas, the affairs of the said James Alexander called him to the Province of New Jersey on the 15th instant, where he remained until the 23d, and being returned back, he was this day informed that a certain paper had last week appeared in print, posted up in the market-houses and other publick places of the city; from the words of which many people had inferred that he, the said James, had advised and consented to the Honorable George Clarke's taking upon himself the administration of the Government, and to his issuing a proclamation notifying the same, &c.

Now, lest his silence should be interpreted as an admission or owning of the truth of that inference, and be used as an argument for subjecting the said James to the dangers in the said protest mentioned, he thinks it his duty, for his own safety, according to truth to declare, and he, the said James Alexander, doth hereby declare, that he denies that he ever advised or consented to the Honorable George Clarke's taking on him the administration of this Government, or to his issuing any proclamation, or to his doing any act of government whatsoever, as President.

In testimony whereof, he, the said James, hath hereunto set his hand.

JAMES ALEXANDER.

Whereas, the giving credit and keeping accounts of postage of letters is found to be both troublesome and inconvenient, and there being now in this Province a sufficiency of small change, so that the reason for introducing that custom is entirely ceased, notice is hereby given that for the future no accounts will be kept for postage of letters, nor any letters delivered till the postage thereof is paid; the Postmaster having been a great sufferer by giving such credits.

New York, Feb. 28th, 6 o'clock P. M. Just now we received the melancholy account, that this morning the wife of Capt. Harmanus Rutgers, of this city, being in perfect health, eat her breakfast as usual, and about 9 or 10 o'clock was taken with a fit, and dyed about 4 in the afternoon, without speaking a word, to the great surprise of her sorrowful husband, family, and friends.

April 4, 1737:

By the H.mourable George Clarke, Esq., Lieutenant-Governor and Communder-in-Chief of the Province of New York and the Territories thereupon depending, &c.:

A PROCLAMATION.

I having received the joyful news of His Majesty's happy deliverance from the late perilous storm he met with on his passage from Holland to England, and of His Majesty's safe arrival there; and thinking it but reasonable and necessary that so great and peculiar a blessing, which God, in His infinite mercy, hath been pleased to bestow on all His Majesty's subjects, as well in his remote dominions as those who have the happiness to be nearer to him, should be solemnly observed in thankful acknowledgments to heaven:

I have, therefore, with advice of His Majesty's Council, thought fit to issue this Proclamation, hereby appointing and directing that Thursday, the 21st day of April next, be observed throughout this province as a publick day of rejoicing and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His Majesty's deliverance from the dangers of the sea, and for his safe arrival in England;

Hereby likewise enjoyning and directing that divine service be performed in the forenoon of that day in all churches and chappels within this Province; and all rectors, pastors, vicars, curats, and all ministers of the Gospel whatsoever, of any churches or chappels within the said Province, are hereby directed and required to govern themselves accordingly, and to give notice hereof by reading this Proclamation immediately after divine service in the forenoon of the Sunday preceding the said 21st day of April, that all their congregations may have due notice thereof.

Given under my hand and seal, at Fort George, in New York, this thirty-first day of March, in the tenth year of our sovereign lord George the Second, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c., Anno Domini, 1787.

By His Honour's command, Fred Morris, D. Sec.

April 25, 1737:

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor having, by his proclamation of the 31st of March last, directed and enjoyned that Thursday, the 21st instant, should be solemnly observed throughout this province as a publick day of rejoycing and thanksgiving for his Most Sacred Majesty's happy deliverance from the dangers of the sea he met with on his passage from Holland to England, and of his safe arrival there, and having also directed and enjoyned that divine service should be performed in the forenoon in all churches and chappels within this province: The same was accordingly observed, and in a particular manner in this city, by all the ministers of the Gospel of the several congregations therein; and at the English church, in this city, after divine service performed, the Rev. Mr. Charlton preached a sermon on the following text: Psal. 144, v. 15: Happy is the people that is in such a case. Yea, happy is that people whose God is the Lord. His Honour, after divine service ended, returning to the fort, he was attended with the principal magistrates and gentlemen of the city, where the Boyal and Provincial healths were drank, under the discharge of the cannon from the fort (His Majesty's regular troops being the whole time under arms), and the evening was concluded with illuminations and the other usual demonstrations of joy.

L. E., one brown natural wig, half worn, and one old wig of goat's hair, which was put in buckle. and two broad-blade flourished-handled razors.

This is, therefore, to desire all wig-makers, shop-keepers, and all others to whom the said goods may be offered to sale or to pawn, that they will stop the same and give notice to said Thomas Child, or if the person or persons who may be possessed of said goods will return them, they shall be handsomely rewarded and no questions asked.

August 1, 1737:

Whereas, Anne, the wife of William Carr, of the city of New York, has behaved herself in an undecent and wicked manner, by being too familiar with a negro man, as was proved in open court, on Wednesday last, whereby she has broken the marriage contract, and he being informed that he is not under any obligation to live with or support her in her wickedness, and also drinking to excess: These are therefore to desire all shopkeepers, publick-house keepers, and all other persons, not to trust, nor to give the said Anne credit, on the said William Carr's account; for as he is not obliged, so nor will he pay any debts she shall contract, after the date of this publication. So, also, all persons are desired not to take goods in pawn from her.

Saturday last, a boy, about fourteen or fifteen years old, in this city, was handling a gun, a negro girl sitting in the yard, with a child in her arms. Westchester, March 29th.

MR. Bradford: A neighbor of mine having dreamed a dream, not only once but twice, and with some concern has told it publickly, I therefore send it to you, desiring you to print it, which will oblige one of your constant readers.

That I was at the city of New York, walking upon the south side of the town, and as I stood upon the dock I saw a car, drawn by two oxen and two horses, and a white man to drive it. Many spectators saw it as well as I, and wondered to see it drive so furiously. I asked whose team it was. Answer, that it was Colonel M——'s. I asked where they where going that they drove so furiously. Answer was made, it was going to M——. By this time I saw the team run furiously into the river, in sight of all the beholders, where it perished. But so soon as the team was sunk, I saw a great mastiff dog go into the river, and did fetch the driver out, and did shake him, and the driver turned, instantly, into a beast, with a pair of horns upon his head.

In our last, an account was given of a counterfeit three-pound bill, and a promise of a further description thereof in this paper. The publick is desired to take notice, that as they are done by hand, they may all differ, and consequently no other certain description can be given. However, we shall give what is most remarkable in the bill that is stopt. It is in imitation of those dated 10th December, 1737, signed S. Johnson, Jo Alexander, A. D. Peyster. In the false bill the coat-of-arms is larger than in the true bills, as is also the words THREE POUNDS, both on the top and middle of the bill; the three stamps of pounds in the true bills are gradually sloping to the bottom, but in the false bill they are as small at bottom as in the middle, and they are higher up in the false bill than the words THREE POUNDS; whereas, in the true bills these words and the stamps are near on a line

To all Gentlemen, Sailors, and others, who have a mind to try their fortunes on a cruising voyage against the enemy:

That the brig Hester and sloop Polly are now fitting out at New York in the best manner (under the command of Captain Francis Rosewell and Capt. S. Bayard); the owners of such vessels being to find everything necessary for such an undertaking. The brig is a fine new single-deck vessel of 150 tuns, to mount 32 guns, and to be manned with 120 men. The sloop is also new, burthen 100 tons, to mount 26 guns, and to be manned with 80 men; being both prime sailors, and are to go in company. Whoever inclines to go in either of said vessels, may see the articles at the house of Mr. Benjamin Kierstede, tavern-keeper, on the new dock.

By desire of several gentlemen and ladies, the Solar or Camera Obscura Microscope, which has given such general satisfaction, and so great a concourse of gentlemen and ladies continually attend to see it, is now removed to the house of Mr. John Kip, in Broad street, where the sun will serve all the day long.

It is the most entertaining of any microscope whatsoever, and magnifyes objects to a most surprising degree. The animalculæ in several sorts of fluids, with many other living and dead objects, too tedious to mention, will be shown incredulously magnified, and at the same time distinct, to the entire satisfaction of the spectators; as the circulation of the blood in a frog's foot, a flea, a fish's tail, and in many small insects, that a hundred of them will not exceed the bigness of a grain of sand, with their young in them. This curiosity was never shown before, by any person that travels.

The unparalleled Musical Clock, made by that great master of machinery, David Lockwood. This great curiosity performs by springs only; it is a machine incomparable in its kind; it exceeds all others in the beauty of its structure; it is most entertaining in its musick, and plays the choicest airs from the celebrated operas, with the greatest nicety and exactness. It performs with beautiful graces, ingeniously and variously intermixed, the French horn pieces performed upon the organ, German and common flute, flageolet, &c., as sonatas, concertos, marches, minuets, jiggs and Scotch airs, composed by Corelli, Alberoni, Mr. Handel, and other great and eminent masters of musick.

This beautiful curiosity has been shown twice before the KING, in His Royal Palace at St. James's, where His Majesty was pleased to make an observation on the excellence of its beauty, and declared he thought it the wonder of this age. It is allowed by all who have seen it to be more worthy to adorn a King's palace than of being exposed for a common sight. The inside of this machine may be viewed by gentlemen and ladies, and is to be seen from eight in the morning till eight at night.

A RIDDLE.

With youth and perfect beauty blest, From distant lands I came. Nor hath my country been ashamed To let me bear its name. When I was young, and strong and fair, A happy life I led; * But from the jilt, as years advanced, And I grew thin and old. The usage which I then received You'll scarce believe when told : With iron pincers first they seized Upon my tender frame. And forc'd me by consuming fire To change my former name. Within a dungeon streight and dark, Unhappy, I am thrown. With villains that have hearts as hard As iron or as stone. A hateful match for me she did Most barbarously provide : The circumstance I much desire For evermore to hide: Nor should have named, did I not know My fellow-prisoner's spite Was such, that they would never rest Till it was brought to light.

Ran away, on Wednesday, the 25th of January last, from Thomas Stanaland, near Bristol, in Bucks county and Province of Pennsylvania, an English servant-man named William Blones, aged about 21 years, of middle stature, fair and fresh complexion, dark eyes, short black hair, but perhaps has cut it off and got a cap; had on when he went away a light-coloured plain Duroy's coat, with mobair buttons, one button at each pocket and five at each knee; two jackets, one striped linnen and the other brown woollen. Woollen stockings, good shoes, and good felt hat. He took with him a bundle, in which was an old pair of leather breeches, tronsers, shoes and stockings, also some knives, razors and old buckles. He can't read, and has been but about five or six months in this country. It has also done much damage to several houses and buildings along the docks, by the vessels beating against them.

July 2, 1744:

Tuesday last His Excellency our Governour arrived safe here from Albany, and the next day His Majesty's declaration of war against the French king, as also His Majesty's most gracious declaration for the encouragement of his ships of war and privateers, were proclaimed with the usual solemnity; the streets being lined with militia of this this city, from His Excellency's house to the Fort, where they were first proclaimed, and from thence to the City Hall; to both which places His Excellency was attended by the members of His Majesty's Council, the Corporation, and a great number of the principal gentlemen of this city. After the solemnity was over, they returned to His Excellency's house, where His Majesty's and the Royal Family's healths. Success to His Majesty's arms.

July 30, 1744:

Last Saturday morning, about one o'clock, one George Grear, a journeyman hatter in this city, was found murdered in the street, near the door of the house where he lived. He cat his supper well on Friday night and went to bed about ten o'clock, but it is supposed he afterwards got up to get some water. Was speechless when found, and being carried into the house expired soon after. He had received two wounds on his head, which fractured his scull, and a wound in his side. The Coroner's inquest sat on Saturday, and are adjourned to this day. We hope the authors of this piece of inhumanity may be detected; but as yet it is not known who they are, notwithstanding the unparalleled vigilance and strict enquiry of our Magistrates.

July 30, 1744:

On Thursday afternoon last, a poor, lame woman, who went begging about the streets, having some words with a soldier, he drew his sword and cut her miserably down the back. The woman is not yet dead; but the man was the next morning committed to the City Hall.

August 6, 1744:

Thursday last sailed out of the Hook the privateer sloop Don Carlos, Captain Abraham Kip commander, mounting 12 carriage guns and 12 swivels, with upwards of 90 men on board, on a cruise against His Majesty's enemies. Two other vessels are fitting out here for the same purpose—a ship and a brig; both which are in great forwardness, and will sail as soon as possible.

Run away, on Wednesday, the 11th of July, from Gabriel Leggett, of the county of Westchester, a mulatto servant man of the darkest hue; being half Indian, half negro; named James; a lusty, stout fellow, of about twenty-eight years of age, and has somewhat of a hitch in his walking, which may be seen by taking notice; had on a brown jacket and breeches, a tow cloth shirt, but poor shoes, and an old hat; his hair is cut off. Whoever takes up and secures the said servant, so that his master may have him again, shall have forty shillings reward, and all reasonable charges, paid by

GABRIEL LEGGETT.

August 20, 1744:

On Monday morning last, departed this life, in the sixty-seventh year of his age, and the next day was very decently interred, the worshipfull and worthy John Cruger, Esq., Mayor of this city, whose affable, humane, and most obliging temper and deportment justly gained him the respect and esteem of all. He was elected and served as Alderman of the Dock Ward for twenty-two years successively; and in the year 1739 (to the general satisfaction of the inhabitants) appointed Mayor by his Honor the Lieutenant-Governor; in which office he continued with great applause to the day of his death. He was a most tender, indulgent parent, a kind master, an upright magistrate, and a good friend; and those to whom he was known must acknowledge he had and practised many excellent qualities, worthy of imitation; and as he always lived a sober, religious life, so he died with great calmness and resignation.

August 27, 1744:

To the Publisher of the Weekly Post Boy:

I am a poor widow, and have often set forth the deplorable state of my case to the Alderman of the ward; but he turns a deaf ear to all I can say; I must, therefore, beg you will give this a place in your paper, as an appeal to the publick for the justness of my cause. My husband died about three years ago, left me with three small children, a large score to pay off at tippling houses, for beer, punch, and cordials, occasioned by his too great attention to politicks and neglect of his cordwainer's occupation. After his death, I followed washing, making soap, candles, and some other small matters, which brought me in, now and then, a ready penny, enabling me to pay my husband's debts, and save enough to maintain my family, which I did in a frugal manner, having for some years past raised my own pork in my vard: but I am debarred from doing that, by a law of the Corporation, lately passed, for banishing all hogs out of the city, to the great damage of the poor widow and orphan, which law, I have been informed, was obtained at the earnest request and by the indefatigable industry of a certain city M----, famous for his consummate - in carrying points in publick communities. gentleman considered the benefit accruing to the publick by the hogs, the injustice of depriving the inhabitants of their company. I am apt to think he would not have been so precipitate in an affair of that consequence. In the first place, the filth raised in a family would raise a hog or two, which must now be thrown in the streets, and, of consequence, become a nuisance, much greater than after concoction, The using of hog's dung in medicine the poor will now be debarred of, and obliged to use foreign druggs for native distempers; for my doctor informs me (who, by the bye, is a very famous one, having all his knowledge by inheritance) that it is good for stopping of blood, excellent in a scald head, very good for the scurvy, extraordinary good for a cholick, steeped in rum with mullen and summer savory; for reducing a cancer, nothing like hog's fat, sugar cookies and strong beer, made into a poultice, applyed warm to the part affected; but he assures me it will be of no service to the Jews, because they are not allowed to have anything to do with them, by the Law of Moses.

I must further observe, that if they are to banish all nuisances, why don't they banish the dogs, the cats, drunken husbands and wives, the tubs of their necessary houses, introduce in the room of them vaults? These things, I am of opinion, would contribute more to the health and welfare of the community, than sending into exile that profitable creature, the hog. Consider him in all his parts: his bristles serves the shoemaker and brushmaker, his blood and guts make black puddings and sausages, his fat fries fish, boils olicooks, bakes pancakes, greases wooll, makes soap, excellent to eat with sappan, and good for pomatum. Gammon and cheek of bacon with spinage, a leg of pork and turnips, is a fine dish, none of the community can deny, except some that think it not consistent with the laws of God.

If this will not prevail upon the magistrates to repeal the law, nothing, I fear, will. But I would propose one exception to be added to the law, and that is, that every person that will fat hogs in their bedrooms, parlous or garrets shall not be deemed or esteemed to be within the meaning of this law, anything to the contrary notwith-standing; and I don't doubt many that are not more nice than wise, will readily comply with so reasonable a clause, rather than suffer their clarlings to remain in perpetual exile. And for so noble an addition, I, as in duty bound, for the enlargement of their capacities, will ever pray.

DEBORAH SE-E.

Whereas, about a fortnight ago three or four letters, directed to the printer of this paper, were left at the Merchants' Coffee-house in this city, among many other letters. by Captain Roman, from South Cardina, which letters have been, by ill-minded persons, either destroyed or conveyed away unknown; and as it is apprehended that one of them in particular is of consequence; this is to notify, that if any person will give sufficient information whereby the offender may have justice, he shall have twenty shillings reward; but if any person will return any or all the said letters, they will be thankfully received, and no questions, by

JAS. PARKER.

質 The keeper of the said Coffee-house's late usage to me, obliges me to have no more favorable sentiments of him than the case will allow

As this most scandalous, base, and pernicious practice is but too common and notorious in these parts, it were humbly to be wished that the Legislature would take it into their consideration, as they only are in the capacity to provide a remedy suitable.

November 5, 1744 :

Tuesday last being the anniversary of His Majesty's birth-day, the same was observed here with all possible demonstrations of loyalty In the forenoon, the militia were drawn up under arms in the Broad-way, from whence the artillery company first marched in two divisions, one to each battery, where they were posted at the guns, and were followed by the first division of the regiment and cadees, who regularly manned the batteries, and discharged three vollies of their small arms: then the second division marched and relieved them, and having fired three vollies as before, they were again relieved by the third. During this time His Excellency, attended by the Council and a great many of the principal gentlemen of this city, went up to the fort, where His Majesty's and other loyal healths were drank, under the discharge of twenty-one pieces of cannon, and night concluded with illuminations, &c.

January 28, 1745:

On Tuesday last ended the January Term of the Supreme Court of this Province, when Cuffee, a negro belonging to James Alexander, Esq., received sentence of death for feloniously breaking open and stealing several goods from his mistress's shop, and was to have been executed on Friday last, but the executioner dying suddenly the evening before, the execution was respited till to-morrow. The sentence of Jan Kelly, convicted as accessory to the said felony, is respited till the next term.

At the same Court, a baker and bolter of this city was convicted of three offences, viz. ; for selling several casks of unmerchantable bread, for that the same wanted weight; and for false tare of his casks: and was fined sixty pounds. We hear several prosccutions are carrying on against others for the like offences.

June 10, 1745:

Run away, the 16th instant, from Peter Cochran, of the city of New Brunswick, an English servant man named John King, aged about twenty-three years, of a middle stature. He had on, when he went away, a red cloath coat with metal buttons, flash sleeves and striped homespun lining, a blue cloath jacket, a check shirt, leather breeches, light-colored worsted stockings, new shoes, a felt hat, and a linen cap or wig. He halts as he walks, and is what is called splaw-footed. Whoever takes up and secures the said servant, so that his master may have him again, shall have forty shillings, New York currency, reward, and all reasonable charges paid by

June 24, 1745:

Last Tuesday, in the afternoon, the steeple of the new Dutch Church in this city was set on fire, close under the ball, by lightning; but being discovered before it got to a head, it was soon extinguished, chiefly by the courage of a few persons, who broke through the cupola at the hazard of their lives, and of having the lead melted about their ears. And we hear the elders of that church have presented them with twenty pounds, besides which they had presents from several other persons for their activity and bravery.

July 8, 1745:

Silvanus Seamans, who keeps the upper ferry, at the Narrows, on Staten Island side, having good boats for that purpose, proposes, besides the proper attendance at the said ferry, constantly to keep a passage boat to go from thence to the city of New York, which will certainly set out every Tuesday and Friday, and return the same day if possible, and at any other time, if passage or freight presents.

All gentlemen and others may depend on the best usage and care, either of themseves, horses, or goods of any kind; he also keeps very good entertainment for men and horses. On either of those days the boat may be found in New York by inquiring at Mr. John Cregier's, a corner house at the Old slip.

To yon, Bostonians, who have bravely fought, And risked your all, not to be worth a groat, Come fill your glass; and first to Pepp'rell's health. He's gained you honour, and preserved your wealth . To Warren let your gratitude be shown, For without him you had been surely blown; Unto your engineer a bumper's due; Without his art 't had ne'er been gained by you. Let the next bumper be for British aid, That all the cost may be by them repaid. When that is done, let that the æra be. From whence to date your true felicity. Likewise those priests that thought it just and right To pray and preach, then draw their swords and fight, Deserve a bumper, even should there be new light. Let General Wolcott's name remembered be In flowing bumpers, till you all can't see.

Last night died, in the prime of life, to the almost universal regret and sorrow of this city, Mr. John Dupuy, M. D. and Man Midwife, in which last character, it may be truly said, as David did of Goliah's sword, There is none like him.

The said Judith is a thin, lively woman, with hazel eyes, and a small scar on her face; wears sometimes a short scarlet cloak, at other times a long brown cloak, and has taken her son with her, aged about 4 years, a handsome, lively boy, with his hair cut off

January 27, 1746:

We are credibly informed, that some days ago a fish was found dead, ashore, near Horsimas, in New Jersey, opposite the back of this city, having a head nearly resembling that of a man, with some hair on it.

It was first discovered by a young man, who, observing the crows very busy at it, went to view it, and at coming home told his father; but his father, thinking it only the effect of an idle imagination, took no further notice of it till some days after, when some other persons, going that way, also perceived it; but not yet thinking it worth their while, or else being afraid to meddle with it, they let it lie some days longer; by which time the crows had almost entirely carried off all the body, except the bones; which, 'tis said, about the breast and ribs, very much resembled the human anatomy: but as it draws towards the tail, ends entirely a fish. This strange phenomena has occasioned no small speculation all over that part of the country, as well as in some parts of this city. However, we are told it has been since discovered, or at least thought to be only a porpoise with his snout cut of; but whether a porpoise has ribs resembling a man's, or anything like hair on its head, must be submitted to those who are better acquainted with the dissection of those fishes than we dare pretend to be.

April 7, 1746:

* To the Beaux Exprits engaged in the midnight expedition last week:

Gentlemen—We cannot forbear joining the universal acclamation of our fellow-citizens upon your late surprising achievements. not long before that we had traced you by a range of broken windows and curious pieces of black paint. These attracted the wondering eves of passengers, and became the sole conversation of the town. But how have you surpassed yourselves by the general assault made by the body of your fraternity upon the knockers of the doors of houses in this city! pernicious instruments, that by their thundering noise have often terrified families, occasioned faintings, and sometimes bro't on miscarriages! This, gentlemen, was as serviceable, laudable, and glorious an enterprise as we have an account of in the history of the Renowned Don Quixotte! Your perfections are truly of your own acquiring! The suddenness and secrecy of your nocturnal sallies, the celerity of your movements, and the dexterity of your limbs, are to be wholly ascribed to your own personal genius and application. By this immortal adventure you have at once signalized vourselves, and dispersed your reputation throughout the whole province. We, with the rest of our fellow-citizens, are greatly afflicted, and filled with becoming resentments, on this extraordinary occasion. But your well-known and generous disregard of popular applause renders it entirely vain to enter upon an elegy on your wonderful qualities; and, indeed, your actions soar as much above the rules of praise as they do that of envy; we shall therefore only concur with the voice of the people, that, in consideration of this gallant exploit of your fraternity, each of the worthy members, as a reward justly due to their high deserts, may (by the leave of our vigilant magistrates) be generously advanced to the most Publick Post in the city.

We are, gentlemen, your hearty well wishers,

By His Excellency the Honourable George Clinton, General and Governour-in-Chief of the Province of New York, and the Territories thereon depending in America, Vice-Admiral of the same, and Vice-Admiral of the Red Squadron of His Majesty's Fleet:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, the present circumstances of publick affairs make it necessary to prohibit all and every vessel whatsoever, sailing out of this province, I have, therefore, thought it fit, by and with the advice of his Majesty's Council, to issue this proclamation, hereby, in his Majesty's name, strictly prohibiting any vessel whatsoever to sail out of this port for the space of one month from the date hereof, unless my order in Council be first obtained for that purpose; and the officers of his Majesty's Customs, and a'l others whom it may concern, are to take care that due obedience be given to this proclamation, as they will answer the contrary at their utmost peril.

Given under my hand and seal at-arms, in the city of New York, the second day of June, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and forty-six, and in the nineteenth year of his Majesty's reign.

G. CLINTON.

A REWARD OF TEN POUNDS

To any one who shall discover the person or persons who set fire to the leaves in my woods, on Saturday afternoon last, behind my barn, so that he or they may be brought to justice, paid by me,

NICHOLAS BAYARD.

Notice is hereby given to all persons whatsoever, that after the date hereof, the first person that it can be proved against, that shall fire a gun in my woods, or any inclosure on my farm near fresh water, must expect to be sued for trespass, and all damages that I have sustained by firing of guns, &c.; and the reason of my giving this publick notice is, that they may not hereafter plead ignorance. On Saturday afternoon last, the dry leaves in my woods behind my barn was set on fire, and very probably by the wad of a gun; and, the wind blowing fresh; it soon got to a great head, and within forty yards of my stacks of hay, grain, barn, &c.; but by a chance discovery and timely assistance of some people at work hard by, the fire was happily extinguished.

NICH, BAYARD,

January 19, 1747:

On Wednesday last, in the forenoon, a fire broke out in the roof of the City Hall, at some distance from the chimney; but by the immediate attendance of the Magistrates, and assistance of the inhabitants (who have always been remarkable for their readiness and dexterity on such occasions), it was soon extinguished. Three persons were observed to be extraordinary active and useful: one was Francis Davison, a carpenter (being the same person that was so instrumental in extinguishing the fire formerly in the cupola of the new Dutch Church), who got out upon the roof with an axe, and cut the roof open where the fire was; the engines at the same time playing the water upon him, and the weather being intensely cold, by the time the fire was out, he was cloathed with ice: the other two persons, Duncan Brown, mate, and John Ebbets, mariner, belonging to a vessel in the harbour.

The next day the Corporation met, and sent for the said Francis Davison, Duncan Brown, and John Ebbets, when the Mayor returned them the thanks of the Corporation for their good services, and ordered seven pounds to be paid to the said Francis Davison, and four pounds each to the said Duncan Brown and John Ebbets, by their Treasurer, and also ordered each of them to be presented with the freedom of the Corporation, as an encouragement to others to behave with the same spirit and diligence on such occasions.

It is not certainly known how the fire began; but as it first broke out under the shingles in a room where the criminals were confined, and at a considerable distance from the chimney, it is generally believed the fire was put there by those criminals.

As several persons have signified their desire of hiring books from the Library belonging to the Corporation of this city, but the time of attendance being short, and the cold weather rendering it uncomfortable, they neglect it, this is to give notice that on any person's signifying a day beforehand what book they would have, they may, at any time, have such book of the printer hereof, they giving the usual security for the same. Catalogues to be had for sending for.

February 9, 1747:

Our kind readers must now naturally expect a great dearth of news. and we are, therefore, quite at a loss what to give that may be agreeable; we must then beg their patience, when we tell them what can be no news here, and what too many of them know experimentally better than we can express; but as it may be news in distant parts. it can't be altogether unreasonable, since we have nothing else better to say. The deplorable circumstances this city is under, from a long series of cold and freezing weather, is matter of concern to all. This now not only hinders our foreign navigation (and so, consequently, prevents news), but occasions our fire-wood to be so scarce and dear as was never equalled here before; the price being from 40s. to 58s. a cord, and almost half the inhabitants in want. Provisions, also, are excessive dear; a good turkey, which scarcely ever before exceeded 3s. 6d., has lately been sold for 5s.; a fat fowl for 1s. 6d.; a pound of butter for 14d., and many other things proportionable. Under all these disadvantages, what must our poor suffer! Our rivers continue full of ice, and a gloomy prospect now o'erspreads them.

THE FAMOUS ANODYNE NECKLACE, for children's teeth, recommended in England by Dr. Chamberlen, with a remedy to open and ease the foregums of toothing children, and bring their teeth safely out.

Children on the very brink of the grave, and thought past recovery, with their teeth, fits, fevers, convulsions, hooping and other violent coughs, gripes, looseness, and all proceeding from their teeth, who cannot tell what they suffer, nor make known their pains any other way but by their crying and moans, have almost miraculously recovered, after having worn the famous Anodyne Necklace but one night's time. A mother then would never forgive herself, whose child should die, for want of so very easy a remedy for its teeth. And what is particularly remarkable of this necklace is, that of those vast numbers, who have had this necklace for their children, none have made any complaints, but express how glad they have been that their children have worn it; whereas, if they had not had it, they believed their children would have been in their graves; all means having been used in vain till they had the Necklace.

By His Excellency the Honourable George Clinton, Captain-General and Governour-in-Chief of the Province of New York, &c.

To Mr. James Parker, Printer to the General Assembly of the Province of New York:

Whereas, some persons, calling themselves a Committee of the General Assembly of this Province, came into an apartment of my house, on the 9th instant, while I was engaged in my private affairs, and, without the least previous notice, one of them offered to read a large bundle of paper, which he said was a remonstrance from that House, and desired my leave to read the same, which I absolutely refused, or to have it left with me: And whereas the Speaker of the said General Assembly hath, in disregard to my authority and person, ordered the same to be printed by you in their votes, altho' I had forewarned you by my Secretary not to do it: But, as you afterwards signified to him, that a verbal order was not sufficient to forbid you printing anything to that purpose—I Do hereby, in His Majesty's name, expressly forbid you, or any other person in this Province, to reprint or otherwise publish the said paper, called a Remonstrance of the General Assembly of this Province, as you and they shall Historical Account of the Great Seal of New England.

DURING THE ADMINISTRATION OF SIR EDMUND ANDROS, WHICH WAS ALSO, DURING A BRIEF PERIOD, THE SEAL OF THE PROV-INCE OF NEW YORK.

BY GEORGE ADLARD.

(From C. B. Richardson's Historical Magazine for April, 1862.)

In September, 1685, Thomas Dongan, then governor of the Province of New York, wrote home to England, that "a new seal of this Province is very much wanting, and ye people extraordinary desirous to have ye King's Seal to their Patents and other papers that concern them."

No new seal, however, appears to have been provided until the 14th August, 1687, when a warrant was issued for it by James II. It is described in the warrant as "engraven on the one side with our royal effigies, on horseback in arms, over a landskip of land and sea, with a rising sun and a scrole containing this motto:—Aliusq. et Idem. And our titles round the circumference of the said seal: there being also engraven on the other side, our Royal Arms, with the Garter, Crown, Supporters and motto, with this inscription round ye circumference—Sigillum Provincia Nostra Norie Elevaci, &c. in America."

In 1686, in the second year of James II., Sir Edmund Andros had been appointed governor of the New England Colonies, whereupon a new Great Seal for New England was ordered, which is thus described in the receipt, dated 29 Sept., 1686, given for it by Andros, which is preserved in the State Paper Office, London.‡ Andros arrived in Boston on the 20th December, 1686.

"Engraven on the one side with His Majesty's effigies standing under a canopy, robed in his royal vestments and crowned, with a sceptre in the left hand, the right hand being extended towards an Englishman and an Indian, both kneeling; the one presenting the fruits of the country, and the other a scroll, and over their heads a cherubim holding another scroll, with this motto—Nanquam libertas gratior extat, with his Majesty's titles around the circumference; there being on the other side the King's Arms, with the Garter, crown, supporters and motto, and this inscription round the circumference:

Sigillum Novæ Analiæ in America."

In 1688, when James II. joined and annexed to the government of the New England colonies, the Provinces of New York and East and West Jersey, with the territories thereunto belonging, he directed that the seal appointed for New England should be thenceforth made use of for all that territory and dominion, and that the seal for New York should be destroyed. He also directed Gov. Dongan, in resigning the government, to surrender the seal to Andros.

The "Instructions for Sir Edmund Andros," preserved in the State Paper Office, London, contain the following:—"And whereas since our accession to the crown, Wee have appointed a new seal for our Colonies of New England, as also another seal for our Province of New York, which being now united under one government, Wee do hereby direct and require that the seal appointed for the said Colony of New England, be henceforth made use of for all that our territory and dominion in its largest extent and boundaries aforementioned, and that the Seal for our Province of New York be forthwith broken and defaced in your presence."

This was done on the 11th August, 1688, and the proceeding is thus described by an eye-witness:—"Upon His Excellency's return to Boston, he received His Maties gracious commission for the annexing the Province of New York and ye East and West Jerseys to His Maties territory of N. England, whereupon he addressed himself to that service with all convenient speed, and being accompanied with severall of the Members of His Maties Councill, arrived at New Yorke on Saterday, the 11th of Sept. [August] last, being mett by a regiment of foot and a troop of horse belonging to that place. His Maties commission was read in ye fort, and afterwards published at ye Citty Hall, and immediately His Excellence sent for and received from Col. Dongan the seal of the late Govt, which was defaced and broken in Councill: then a proclamation for continuing the revenue, and all persons, civill and military, in their respective offices till further order, was published."†

The arrangements made by virtue of these instructions lasted for a very short period—only seven months—Andros being deposed in April, 1689, on the abdication of James II.

^{*} Instructions for Sir Edmund Andros, N. E., vol. xxxiii., p. 546. † N. Y. Col. Hist., vol. iii., p. 567.

Chalmers, in speaking of this Great Seal of New England, says that it was "honoured with a remarkable motto."

Mr. Geo. H. Moore, the Librarian of the Historical Society, having aided me very materially in tracing the history of this seal, furnishing me with much of the information now given, has traced the origin of this "remarkable motto," which he found in Claudian, the last of the Latin classic poets, who in his panegyric on the consulship of the famous Vandal Stilicho says—

"Nunquam libertas gratior extat Quam sub rege pio."

(Liberty is never more acceptable than under a pious king.)*

The idea being that a good government and a rational degree of liberty are then united. The seal denotes colonial subjection to the crown, as to the population, wishes, and productions of the country.

In the seal the latter portion of the quotation from Claudian was very wisely omitted by the king, he doubtless feeling that his claim as a "pious king" was very slender, and might be disputed, even though his grandfather claimed to be. "Vieegerent of God."

Desirous of knowing whether any impression of this seal existed among the archives in the State-house at Boston, I examined, with the assistance of Mr. Pulsifer, of the Secretary of State's Office, the documents there preserved, but failed in meeting with any. Dr. O'Callaghan has examined the archives at Albany, and no impression of this seal is there to be found. One of the most diligent and trustworthy of the recent writers on New England history (Mr. Arnold), says, "No copies of the Andros seal appear in the British archives." That in my possession is in good preservation, and is, in all probability, unique;—the only impression extant; unless any may be found in private collections.

The document to which this seal is attached, is also of interest. The commission of Sir Edmund Andros, dated April 7, 1688, contains the following : \dagger

"And Wee do hereby give and grant unto you the said Sr Edmund Andros, full power and authority to erect one or more Court or Courts Admirall within said territory and dominion, for the hearing

^{*} In singular connection with this I find the motto to the arms of Viscount Sidmouth, Home Secretary in the reign of George III., to be "Libertus sub rege pio" (Liberty nucler a pious King). Under this authority a Court of Admiralty was appointed, consisting of Joseph Dudley, William Stoughton, and Peter Buckley, as follows:

Joseph Dudley was the first chief-justice of New York, and was afterwards governor of Massachusetts. An admirable sketch of his life, from the pen of Judge C. P. Daly, is to be found in his "Historical Sketch of the Judicial Tribunals of New York, from 1623 to 1846."

With the view to the preservation and safe-keeping of this interesting Seal, I have presented it (together with the document to which it is attached), to the New York Historical Society, to be kept among its archives

The Duguenot Settlers

NEW YORK CITY AND ITS VICINITY.

BY FRANK W. BALLARD,

THE student of history, while poring over the pages which record the rise, reign, and ruin of mighty empires, the consummation of stupendous plans, the brilliant achievements of the warrior, the statesman, and the philosopher, cannot ignore or forget that there must remain locked up in the obscurity of the remote past a large amount of historical material, which, if it could be redeemed from oblivion and wrought up by some master-hand, would contribute not merely to the gratification of our curiosity, but would shape anew many of our most cherished opinions.

The secret history of nations and heroes—could it be written would contain mention of many names, and exploits, and experiences, which are now as dead to us as though they had never had an existence and occurrence upon our planet.

Pre-eminent among these "Lost Platadts" of history may well be placed the names, the characters, the sufferings of those whom persecution has tortured, murdered, or exiled on account of their adherence to the forms and "faith once delivered to the saints." Of these truly noble men and women too little is known by us whom God has permitted to enter into their labors; and the meagre mention which history makes of them, only serves to beget

"The wish to know—that endless thirst, Which e'en by quenching is awaked."

Whether, in the providence of God, this generation, or those which are to follow, shall be allowed to make new discoveries and gather fresh information respecting the martyrs whose blood has been in all ages the seed of Christ's Church—is a question that may not be decided by us. But it would seem alike prudent and proper, that what has been permitted to engraft itself upon our minds and memories, connected with past persecutions of God's people, should be retained fresh and perennial, nor suffered to wither out of our recollection, as, alas! too much has already been allowed to do.

Under a deep conviction that there is among us a growing indifference to the history and the claims of at least one portion of the noble army of martyrs, and with a view to revive, by local allusions, the interest which, as New Yorkers, we should ever cherish respecting those who, having suffered for "conscience's sake," found refuge and peace upon this our island, we would present the fruits of a little historical research respecting

The Pluguenot Settlers of New York and its Ficinity.

"History gives us an account of no race of men in whom loftier virtues are united, than the Huguenots who fled from France, upon the revocation of the Edict of Nantz. Piety without bigotry, firmness without obstinacy, love of country second only to love of God, courage which feared only to do wrong, and principle which halted at no sacrifice, were developed in them to a degree, that has seldom, if ever, been eanaled. Such is the deliberate and uncontradicting testimony of impartial history. The miserable policy of the infatuated Louis deprived him of nearly half a million of his best subjects, and gave to Germany, Denmark, Holland, and Great Britain, a population who carried with them, not only the higher virtues, but the arts and embellishments of life. And when the hospitalities of these Protestant kingdoms had been extended to the utmost, it was found that thousands were still without a refuge. These homeless ones were pointed to the new world, and gladly did they avail themselves of the security which it offered."

"On the 22d of October, 1685, Louis XIV. signed the revocation of the 32birt of Nanty. O O The provisions of the Edict were carried out with inflexible rigor. The pastors were driven into immediate banishment, the laity were forbidden to follow them; but in spite of prohibitions and perils, in the face of the attainder and of the galleys, there were few abjurations and many refugees. Some crossed the frontier sword in hand, others bribed the guards and assumed all sorts of disguises; ladies of quality might be seen crawling many weary leagues, to escape at once from their persecutors and their country. Some put out to sea in frail and open boats, preferring the cruel chances of winds and waves to the more cruel certainty of their fierce human oppressors; and fair women, who had lived all their lives in affluence, and whose cheeks the air of heaven had never visited too roughly, fled without food or store, save a little brackish water, or gathered snow by the roadside, with which the mothers moistened the parched lips of their babes. Protestant countries received the refugees with open arms. England, America, Germany, Switzerland, Denmark, Sweden, Russia, Prussia, Holland-all profited by this wholesale proscription of Frenchmen. It is difficult to estimate the numbers who escaped. Vauban wrote a year after the revocation, that France had lost one hundred thousand inhabitants, sixty millions of francs in specie, nine thousand sailors, twelve thousand veterans, six hundred officers, and her most flourishing branches of manufacture and trade. Sismondi considers the loss to have exceeded three hundred thousand men; and Capefigue, the latest writer on the subject, and an adversary to the Protestant cause, reports that at least two hundred and twenty-five thousand quitted the kingdom. But all are agreed that the refugees were among the bravest, the most loyal, and the most industrious in the kingdom, and that they carried with them the arts by which they had enriched their country. and abundantly repaid the hospitality which afforded them, in other lands, that asylum which was denied them in their own."

In England, a recent writer remarks: "Many of the refugees and their descendants attained honorable positions, and well served the country of their adoption, in art, and science, and statesmanship, and jurisprudence, and literature, and arms. Thomas Savery, a refugee, was the inventor of a machine for draining marshes, and obtained a patent for it so long ago as 1698. Denis Papin, a refugee, realized a century before Watt watched the tea-kettle, the great idea of steam-power, and had a notion, which they called a "pretension" then, of navigating vessels without oars or sails. Saurin burst into the reputation of his eloquence at the Hague; but at the old French church in Threadneedle street, he 'preened his wings of fire.' Abbadie discoursed with mild and earnest persuasion in the church at the Savoy, and then wrote with ability and effect from the deanery of Killaloe. The first literary newspaper in Ireland was published by the pastor Droz, a refugee, who founded a library on College Green, in Dublin. The physician Desaguliers, the disciple and friend of Newton; Thelluson (Lord Rendlesham), a brave soldier in the Peninsular war, more distinguished than notorious; Thelluson, the millionairs, the eccentric will-maker, more notorious than distinguished; General Ligonier, who commanded the English army at the battle of Lawfield; General Provost, who distinguished himself in the American war; General de Blaquiere, a man of high personal valor and military skill; Labouchere, formerly in the British Cabinet; Lord Eversley, who, as Mr. Shaw Lefevre, was the Speaker of the House of Commons; Sir John Romilly, the Master of the Rolls; Sir Samuel Romilly, his humane and accomplished father; Majendie, some time Bishop of Chester; Saurin, once Attorney General for Ireland; Austen Henry Layard, the excavator of Nineveh—all these, it is said, are descendants of the families of the French refugees."

"The refugee blood circulates beneath many a sturdy patronymic, whose original wearer we might have sworn had lived in the Heptarchy, or trod the becchen glade in the times of Eanwolf and Athelstan. Who would suppose for a moment, that there can lurk anything Norman in the colorless names of White and Black, or in the authoritative names of King and Masters, or in the juvenile name of Young, or in the stave-and-barrel suggesting appellation of Cooper, or in the light and airy denomination of Bird? Yet history tells us that these are the names now borne by those who at the close of the last century rejoiced in the designations of Leblanc, Lenoir, Loiseau, Lejeunes, Le Tonnellier, Lemaitre, Leroy. The fact was, that when Napoleon threatened to invade England—to which they owed so much—they felt ashamed of being Frenchmen, and translated their names into good, sturdy Saxon."

In the records of our own country, no less than in those of Britain, the names and influence of the Huguenots add lustre to almost every page. The very first attempt at a lodgment within what are now the territories of the United States, having peaceful colonization as its chief object, was made by French Protestants, in 1562, at the instance of Admiral Coligny, with the concurrence of Charles IX. On an island in the Port Royal River, South Carolina, was located this little colony; which, by its many hardships and the final massacre of its members, has earned a proud distinction as among the most brilliant examples of Christian heroism. Comparatively isolated from their fellows, deprived of all the solaces of society, frequently facing starvation, exercised by the double fear of Indians by land and Spaniards by sea, reduced to an extremity which demanded the sacrifice of a comrade's life, that the survivors might make a meal upon his corpse; and finally, overcome by their Spanish foes, hanged upon the trees beneath which they had worshiped-hanged too, because they were Protestants, rather than because they were Frenchmen-what wonder is it that the good Coligny abandoned further attempts to plant and sustain colonies of Huguenots in soil seemingly so uncongenial and unpromising? Were our theme other than a local one, or were the space allotted for its discussion less stringently limited, appropriate allusion might be made to the many subsequent settlements in various localities, of these unfortunate victims of persecution. In 1679, seven years before the revocation, Charles II., of England, had, at his own expense, provided the means of transporting to Carolina a number of French Protestants, who proposed to raise wine, oil, silk, and other productions of southern climes. But from the year 1686 may be dated the Quouenot hegira, whose results have done so much to enrich our country and ennoble its people. Many of these refugees for conscience's sake sought an asylum in New England. In a portion of the town of Oxford, Massachusetts, thirty French Protestant families found a home and a warm accompaniment of sympathy. Eleven thousand acres of land were assigned to them, and Boston, Salem, and other cities contributed to their necessities. Boston, also, offered its hospitalities to the homeless immigrants, and it was not long before a Huguenot Church was organized and a building erected for worship, in School street, in that city. Virginia likewise was openarmed to receive the wanderers. In 1690, King William III. sent a large body of French refugees to that colony. To some, lands were allotted on the banks of James River. Others of them, who were not quite impoverished, purchased lands from Carolina proprietors. and located themselves and their familes on the River Sautee. Such of the refugees as were mechanics or merchants settled themselves in Charleston, where they pursued their accustomed avocations: and it is generally conceded that all of these settlers proved themselves a valuable acquisition to the colony of which thenceforth they became a part.

Before this crisis in the history of French Protestantism, our own city asserted her claims to be considered, thus early, the great international focus of the world. Bancroft, speaking of the New York of two centuries ago, remarks, "Its settlers were relics of the first fruits of the Reformation, chosen from the Belgic Provinces and England, from France and Bohemia, from Germany and Switzerland, from Piedmont and the Italian Alps;" and in referring to the outlawry and ostracism of the Huguenots, the same historian tells us that "the city of Amsterdam offered the fugitives a free passage to America, and a welcome reception was prepared in New Netherlands, for the few who were willing to emigrate." "The persecuted of every creed and every clime were invited to the colony. When the Protestant churches in Rochelle were razed, the Calvinists of that city were gladly admitted; and the French Protestants came in such numbers, that the public documents were sometimes issued in French as well as in Dutch and English." This, too, as early as the year 1656.

In the records of New York's earliest settlement are to be found numerous traces of the Huguenot element mingling with, and, to some extent, moulding the Dutch population. Many names receive honorable mention in the pages of the old chronicles, or are found scattered through political, commercial, or religious documents, which beyond question must have belonged to Huguenots. The first white child born in the colony of New Amsterdam was Sarah. daughter of George Jansen de Rapelje, a Huguenot driven into Holland by the terrors of the St. Bartholomew massacre, and thence emigrating to the promising settlement at the mouth of Hudson's River. This child was born in what is now known as Brooklyn, on the 9th of June, 1625, and tradition tells us that the Indians commemorated the circumstance of her being the first white child born here, by giving to her father and his fellow-countrymen a liberal present of lands adjacent to Wallabout Bay. The names of some of Rapelie's associates prove them to have been Huguenots; as, for instance, L'Escuver, Durvee, La Sillier, Cershow, Consillaer, and Musseral-all of which, slightly changed by two centuries of mouthing. are still to be found in our directories.

1650 is given as the date of Huguenot settlements in Ulster county, at a place called @Hittwick, near Kingston, and also at X'tw $\partial{\text{3}}atty. The refugees located at Wiltwick were, however, sadly persecuted by frequent Indian invasions, one of which, partaking of the nature of a massacre, occurred in 1663. The savages carried away captive several members of the Lefevre and Dubois families, who were providentially rescued from torture and martyrdom, at an opportune moment. It is said that one of the female captives was found fastened to the funereal pyre, chanting the Hebrew psalm, "By the rivers of Babylon," in prospect of speedy death. In this connection it may be stated that, subsequently, the entire extinction of the Dubois family was providentially prevented under somewhat sigular circumstances. A Mr. and Mrs. Dubois, with others, were returning from Kingston, in a sleigh, and, while crossing the Hudson, the ice gave way, plunging the whole party into the river. Mrs. Dubois, with great presence of mind, threw her infant, an only son, upon a floating cake of ice, which bore him down the stream to a place of rescue, while all the other occupants of the sleigh were drowned. This child was the only male member of the Dubois family, and but for his escape the name would have been extinct.

Itte Ittrett, on Long Island, appears to have been among the towns whose population included Huguenots before the general immigration which followed the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. This town was settled in 1654 by Hollanders and Palatines, to whom, August 15th, 1666, a patent was issued by Governor Richard Nicholls, in which, among the landholders, we find the names of Francis Bruyin and Robert Pennoyer. Another patent, issued by Governor Dongan, May 13th, 1686, mentions Jacques Corteljour and Anthony Duchaine as among "the present freeholders and inhabitants of the said town of New Utrecht." We find that March 1st, 1665, an address, fall of gratitude and loyalty, was presented to the Duke of York, bearing in its list of signatures the name of this same Jacques Corteljour, who heads the list, as representative of New Utrecht.

Sheltr Jstand, off Sag Harbor, seems also to have furnished a home for Huguenots, if we may judge by the title being vested in the Sylvester family, as early as the year 1666. During many subsequent years this family resided on the island, as we find traces of them in history in 1674; and one of the descendants, Brinley Sylvester, is named as one of the Justices of the General Court of Sessions of Suffolk county, in March, 1723.

Among the earliest Huguenot settlements around New York, that upon Statru Island deserves especial mention. In 1661, a number of refugees from Rochelle were already established in Richmond county, and on the 22d day of August, in that year, a new village was commenced a few miles south of the Narrows. Here a dozen or more families located immediately, built a block-house as a defense against the Indians; and, being unable to sustain a minister of their own, were ministered unto by Domine Drisius, who visited the island once in two months, to preach in French and administer the sacrament. There is much of romantic incident interwoven with the early history of the Staten Island Huguenots. Many of them were of high social position in their native country, and their sacrifices and sufferings form a painfully suggestive chapter in the history of modern martyrdom. Weiss relates that "Henri de La Tourette fled from La Vendee after the revocation, and, to avoid suspicion, gave a large entertainment, and, while the guests were assembled, he suddenly left, with his wife, for the sea-coast." Having reached the coast, he escaped on board of a vessel bound for Charleston. ship was either cast away upon Staten Island or made a harbor in distress, and her passengers found an unexpected welcome from Huguenot brethren there settled. The La Tourette name is to this day perpetuated in that vicinity, one of the descendents being, or until recently having been, settled as pastor over a Reformed Dutch Church near Richmond. The Disosways and Guions trace their family record back to France through the Richmond county refugees, and in some instances Staten Island farms, at the present day, are occupied or owned by direct descendants from the original Huguenot proprietors, whose names may yet be seen on the grave-stones which mark their resting-place.

Names occur with greater or less frequency in the early annals of New Netherlands, which prove the presence of French Protestants in the colony before the revocation in 1685.

We are told by Valentine that Johannes Delamontagnie, a Huguenot refugee, arrived in New Amsterdam in the year 1637, being then about forty-five years of age. This gentleman was honored by Governor Kieft with an appointment as a member of the Council, an office at that time second in authority in the Government. Mr. Delamontagnie purchased a farm of some two hundred acres at Harlem, paying for the property $720, and naming it the "Vredendal," or Valley of Pence. This farm was situated at the east of the present Eighth avenue, and between Ninety-third street and the Harlem River. A grandson of John Delamontagnie, named Vincent, was born April 22d, 1657, and died May 26th, 1773, at the advanced age of one hundred and sixteen years. It is scarcely necessary to say that numerous descendants from this early settler are still among us, although, in some instances, abbreviations have taken place in their names.

On the 2d of October, 1665, occurred a trial at a Court of Assizes, in New York, wherein Ralph Hall and Mary, his wife, had an opportunity to disprove the charge of witchcraft. Among the jurors are found the names of Balthazar De Haart and Anthonio De Mill, both of whom were doubtless Huguenots, thus early numbered among the respectabilities of New Amsterdam. It may be added that the accused, in this trial, were acquitted and released.

Governor Stuyvesant, having attempted to coerce the Quakers at Flushing into submission to some rather arbitrary requirements upon the subject of religion, found it expedient to arrest and transport to Holland one of their principal men, John Bowne, to be there punished for his heretical opinions and practices. But the sturdy old Quaker came back triumphantly, in the following year, as bearer of a letter of religious toleration, dated Amsterdam, April 16th, 1663, and addressed to his Excellency Governor Stuyvesant. In this important document are to be found the following sensible sentences: "In the youth of your existence, you ought rather to encourage than check the population of the colony. The consciences of men ought to be free and unshackled, so long as they continue moderate, peaceable, inoffensive, and not hostile to the government. Such have been the maxims of prudence and toleration by which the magistrates of this city (Amsterdam) have been governed; and the consequences have been, that the oppressed and persecuted from every country have found among us an asylum from distress. Follow in the same steps, and vou will be blessed."

On the 14th of May, 1670, Messieurs Machiell Haimelle, Thomas Lambertse, John Lewis, and Peter Darmentier (all Huguenot names) became patentees of the land in and about £rôforô, Long Island, by virtue of a purchase or contract made with the Indians. The price paid for the land, although of somewhat mixed currency, may possess interest to the race of modern speculators who now own that tract of valuable building lots. Here, then, is the price: "One hundred guilders seawant, half a tun of strong beer, two tuns of good beer, three guns, long barrels, with each a pound of powder and lead proportionable, two bars to a gun, and four watch coats." The patentees were subsequently secured in the possession of their land by a new patent, issued by Col. Thomas Dongan, May 13th, 1686, which grants, ratifies, and confirms the property to Thomas Lambertse, Jeronimus Rapalle, and Daniel Rapalle, among others.

Southold and Bushwitk, too, had among their early settlers a number of Huguenot families, whose numerous descendants have creditably borne, down to our own day, the names which two centuries ago were lustrous amid the black surroundings of religious persecution.

Few of the thousands of delighted visitors to the nurseries which have made #flushing famous, are aware that Huguenots grafted upon this ancient town the fruit culture which has so long distinguished it. Although the original French families have passed away, and their names are become extinct, there still remain firmly rooted in the soil the identical lady-apple and bell-pear trees introduced and planted by the refugees. In a most literal sense may we apply to these pious pioneers in pomological science, the words of Scripture: "Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them."

The very name of Ith Bodyllt is suggestive, as closely connected with Huguenot history, and as perpetuating the memory of that scene of horror, the siege of La Rochelle—the citadel of French Protestantism. This last-named city was taken in October, 1628, after a siege of fifteen months, the cruelties and privations of which reduced the population from 27,000 to 5,000 souls. The Huguenot exodus dates from this event, and the emigration from France into other countries was gradual until the Revocation, in 1685, when it became general. "Multitudes," says an old writer, "were frighted out of their native land, and others were frighted out of their religion."

The settlement of New Rochelle dates back to 1689, when some six thousand acres, previously included in the manor of Pelham, were made over to Jacob Leisler, of New York, in trust for the Huguenots, who then were arriving in large numbers from England. These refugees were a portion of the fifty thousand who left France for England, in 1681, four years before the Revocation. Tradition, unsupported, however, by evidence, tells us that one of King Charles's ships brought out the founders of the town of New Rochelle; and we find that during the year 1690 Leisler was parceling out the Pelham purchase among the French families who preferred to sustain a new settlement which might possess all possible characteristics of their native land. Among the names of those to whom Leisler released portions of the Pelham tract, are John Neufville (two hundred acres), Alexander Allaire (one hundred acres), Louis Guion (one hundred and thirty-eight acres), and John Bouteillier. The New Rochelle settlement was augmented and strengthened by continued arrivals of refugees, until the year 1700. Selecting such portions of the land as best suited their purse or pleased their taste, they labored harmoniously and with industry to build up their respective homes; and, although some of the settlers had great difficulty in paying for their land, and privations of various sorts were experienced by them, they all united in expressions of thankfulness to God for the advantages enjoyed by them in this land of liberty. There remained, nevertheless, in every heart, the longing love of fatherland, a love that (like hope) "springs eternal in the human breast." One venerable Huguenot, we are told, was wont to go daily to the shore, and, straining his eyes in the endeavor to discern his own beloved France, amid the mists of the far horizon, would sing one of Marot's hymns, and send to heaven his early morning devotions. Others joined him in these praises of their God, and rekindled the remembrances of their beloved native clime, from which they had been banished by the merciless fires of persecution. Friendly correspondence was also maintained between the two Huguenot colonics of New Rochelle and Boston. The French language was preserved in its purity, for at least two generations, at New Rochelle; and the town, besides being noted for the politeness and hospitality of its inhabitants, became a place of resort on the part of those who desired to make themselves familiar with the language of La Belle France. In after years, the French clergy here were the instructors of many subsequently distinguished men, among whom may be named John Jay, General Philip Schuyler, Gouverneur Morris, and Washington Irving.

The late venerable John Pintard, in some "Recollections" furnished to the author of the History of New Rochelle, supplies the following interesting information: "The Holy Sacrament was administered to the Huguenots at New Rochelle four times a year, viz.: Christmas, Easter, Whitsunday, and the middle of September. During the intermissions that occurred, the communicants walked to New York for that purpose. Prior to their departure on a Sunday, they always collected the young children and left them in the care of friends, while they set off early in the morning, and walked to the city barefooted, carrying their shoes and stockings in their hands. They were accustomed to stop at a rock about twelve miles from New York, to rest and take some refreshment, and also at a fresh water pond (within the bounds of the city), where they washed their feet and put on their shoes and stockings. They then walked to the French Church, where they generally arrived by the time service began. The interval between the morning and afternoon services was shortened for their accommodation, as they had to walk home again the same evening to their families. They continued to worship after this manner till the American Arbolution broke out, when this part of the country became harrassed and overrnn by the British troops. They commenced their march invariably, on Sunday morning, by singing one of the psalms of Clement Marot. The sixtieth psalm, so appropriate to their situation, was perhaps their greatest favorite."

The Huguenots of New Rochelle at first occupied for purposes of devotion an humble wooden structure, but subsequently erected a stone church, in completing which there was manifested so eager an interest, that even the women carried mortar in their aprons, by way of assisting in the work. The plate used in the communion services of this latter church was presented by Queen Anne.

There was not wanting a shadow to the pleasant picture of New Rochelle, the Huguenot's home. Soul-liberty, that most precious possession, was doubtless the secure portion of the refugees there; but trials, temporal and spiritual, form the dark background of the scene. A petition for relief, touching in its simplicity, was sent by them to Governor Fletcher, of New York, praying that he would, "out of charity and pity, grant them, for some years to come, what help and privileges his Excellency shall think convenient." It would seem that the chief difficulty under which they thus were forced to succumb, was an inability to meet their indebtedness for the lands they had purchased, and out of which they were endeavoring to extert their own sustenance, and a surplus with which to satisfy their creditors.

Dissensions, also, seized upon the little church, and disturbed its peace during several years. Pastor and people were involved in long-continued disputes, usually based upon trivial pretexts, but bitterly sustained on both sides, and settled only by the interposition of the New York Church. In 1709, however, their troubles seem to have ended, as the result of the adoption of the Episcopal form of worship, and the conformity of the French Church to the service of the Church of England.

Ever watchful over the youth committed to their care, the New Rochelle Huguenots were untiring in their endeavors to advance the spiritual interests of their children. The fire-places were ornamented with the old-fashioned Dutch tiles, upon which were depicted Scripture scenes, in studying which the Huguenot youth were early made familiar with the history of the New Testament and the Saviour's parables. Sabbath evenings, particularly, were spent thus profitably; the custom of evening meetings on that day not being common at that early date. Alexander Allaire, who purchased an estate of one hundred acres in this town, in 1691, was the great grandfather of James Allaire, whose name has become celebrated among us as connected with the Allaire Iron Works, in our own city. The founder of the family fled from La Rochelle before 1685, and, after spending a few years in England, came to America and settled at New Rochelle.

Most of us remember well the name, if not the features, of John Pintard, who, after a long career of usefulness, was gathered to his fathers in 1844, at the ripe age of eighty-five. He was a merchant of the old school, noted for his public spirit, and deserves well of the present generation for the many memoranda and sketches his memory and pen have contributed to inform us of men and manners in old New York. It was but natural that he should have been among the projectors of that useful institution, the Ntw York Historical Scritty. He descended from Anthony Pintard, another exile from La Rochelle, who, on reaching America, found a temporary resting-place at Shrewsbury, New Jersey. By the removal of a grandson of Anthony to New Rochelle, the family tree became rooted in that most congenial soil.

As an illustration of the stable character and home-loving disposition of the Huguenots, it may be also mentioned that the Coutants, Drakes (known formerly as the Parcot family), Badeaus, Secors, Bonnetts, Soulices, Scurmans, Guions, Le Contes, Rhinelanders, and Flandreaus are still represented upon their original estates at New Rochelle.

In Governor Dongan's Report to the Committee of Trade, on the Province of New York, we have a paragraph referring to the religious condition of this city two hundred years ago. The document is dated February 22d, 1687. The Governor says: "Every town "ought to have a minister. New York has, first, a chaplain belong-"ing to the Fort, of the Church of England; secondly, a Dutch "Calvinist; thirdly, a French Calvinist; fourthly, a Dutch Lutheran. "Here be not many of the Church of England; few Roman Catho-"lics, abundance of Quakers preachers, men and women especial-"ly; singing Quakers, ranting Quakers; Sabbatarians; Anti-Sabba-"tarians; some Anabaptists; some Independents; some Jews; in "short, of all sorts of opinions there are some, and the most part of "none at all.

"The great church, which serves both the English and the Dutch, is within the fort, which is found to be very inconvenient; there fore, I desire that there may be an order for their building, on "other ground, already being laid out for that purpose, and they "wanting not money in store wherewithal to build it. The most "prevailing opinion," adds the Governor, "is that of the Dutch "Calvinists."

The year preceding the date of this report (1686) was remarkable as adding largely of the Huguenot element to the population and society of Ntu Pork. Many families of refugees who had, for a time, sojourned in the islands of St. Christopher's and Martinique, sought a final settlement in New York, amid the surroundings of toleration, which have made this city pre-eminently cosmopolitan.

These victims of persecution brought with them money, arts, and useful customs, and became not only prominent members of society, but, by their complete commercial education, were fitted to monopolize the mercantile industries of the town for many years—in fact, until the distinction between them and others was lost by the death of the elders, and the intermarriages of their posterity.

By their number (reaching two hundred families in 1695), their religious fidelity, and their social influence, the Huguenots thus succeeded in making our island the metropolis of Calvinism in the new world. Their first place of worship was a small building in what is now known as Marketfield street, near the Battery. It was to this humble shrine that the devoted Huguenots of New Rochelle directed their pious pilgrimage, undeterred by twenty-three miles of weary walking, that in their own loved liturgy they might unite with their refugee brethren in the old familiar forms of worship.

In 1704, by permission of the Assembly of New York, there was creeted a more convenient and commodious meeting-house, in Pine street, occupying the ground now sandwiched between those two anxious-seats of federal power and patronage, the Custom House and the Post-office. The new society was named "L'Eglist du Saint Esprit"—the Church of the Holy Spirit. The building fronted on Pine street, not many feet from where Sutherland's bar now dispenses consolatory beverages to both classes of Custom House office-seckers, the appointed and the dis-appointed! The remainder of the site was used as a burying-ground. In 1741, some alterations were made in the structure, and a contemporary historian, Smith, describes the building as of stone, nearly square, seventy by fifty feet in size, plain both within and without. It was fenced from the street, and had a steeple and bell, the latter being the gift of Sir Henry Ashurst, of London. Pintard tells us that the church had two doors, behind which boxes were placed to receive the contributions of the congregation. At the conclusion of the services, the minister never failed to add, "Souvenez vous les pauvres"— Remember ye the poor; upon which every person, old and young, dropped a copper into the box. The money collected in this manner was divided the next morning among the poor, who came regularly at nine o'clock to receive it. It is worthy of remark, that the Huguenots always conscientiously supported their own poor.

During one hundred and thirty years, the French Protestants worshiped in the Pine street church. Originally organized according to the doctrine and discipline of the Reformed Churches of France and Geneva, they continued to use the forms of their fathers until 1804. when pastor and people agreed to adopt the forms of the Episcopal Church; in whose communion the society has since remained. 1834 the property in Pine street was sold, and an elegant white marble building erected on the corner of Franklin and Church streets. at a cost of $60,000. Since its establishment, in 1704, fourteen ministers have officiated as pastors over this church, most of them, however, for brief periods. Rev. Antoine Verren, whose name is familiar to us all, commenced his labors as their paster in 1828, succeeding Rev. Mr. Penneveyre. It is unnecessary to state that the services are conducted in the French language throughout; and to those who are at all acquainted with the French versions of the Bible and Prayer Book, it is equally needless to explain why an attendance upon the services of this church has been always considered a valuable assistance to students of that language, and has been often availed of to acquire familiarity with the French tongue in its purity and perfection.

Having thus traced the history of the Pine street Church down to our own day, we will return to consider, briefly, a few other matters of interest connected with early Huguenot history.

The refugees, although safe from the recurrence of massacres and martyrdoms, were not without their fears on the one side, and their dissensions on the other. In 1689, they suddenly discovered themselves to be the objects of a conspiracy, which aimed at their destruction, and threatened, for a time, so seriously as to disturb their peace. So complete was their consternation, that a Committee of Safety was appointed, to advise and protect them. Of this Committee Abram Gouverneur was chairman. It is probable that this much dreaded conspiracy was an outgrowth of a project, on the part of the French Governor of Canada, to invade New York State and conquer

Albann (then Orange) and Manhattan. At this date, as before stated, there were not far from two hundred families of French Protestants in the town.

In the year 1708, a most perpicious slander was raised against the refugees in New York, affecting, more particularly, Capt. Benjamin Fancuil, a person of considerable note among them. In this basest of libels, the Huguenots were accused of carrying on correspondence with their countrymen in Europe, respecting the position, and fortifications, and easy capture of the city. Letters were said to have been found on board the sloop "Constant Abigail," directed to France, under cover, to some persons in England. The contents were said to be to this effect; that if the French would come to New York, the place lay in a disorder. The letters were not signed, but were suspected of having been written by Capt. Benjamin Faneuil, and were thrown overboard (in a struggle with a French privateer), lest they should reach France and injure New York. We are told, however, that the reputation of the refugees was fully cleared and vindicated from this slander, but not until it had caused them many embarrassments, and interrupted the familiarity they formerly enjoyed with the other inhabitants.

The robbery and desecration of Trinity Churth, in February, 1713, prompted a display of practical sympathy on the part of the French Church, in the form of an offer to contribute ten pounds toward a reward for the discovery of the offender. In acknowledgment of their appreciation of this act, the Rector and Vestry of Trinity Church issued an address publicly thanking the refugees; and, probably influenced by the same action, the Governor (Hunter) offered a reward of fifty-five pounds for the apprehension of the sacrilegious wretch.

The Journal of John Fontaine, who passed through New York in 1716, has some interesting references to the condition and customs of his countrymen here, at that time. Under date of Sunday, November 4th, 1716, he says: "At ten I went to Mr. Freneau, and with him to church. I returned to his house and dined with him, and at half an hour after two we went to church again, which is after Calvin's way. The church is very large and beautiful, and within it there was a very great congregation. After service I went home and to bed."

The same writer speaks of agreeable visits to Colonel Morris, at his place seven miles from New York, and also makes reference to a French club existing in the city at the time of his visit. The old records are not silent respecting the many dissensions occurring among the New York refugees, at times seriously threatening to uproot their separate existence as an ecclesiastical body. Their ministers were seemingly subject to a chronic disaffection toward the consistory, which latter body, in its turn, was jealous of its prerogatives, and careful that they were not infringed upon. The most serious of these contentions, the one, in fact, from whose effects the church never recovered, occurred in 1724, and is described by the historian, Smith, in so few words as to make his account worthy of quotation. It should be borne in mind that Smith wrote his History of New York just a century ago, and within thirty years of the occurrences referred to.

He says: "The richest refugees had settled in New York, and "erected a church upon the principles and model of that of Geneva, "and, by their growth and foreign accessions, formed a congrega-"tion, for numbers and riches superior to all but the Dutch. They "had two ministers. Rou, the first called, was a man of learning, "but proud, pleasurable, and passionate. Moulinars, his colleague. "was most distinguished for his pacific spirit, dull parts, and unblama-"ble life and conversation. Rou despised his fellow-laborer, and, for a "long time, commanded the whole congregation by the superiority "of his talents for the pulpit. The other, impatient under affronts, "raised a party in his favor, and succeeded in the election of a set "of elders disposed to humble the delinquent. Rou refused to ac-"knowledge them duly elected. Incensed at this conduct, they enter-"ed an act in their minutes, dismissing him from the pastoral charge "of the church, and procured a ratification of the act by a majority "of the people. The matter was brought before the Governor (Bur-"net), by petition from Rou, and was referred to the Council, which "advised that the congregation should be admonished to bring their "differences to an amicable conclusion. It was attempted, and the "elders offered to submit the controversy to the Dutch ministers. But "Rou refused, and chose to bring a bill in chancery before the Gov-"ernor. In the trial, it was shown that the consistory were the pro-"per judges of the point in dispute first; from them an appeal lay "to a collogue, next to a provincial, and lastly to a national synod. "Governor Burnet, nevertheless, overruled the plea, and the defend-"ants, being fearful of a decree that might expose their own "estates to the payment of Rou's salary, thought it advisable to "drop their debates, reinstate the minister, and leave the church.

"Among those who left was Mr. Delancey, who was the most con-"siderable for his wealth and popular influence. He was very rigid "in his religious profession, one of the first builders, and, by far, the "most generous benefactor of the French Church, and therefore "left it with the utmost reluctance."

Referring to the date of his own book, Smith also says: "The "french Church, by the contentions of 1724, and the disuse of the "language, is now (1757?) reduced to an inconsiderable handful. "The present minister, Mr. Carle, is a native of France, and succeeded Mr. Rou, in 1754. He bears an irreproachable character, is "very intent upon his studies, preaches moderate Calvinism, and "speaks with propriety both of pronunciation and gesture."

The Mr. De Lancey mentioned above was James De Lancey, who was in 1729 a member of the Council, subsequently Justice of the Supreme Court, and Lieutenant Governor of the State, and whose ancestor was, probably, Stephen De Lancey, an Alderman in New York in 1691.

Space forbids further elaboration of this interesting portion of local history. Our allusions to individual members of the honorable Huguenot family have been, necessarily, most meagre, although the material for personal references, and biographical sketches, is plentiful and inviting; and doubtless we have seemed to ignore many a name familiar and famous in American Huguenot history. pose, however, is accomplished, if the unadorned facts of history, here linked together, shall stimulate further study into the character and career of these noble volunteers in the army of martyrs. them were many individuals whose private worth and public services would supply abundant material for most interesting biography. The mere mention of their names suggests the number and variety of the benefits conferred upon six generations of New Yorkers by the settlement of Huguenots on this island. Nor this only. whole country is debtor to men of French Protestant parentage, who, as ministers, lawyers, physicians, soldiers, statesmen, poets, philanthropists, have shed lustre upon the pages of American history, in permitting us to own as national property such names as Bedell, Bethnne, Latourette, De Lancey, Depeyster, Jay, Freneau, Sigourney, Bowdoin, Faneuil, Girard, Bayard, Legaré, Marion, Laurens, Sumter, Boudinot, Benezet, Gano, Gallaudet, Gillette, and a host of others, well known and respected throughout our land.

And while we may not speak in terms of unmixed eulogy of these Huguenot heroes—for, after all, they were but men—let us not forget their sufferings and their temptations. Then may we, amid far happier surroundings, and in the blaze of this century's privileges, emulate their steadfast devotion to principle, and, following them as they followed Christ, enjoy with them the rest from sorrow, sin, and care, that remaineth for the people of God.

Now.—Those who are curious with respect to the early local history of the Huguenots, are referred to the following authorities, to all of which I am under greater or less obligations for the materials from which the foregoing article has been made up: Valentine's History of New Fork; Endrew Holmes' History of the County of Westchester; Brothead's History of New Fork State; Holmes' Annats of America, 1492–1826; Silas Wood's First Settlement of Tones on Long Island; Duulap's History New Netherland and New Fork; Smith's Hist. Notices of some of the Marriages in this City in the Times of the Dutch.

PREPARED BY D. T. V.

The compiler had proposed, in connection with the table of marriages in early times, to give in this number of the Manual a historical sketch of the gradual rise of the English influence in social affairs, which occurred during the century following their conquest of the Dutch. An unexpected difficulty in procuring certain papers compels him to defer the consideration of this interesting subject. He has thought, however, that some mention of notable marriages, which occurred among the Dutch themselves, before the English immigration began to set in with any strength, would prove interesting.

One of the notable marriages in the earliest times was that of Maria Rapelje with Michael Paulus, in 1640. The sister of Maria was the first child born of Christian parents in this colony, her birth having taken place in June, 1625. The date of her marriage was probably anterior to that recorded, as no mention is made of the event, although the Council records of 1656 contain a memorial of "Sara Jorisen," the first-born Christian daughter in New Netherland, widow of Hans Hansen, burthened with seven children," petitioning for a grant of meadow land at the Waal boght, which was granted. Her marriage, however, if anterior to that of her sister, must have taken place when her age did not exceed sixteen years, and that of Maria, above mentioned, must have been at less than fifteen years of age.

In this connection, it is interesting to draw information from the marriage record of the Dutch (which contains the birth-place of the parties), as to what families were among the earliest domiciled in the colony, and to this end we will here give, in their chronological order, the names of both males and females born in this country and married during the time the Dutch held possession:

^{*} The name of Jorisen is the Christian name of her father, Joris Rapelje.

Among the notable marriages in the earlier times was that of Pieter Wolfertsen, who for a long time occupied a prominent position in the city, having been a schepen during six years, and occupied other positions of trust and confidence. He came to this country while a boy, in the year 1630, with his father, Wolfert Gerritsen. He, therefore, had grown up with the settlement almost from its commencement, and was probably as much identified with its history as any other individual. His occupation was that of a brewer, the place of his business being on the present corner of Whitehall and Pearl streets. The name of this distinguished individual is now lost among his descendants: indeed, the curious changes among the patronymics of the Dutch families are nowhere better illustrated than in this family. The father's name was Wolfert Gerritsen, the sons were surnamed Wolfertsen, while an addition was made by them of Van Couwenhoven, by which their descendants are now known, These peculiar customs of nomenclature, of different generations of the same family, render it difficult in many instances, besides the one just cited, in tracing the genealogies of families in that early period. But we may here state the result of our examination of the subject.

It would appear that among the Dutch peasantry, in ages before the emigration thence to this colony, the simple ('hristian name, Andrew (Andries), John (Jan), Peter (Pieter), &c., was the distinguishing cognomen. They had not carned a family patronymic, which descended through successive generations, and the children, therefore, receive at their baptism simply a Christian name. For instance "Jan" has a son who receives the baptismal name of "Andries," and to that is added the distinguishing appellation of "Jansen." signifying the son of "Jan." Andries Jansen in turn has a son christened "Pieter," whose name, therefore, becomes Pieter Andriessen, &c. This ancient custom was not wholly cradicated at the time when New Netherland was colonized, and we see not only many instances of it prevailing here, but one circumstance, denoting that the custom was founded upon a settled and ancient system of nomenclature, is found in the fact which will be observed in our table of marriages among the female names, which never end with the "sen," which terminates the names of their brothers. For instance, the name of Annetje, a daughter of Dirck Tomassen, would be Annetje Dircks, while the name of her brother would be Lucas Dircksen. The establishment of a settled surname to families is found to arise in many instances in our colony. The family of the Van Cortlands is descended from Oloff Stevensen, one of the early settlers, that individual having, after some years' residence here, adopted the patronymic Van Cortland, which was ever after the name of his posterity, and instead of his son being called Stephan Oloffsen, under the old custom, he was called Stephanus Van Cortland. Several other instances could be cited, and they are found only to occur with families who have attained a certain degree of distinction and superior standing in society, indicating that the recognition of the privilege of assuming a patronymic distinction was one depending upon the public acquiescence. The old custom above mentioned seems, however, to have grown into disuse after some years' prevalence in this colony, and the Jansens, the Pietersens, the Roeloffsens, &c., fixed upon a patronymic, such as Jansen. Pieters, Roelofs, &c., which became the settled surname of the family.

Among the earliest marriages, we find, in the year 1643, Thomas Willet, of Bristol, England, married to Sara Cornell, of Essex, England. Mr. Willet was a trader between New Amsterdam and Rhode Island. He is particularly noted for having been the first Mayor of the city of English birth. To this office he was elevated after the capture by the English, and upon the organization of English institutions in this city in 1665. He was then the leading merchant of English birth in this city, and continued to reside here many years afterwards. He removed to Rhode Island before his death, and the resting place is now marked by an humble tombstone in an ancient graveyard in that State. In late years, the project has been agitated of removing his relics to this city, and depositing them in some of our rural cemeteries, under a monument fit to commemorate the incidents of his history.

Cornelia Melyn, daughter of Cornelis Melyn, was, in her day, the belle of New Amsterdam, and was the sought-for of the principal aspirants to the felicities of matrimony. Her father, unlike most of those who emigrated to this colony in early times, was a man of considerable wealth on his arrival here, in 1639. After examining into the prospects and resources of the country, he returned to the fatherland, where he procured a patent for a large portion of Staten Island; and, having decided upon establishing his residence here, he brought over his family in the year 1641, and at once commenced colonizing the extensive territory of which he was patroon. He also had a residence in New Amsterdam, on the present north-east corner of Pearl and Broad streets, then a pleasant place of residence, facing the East River. Here the youthful Cornelia grew to the estate of womanhood. the admired and envied of the neighbors. None among the youth of the community were of sufficient condition to make pretensions to the aristocratic beauty, until Captain Loper, the commander of the Dutch ship of war permanently stationed in the harbor, put forth his claims, which met with a favorable response. The marriage took place, with great festivities, in the year 1647. The married life of this distinguished couple did not prove of long duration, for the captain died within three or four years, and his widow, in the year 1653, married Jacob Schellinger, a merchant of high standing, resident in New Amsterdam.

We have, in other numbers of the Manual, given biographical sketches of most of the distinguished leading men of New Amsterdam, and, probably, to enter at any length into repetitions of this character would be superfluous. We have not, however, previously had the opportunity of recording the interesting events of the marriage of those parties, and we will therefore in a table, as briefly arranged as possible, note those who were married in this city, and who occupy a prominent position in the history of those times.

1642. Oloff Stevensen (Van Cortland), of Wyck te duersteede, in Holland, to Anneeen Loocernans, of Turnhout. The groom came to this city in 1637; became commissary of cargoes for the Company; established himself in the brewing business; became the leading burgher of the city; died in 1683.

The bride was sister of Govert Loockermans, one of the leading traders of that day.

1641. ISAAC DE FOREEST, of Leyden, to SARA DU FRUEUX, of New Netherland.

The groom was one of the early settlers, and became a prominent merchant, schepen, &c.

The bride was the second of the females recorded as having been born in New Netherland, and married here. She survived her husband.

1642. Hans Kierstede, of Maeydenburg, to Sara Roelofs, of Amsterdam.

Mr. K. was the earliest practising physician, apothecary and surgeon permanently settled in this city. He was here as early as the year 1638.

Sara Roelofs, his wife, was daughter of Roelof Jansen, and came to this country with her father (who was superintendent of farms at Renselaerswyck). Her mother was the celebrated Annetje Jans, who originally owned the Trinity Church farm, in this city. Sara was the greatest proficient in the Indian language of any person in the colony, and in 1664 acted as interpreter in the great treaty made between Stuyvesant and the River Indians.

She survived her husband, who died about 1666, and in September, 1669, she married Cornelis Van Borsum, then quite a youth, conducting the ferry between this city and Long Island.

1645. Adrian Vanderdonck, of Breda , to Maria Doughty, of $\mathit{Hempstead}$.

The groom, on this occasion, was the Yong-heer, from whom the name of the village of Yonkers is derived. Vanderdonk, the "old" gentleman, was a man to whom our early history is greatly indebted for his "Vertoogh," a description of the state of affairs in New Netherland in the time of Kieft. He obtained a patent for a large district, embracing the present Yonkers, which he called "Colendonck."

The father of the bride was the Rev. Francis Doughty, a dissenting minister, who, having given great offense to the people of New Plymouth, in 1642, by asserting that "Abraham's children should have been baptized," was barbarously used, and, in consequence, removed to Long Island, within the Dutch jurisdiction. He was for some time a resident in New Amsterdam.

1648. Jacob Leendertsen Vandiegrist, of Amsterdam, to Rebecca Fredericks, of Amsterdam.

Mr. V. was prominent as a merchant and magistrate of this city.

1649. Govert Loockermans, of Turnhout, to Marritje Jans.

Mr. L. was a leading merchant and magistrate.

1649. Wilhelmus Beeckman, of Zutphen, to Catalina De Boots, of Amsterdum.

Mr. B. was one of the leading citizens of the day, and his bride celebrated for her personal attractions. Her father was a trader on the North River.

1650. Augustyn Heermans, of Bohemia, to Jannekin Verlett, of Utrecht.

Mr. H. was a leading merchant in this city, and his bride a member of one of the principal families.

1650. Johannes De Peyster, of Hurlem, to Cornelia Lubbertse, of Hurlem.

Mr. De P. was a leading merchant and magistrate.

1652. Pieter Cornelisen Vanderveen, of Amsterdam, to Elsie Tymens, of New Amsterdam.

Mr. V. was a leading merchant. The bride was a daughter of one of the earliest permanent settlers. She afterwards married Jacob Leisler, who was executed for treason. No female character of that period is so connected with the history of the times.

1652. Jacob Corlaar, of Nieuwkerke, to Lysbeth Van Hoagland, of Aeruhum.

Corlaar was at this period an old resident, having come here as early as 1633. From his plantation on the East River the name Corlaar's Hook is derived.

1652. Ide Cornelisen Van Vorst, of New Amsterdam, to Hilletje Jans, of Oldenburg.

The groom is deserving of historic notice, as being the first male born in this colony who was married here. The family was, from a very early period, established at a plantation on Newark Bay, where the father of this individual was murdered by the Indians in 1642.

1653. ISAAC BEDLOW, of Vanchryck, to LYSBET POTTERS, of Batavia. Bedlow was at this time a young merchant, and his bride the sister

Declow was at this time a young merchant, and his bride the sister of an enterprising trader, who was the projector of the first ship built in this city, the "New Love."

1647. Johannes Delamontagnie, widower, to Agnietje Jellis, widow.

The groom was a learned gentleman, who came to this colony with Kieft, Director General, to assist in his council.

1654. Cornelis Van Ruyven, of Amsterdum, to Hillegond Megapo lensis, of Pancras.

Mr. Van Ruyven was the Secretary of the Dutch Colonial Council, and his bride the daughter of Domine Megapolensis, the established preacher. The latter arrived in this country, with his family, in 1642.

1655. Nicasius De Silla, of Aernham, to Tryntje Croegers, of The Hague.

Mr. De S. was one of the Council of the colony. The marriage was an unhappy one—the parties did not live together more than two or three years, and separated in 1658.

1655. Samuel Edsall, of England, to Jannetje Wessels, of Aernham. This marriage is more especially noticeable, from the festivities of the occasion, some mention of which has come down to us. Edsall was a hatter, in Pearl street, his shop being adjoining or near the popular tavern of Madame Wessels, celebrated for Burgomasters' dinners. The charming Jannetje was daughter of said Madame Wessels, and was a famous belle in her day.

1655. NICHOLAS DE MEYER, of Hamburgh, to Lydia Van Dyck, of Utrecht.

De Meyer was one of the most enterprising young merchants in the city, and rose to considerable wealth and high standing. He filled the offices successively of Schepen, Alderman, and Mayor (the latter in 1676). The bride was daughter of Hendrick Van Dyck, Prosecutor General in the colony.

1655. Jacobus Backer, of Amsterdam, to Margaret Stuyvesant.

The groom was one of the principal merchants, his place of business being on the east side of Broad street, near Beaver. The bride was one of the family of Governor Stuyvesant. In those days it was not uncommon for the vrouws of the leading merchants to give assistance to their husbands in their business affairs, and we find Madame Backer taking full charge of the trade of her husband during an absence of some years in Europe. Mr. Backer was a prominent character in those days.

1656. Allard Anthony, of Amsterdam, to Henrica Wessels, of Utrecht.

Mr. Authory was a leading merchant and magistrate.

1656. Nicholas Verlett to Anna Stuyvesant, widow of Samuel Bayard.

Mr. V. was a leading trader, and his wife one of the family of lov. Stuyvesant.

1657. Francoys De Bruyn, of Amsterdam, to Catharyn Verlet, of Amsterdam.

Mr. De B. was a merchant in good standing.

1657. David Pietersen Schuyler, of Amsterdam, to Catalyn Verplanck, of New Amsterdam.

Schuyler was a resident of Fort Orange (Albany); the bride was a daughter of Abraham Verplanck, one of the early settlers, who owned a plantation bordering on the northerly side of the present Maiden lane.

1658. Johannes Pietersen Van Brugh, of Horlem, to Catherina Roelofs, widow of Lucas Rodenburg.

Mr. Van Brugh was a leading merchant and magistrate.

1658. Cornelis Steenwyck, of Harlem, to Margarieta De Riemer, of Amsterdam.

Mr. S. was the principal merchant in the city, and at successive periods held the positions of Schepen, Burgomaster, Alderman, Mayor, and Governor pro ten. He died in 1684. His widow afterwards married Domine Selvns.

1658. Paulus Shrick, of Nourenburg, to Maria Verlett, widow of Johannes Van Beeck.

Mr. S. was a merchant and his wife was a lady of wealth.

1659. Domine Samuel Drissius to Lysbet Grevenraet, widow of Elbert Elbertsen.

1659. Jeronimus Ebbing, of Hamburg, to Johanna De Laet, widow of Jan De Hulter.

1659. William Bogardus, born in this city (a son of the Domine), to Wyntie Sybrants, of Old Amsterdam.

(We observe, about the year 1658, the discrimination between "New" Amsterdam and "Old" Amsterdam begins to make its appearance in the marriage records. The marriageable parties born here are growing more numerous, and in the year 1660 no less than seven out of the sixty-two marriages were born in this city.)

1659. Pieter Rudolphus De Vries, widower, to Margaret Hardenbrook, of Ervervelt.

This marriage is notable as furnishing the foundation of the wealth of a family, long ranked among the wealthiest in the country, a family with which Washington himself unsuccessfully aspired to become connected by marriage.

Rudolphus was a fur trader and general merchant. He died childless, soon after his marriage, and his widow, who inherited his wealth, married Frederick Philipse in 1662.

1662. Frederick Philipse, of B-dswaert, to the widow of Pieter Rudolphus.

Few, in the community of New Amsterdam, imagined, when the youthful and wealthy widow of Rudolphus married a poor young carpenter, and installed him behind the counter of her mercantile establishment, that the lucky mechanic was destined to prove the greatest financier and commercial adventurer of the country. He was certainly one of the most sagacious operators of bis time—lands, mills, foreign trade, river trade, all means, sources of profit, were brought into exercise by him. He realized greatly by speculation in wampum or sewant, the Indian money which then formed the principal part of the currency, and the value of which, being extremely fluctuating, afforded a large field of operation for the sagacious dealer. Whole hogsheads of wampum are said to have been stored in his cellars at certain periods. After the death of the ludy above mentioned, he married, in 1692, a daughter of old Burgomaster Van Cortland.

This lady was named Catherine. She married first, in 1675, Johannes Dervall, a merchant resident in this city, but born in Amsterdam. She survived her last husband many years, and at her manor house, on the North River, and at her city residence, enjoyed the highest social position; but, withal, she maintained in her household the customs of the old Dutch times. Six spinning wheels graced the different apartments in her city mansion. The butter and cheese used in the family were made on the same premises, and the whole establishment was conducted in the same unpretending and homely style.

1663. Jacob Leisler, of Frankfort, to Elste Tymens, widow of P. C. Vanderveen.

The name of Leisler and his melancholy fate are familiar to all readers of our early history, and need not be repeated here.

1663. ÆGIDIUS LUVCK, Rector of the Latin School in this city, to JUDITH ISENDOORN, of De Venter.

The parties to this marriage were accomplished persons, and enjoyed high social distinction. We are not aware of any children of this marriage.

We have been dubious whether the widow, after the death of Domine Luyck, did not marry Gov. Stuyvesant, although the marriage certainly did not take place in this city. This suggestion has occurred to us, from the name of the Governor's widow, which appears from her will to have been Judith Isendoorn. It is a noticeable fact, in connection with the family of Governor Stuyvesant, that less seems to be known concerning its various members and connections, in this city, than that of any other of the leading families of that day.

It is known that, before coming to this country, the Governor married Judith Bayard, and we have the impression that this lady was a widow at that time. Her ancestral name may have been Isendoorn, and Madame Luyck may have been a family connection.

1664. Balthazar Bayard, of Amsterdam, to Marritje Loockermans, of New Netherland.

The gentlemen of the family of Bayard, who became residents of this city, are stated in some of the histories of the time to have been nephews of Governor Stuyvesant; but we believe they were sons of Madame Stuyvesant, by a former husband. The terms "nephew" and "cousin" seem to have been quite indeterminately applied in those days to any relationship not in the immediate line of blood descent. Mr. Bayard was a brewer in this city. His wife was daughter of Govert Loockermans.

1666. Nicholas Bayard, of Alphen, to Judith Verlet, of Amsterdam.

Mr. B. was one of the most distinguished and active men of his time. His wife, when a young girl, had been taken up when traveling through New England with her father, at a period when a belief in witchcraft prevailed. She was charged with being one of that fraternity, and great correspondence ensued between the different governments, before her release could be effected.

1668. Guleyn Ver Plank, of $New \ York$, to Hendrickje Wessels, of Aernham.

Mr. V. was, for many years, one of the gay boys of the town. Born in this city, he received a good education, and was a clerk for one of the leading merchants. His associations were, therefore, such as to make him a desirable companion at a tea party of young folks. It is to be regretted that the young ladies who based their faith on his promises, in several instances, found, to their disgrace, that their confidence was misplaced. He was at last caught, however, by the superior address or beauty of the daughter of Madame Wessels, the keeper of the City Tavern. Mr. V. became a leading merchant and citizen.

1671. Andries Teller, of Albany, to Sophia Van Cortland, of New York.

This marriage united two of the leading families of those cities.

1671. STEPHANUS VAN CORTLAND, of New York, to GEERTRUYD SCHUYLER, of Albany.

The same remark may be applied to this marriage as to the last quoted. Mr. V. C. became Mayor of New York, and a distinguished member of the Colonial Government.

1672. NICHOLAS WILLIAM STUYVESANT, of New York, to Maria Beekman, of the same place.

1674. Gabriel Minvielle, of Bordeaux, to Judith Van Beeck, of New Willemstadt.

Mr. M. was a leading merchant, of French extraction, in the city. He subsequently became Mayor (in 1684).

1675. Francois Rombouts, of Burgundy, to Ann Eliza Maschop, widow.

This gentleman also became Mayor (in 1679). It would seem to have been the policy of the English, in the selection of their magistrates, to occasionally introduce foreigners into the principal places of trust, and thus, without too glaringly bringing a sense of subjugation to the minds of the inhabitants, habituate them to the facts incident to a new regime.

1672. NICHOLAS WILLIAM SPUYVESANT to MARIA BEEKMAN. Mr. S. was son of the Governor, and the bride was daughter of William Beekman, one of the leading citizens of that day. He married a second time, in 1681, to Elizabeth Schlechtenhorst.

1674. Gabriel Minyielle, born at Bordeaux, France, to Judith Van Berge. Mr. M. was at this period the leading merchant in the fur trade with the Canadas, then a profitable branch of business. He was Mayor in 1684.

1675. Francois Rombouts, of France, to Ann E. Maschop, a widow. Mr. R. was also a French merchant, one of the early settlers in New Amsterdam. He was Mayor in 1679. He became a widower, and in 1683 married Helena Teller.

1675. John Dervall to Catharina Van Cortland. Mr. D. was a leading young merchant, and the bride was the daughter of the old Burgomaster Van Cortland.

1680. Peter Delanoy, of Harlem, to Widow Bedlow. Mr. D. was a merchant, and became prominent as a politician on the side of Leisler, in 1689. In that year he was Mayor of the city.

1682. Jan Vinje, widower, to Wiesje Huyts, widow. Mr. V. was in the times of the Dutch a Schepen, and a man of considerable local distinction. He was one of the heirs of the Damen farm, lying above Wall street, and lived on the property, where he had a brewery.

1682. Brandt Schuyler, of New Albany, to Cornelia Van Cortland, of New York.

This was one of the aristocratic marriages between members of the leading families in this city and Albany, of the old Dutch stock. Mr. S. was an enterprising trader, and became a conspicuous character in the public affairs of his time. He resided in this city, and served as Alderman for a number of years.

1684. RIP VAN DAM, of Albany, to SARA VANDERSPEIGLE, of New York.

Mr. Van Dam was at that period a young merchant in this city, and the bride was the daughter of a baker, of some property. He was for many years one of the most noted men of the day, and conspicuous for his liberal tendencies in politics. It has been thought that, as the head of that party in the middle of the last century, he contributed in a great degree to the production of that sentiment in the public mind, in this vicinity, which gradually brought about the Revolutionary war.

1684. Vincent Delamontagnie to Arrantje Jans. Mr. D. was notable from the extraordinary age to which he lived, viz., one hundred and sixteen years. He was descended from one of the earliest and most respectable settlers, and from him all of the name in this section are descended.
